Marathon For Non-Public Education Sat.

Participants in the annual marathon for non-public education will gather in the parking lot at Al & Wally's Country Market off highway 59 Saturday at 9:30 a.m. to begin their community service and fund raising activities for the day.

Students in third grade and older will be involved in cleaning the areas along highway 59 from First street and south, including about 30 miles of ditches southeast of highway 59 and east on the Smiley bridge road. Students in kindergarten through second grade will confine their activities to cleanup at the St. Bernard's school grounds and Floyd B. Olson park.

Sponsor of the event, whereby pledges are being taken for each mile of roadside cleaned, is the Our Lady of Lourdes council of the Knights of Columbus. All funds raised are used directly for non-public education. Only St. Bernard's parochial school is involved in the marathon this year.

Spraying Can Help Control Elm Beetle

Elm trunk spraying programs to control the native elm bark beetle, an important carrier of Dutch elm disease, should be started in mid-September, according to University of Minnesota extension entomologist William Phillipsen, but can also be effective in October or in the spring.

The beetle, which spends the summer feeding in the branches of elms, moves to the bottom of healthy elms in late September to spend the winter. As the beetles make their overwintering tunnels, they can transmit the Dutch elm disease fungus to the tree. If the tree trunks are sprayed in mid-September with the insecticide chlorpyrifos (sold commercially as Dursban), the beetles may be killed before they can transmit the disease. Although a September spraying is recommended, the insecticide will also be effective against the beetles if applied in October or in April, just before the beetles come out and fly to the tops of the trees to feed, Phillipsen said.

Spraying should be done on a community-wide basis rather than by the individual homeowner, Phillipsen noted. The spraying program should be under the supervision of a certified pest control operator.

The insecticide is sprayed at the base of healthy elms, at a height of one to six feet, depending on the height at which the beetles are found in the trunk. The trunk should be wetted thoroughly but not to the point of runoff. Extra care should be taken to apply the spray to the bottom six inches, including the root flares, since the beetles tend to concentrate in these areas.

Before spraying is begun, sampling for the presence of the native elm bark beetle should be done, since there may not be enough native beetles in the area to warrant a spraying program. Details on sampling techniques and insecticide applications are described in a new University publication, Minnesota Tree Line 27, "Native Elm Bark Beetle Control," available from county extension agents or from the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service.

Oakland Park Transition Thru History Shown

In February 1974, after a year of assessing needs and alternatives, Agassiz Health Planning Council was notified of the intent to replace the old building with a new, 75-bed facility, and an application for a Certificate of Need was submitted in August 1974.

After the CoN was issued and the bonding referendum passed, Marshall county sold its interest to Pennington county. Bid letting was conducted in June of 1975, ground broken, and the 52 residents of the old home moved in the new $1,342,061 single level building designed by Patch, Erickson and Madson and constructed by Witcher Brothers on the northwest corner of the property July 1, 1976. It was dedicated September 2, 1976. The "Old San", after being used as a dormitory for students, is now unoccupied.

In 1955, the executive board consisted of five men, three of whom appeared at the open house celebration conducted Sunday during the final day of the anniversary. At that time, the executive board consisted of Andy Erickson, Roseau county, chairman; Carl V. Anderson, Pennington county, vice chairman; Omer Houlse, Red Lake county, secretary; Roy Edman, Marshall county; and John X. Lynskey, recording secretary.

Eight members now comprise the current board at the home, consisting of Joyce Fox, chairman; Otto Stenberg, vice chairman; Iris Furuseth, secretary; Roger Hoffman; Glenn Tasa; Don Grabanski; Albert Koop; and Gary Erickson, recording secretary.

Administrators from 1955 to the present include Donald Brandvold, January 1955 to September 1955; Thora Jensen, September 1955 to September 1959; James Roche, September 1959 to September 1970; Gus Frahm, September 1970 to October 1970; L. W. Larson, October 1970 to April 1972; and Sherryll C. Irvine, who has been administrator since April of 1972.

The change in nursing homes is significant, according to Irvine. "Twenty-five years ago many health professionals looked down their collective noses at those who found pride and satisfaction in caring for the old," she said. Gerentology (the study of ageing) is now an accepted and respected 'ology'."

"Things have changed for the better," she said, "but this very change in recognition and acknowledgment has created a phenomenon in many ways harmful to this new 'ology'. The escalating costs of trained people, improved programming, and adequate, safe environments make homes the object of public — and often hostile scrutiny. Besides the ever growing cost for care, it is perhaps a generalized public guilt complex that homes have to be in existence at all because we cannot care for our aged at home, the fear by so many that we will grow old and lose our independence; certainly the lack of knowledge and sensitivity by much of the mass media who often equate all homes as being equal — usually equally bad."

"By this attitude," she concluded, "no one can possibly win and we all lose . . . the facilities themselves, staff, communities, the residents and our elderly among us who may have to enter a home."

"Much has changed in these 25 years but the basic philosophy was spelled out by the first board early in 1955. 'Good care to the elderly is the essential' — that has not changed," she said.

PAST AND PRESENT board members of Oakland Park nursing home in Thief River Falls were recognized during special ceremonies conducted during an open house Sunday in celebration of the home's 25th anniversary. According to history, it was the executive board's decision 26 years ago to convert a sanitorium located in Thief River Falls to a rest home. The decision became a reality Nov. 11, 1954. Pictured, front row, left to right: (past board members) Oscar Rokke, 10 years; Roy Edman, 20 years; Andy Erickson; Odin Hanson, 18 years; and Omer Houle; back row, left to right (present board members): Joyce Fox, chairman; Mable Mosbeck (past board member); Sherryll Irvine, the home's administrator; Otto Stenberg, vice chairman; and Glenn Tasa, executive board member since January of 1969. Present board members not pictured include Iris Furuseth, secretary; Roger Hoffman; Don Grabanski; Albert Koop; and Gary Erickson, recording secretary.

FIRE OFFICIALS believe this press used to apply hot transfers to garments was the cause of the fire which did extensive damage to the Falls Mall in Thief River Falls Monday evening. Fire was reported about 8:35 p.m. after the mall had been closed for about two hours. Custodians had been in the building about an hour before the fire call, however, and had not noticed anything wrong.

Odean Osness Finds Positive Attitude Pays

insists.

"I'm to the point where I don't let it bother me. I was self-conscious at first. But as time goes on you overcome this," he said.

There are often curious people. Those who wonder how Odean will get from his motor chair to a car . . . how he will get into a store . . . and how he will get through the aisles once he is in a store. Many stop to watch.

"That doesn't usually bother me," he said, "although sometimes it makes it harder to do things.

"I like to be self-sufficient as often as possible," he said. "But help is always greatly appreciated. And there are times when I need help."

September 11 Odean moved from his home at 522 W. Second street in Thief River Falls to the new Riverside Terrace apartments between Main and LaBree avenues in Thief River Falls.

For 18 years he had lived in the house with his parents. When they died he stayed in the house by himself.

"The home was too large for one person," he said. "I didn't need all the room."

His present "home" has three major rooms and is equipped with handicap facilities. He occupies one of three rooms designed for handicapped persons in the 66 unit complex. He is the youngest resident in the building. And, although Odean does his own cooking, he eats out during the summer months, he said.

"If I want to eat, I'm going to have to fix it myself or do without," he said. "Going hungry isn't always the best thing, either."

And there are always friends and neighbors to help, Odean said.

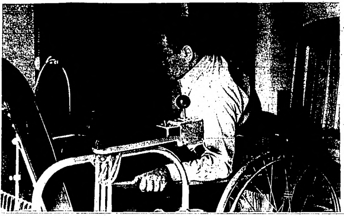
"Friends are the most important of all," he said. "They've been wonderful to me. Without them I don't know what I would have done."

Friends were a great asset to Odean when his parents died, he said — one of the most difficult times in his life. "When my parents died I was entirely alone. It was hard to adjust to the fact that I was alone and handicapped."

Odean, the son of Joseph and Sophie Osness, was raised west of Thief River Falls in Numedahl township. He attended a country school (Prairie View District 64, on the old Pembina Ridge Trail" he offered, smiling) until the eighth grade when he needed tutors to help him compzte his education. He has one sister in Warren, Mrs. Wallace Stinar, and he is a member of Redeemer Lutheran church in Thief River Falls. He is handicapped yet somewhat fortunate.

"There is no point in feeling sorry for yourself," he affirmed. "You have to do the best you can with your abilities. You have to have determination and never give up trying."

No one could have said it better.



ODEAN OSNESS has learned to perform many duties for himself since he was stricken with polio when he was 11 years old. With the help of a transfer board, or a "sliding" board, he has learned to transfer himself from one chair to another, from his chair to a car, or from his bed to a chair. Although he has made several of the boards of different lengths for himself, he obtained the first one at the Kenny Institute in Minneapolis.

THIS ENLARGED 'SCISSORS' is an important asset for reaching those high places, according to Odean Osness, a victim of polio since the age of 11. His apartment, located in the Riverside Terrace apartment complex between Main and LaBree avenues in Thief River Falls, is one of three designed for handicapped persons. The scissors device also contains a magnet on one end for picking up small items such as pins from the floor.

Vacationers Stayed Close To Home In '80

More Minnesotans turned to their own "back yard" for a summer vacation this year.

An overwhelming 85 per cent of the resort owners responding to a recent Minnesota resort association survey noted that more Minnesotans than ever vacationed this summer at their resorts. Forty-nine per cent of the MRA membership responded to the survey.

Arnold Hewes, MRA's executive vice president, said he wasn't surprised by the survey's results. He pointed out that both MRA and the state tourism bureau have done extensive advertising and promotional work in Minnesota.

With the increase in business from Minnesota came an increase in resort business overall. Stung by the gas-panic summer of 1979, 63 per cent of the resorters said their business jumped an average of 20.3 per cent in 1980. Twenty-one per cent reported that their business hadn't changed since 1979 and 16 per cent suffered a drop in their 1980 resort business.

General increase in resort business appears directly linked to the summer's gas situation. "They (tourists) knew they could get gas no matter what the price," said one northern Minnesota resort owner.

The fact that people did stay closer to home while vacationing plus the added security of gas availability were the main reasons for increased business, resorters said. Other factors contributing to a good season were the weather, increased advertising, good fishing and the closeness of many resorts to the Twin Cities.

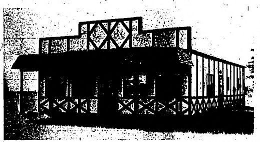
The 16 per cent whose business fell in 1980 blamed the economy, unemployment and the high cost of gas.

A majority of resort owners also found that people stayed at their resort longer. Fifty-seven percent reported that people stayed longer and did less "driving around" this past summer. However, tourists also spent less on equipment rentals, such as for boats, motors and golf carts.

Despite a good summer for the state's resorters, bookings for this fall and winter — traditionally slow times at best — have fallen off. Forty-five per cent said fall and winter bookings are "behind compared to other years," 36 per cent said they are "the same as usual" and just 19 per cent said fall and winter bookings are "ahead of normal."

Some of the state's major resorts also noted a significant decline in corporate, governmental and institutional business.

MRA represents resorts of all sizes in Minnesota. Its headquarters is in St. Paul.



"55 CLUB" is the name given to the remodeled Balvin Implement building located just south of Valley Home in Thief River Falls. The building contains a shop and storage area which will be open to anyone age 55 and older who wants to use it. Annual membership fee is 55 cents. The building was donated by Lowell Swenson as part of the Valley Home park project, remodeling was done by the area vocational-technical institute and equipment has been provided by local medical doctors.

3 From TRF Attend Meet In Washington

Three city representatives, alderman Don Goodrich, airport manager George Singer, and city clerk Jerry Wigness, attended meetings in Washington, D.C. September 22 and 23, to express their concern with regard to increasing air fares and reduction of airline carrier service.

The three persons were part of a local airline service action committee composed of representatives from cities in Bemidji, Mankato, Worthington, Fairmont, Brainerd, International Falls, Rochester, Hibbing and the metropolitan airports commission.

Meetings were conducted with the staff members of the house committee on public works and transportation, sub-committee on aviation on the afternoon on September 22. The following morning the various representatives met with the staff of the senate committee on commerce, science and transportation aviation sub-committee.

At noon, five of the congressmen from Minnesota, including Arlan Stangeland from the Seventh congressional district, listened to the concerns that the city representatives expressed. Stangeland has suggested that over-sight hearings should be conducted on the airline deregulation bill in an effort to assist the small cities in Minnesota that are all realizing a lower number of passengers along with a reduced number of flights, primarily due to the rapid increase in fares being charged the passengers.

The group from Minnesota also met with Sens. Boschwitz and Durenburger September 23. Representatives felt that they were well received by the elected congressman and senators from Minnesota and that an attempt will be made to deal with the problems that were presented.

Letters to the Editor

In reading the current propaganda concerning the new high school bond issue, I was shocked to see the effect it would have on agricultural taxes; in some cases doubling the tax payable, whereas residential taxes in some cases would decrease!

I'm all for giving our children the best when it comes to any aspect of their education, but when only a chosen few have the heaviest tax burden, I feel discriminated against. Some farm land wouldn't even produce enough to pay it's own taxes.

When it comes time to cut the school budget, the out of town students feel it first. Their late buses get cut, therefore their participation in school activities is nil, unless they can be chaperoned at their families expense. I'm now awaiting the next step of charging us for school bus rides.

I realize my complaints are less than the individuals who won't have children in the new facility and I don't have a suitable solution except make the taxes evenly distributed so the family farm is not pressured in yet another way, especially when it is so vital to our community's existence.

Certain SHOUT Stain Remover Cans Recalled

Johnson Wax (S.C. Johnson & Son Inc.) recently announced a recall of some recently manufactured 19 ounce aerosol SHOUT laundry soil and stain remover due to product seepage through a faulty side seam, according to L.R. Peterson, executive vice president for U.S. consumer products.

Cans involved began appearing in stores in June of 1980. These cans have a small drawing of a "crown" printed at the left end of the blue stripe that is part of the package's front label design. They also have an inch-wide, notched, vertical side seam. Only 19 ounce cans of aerosol SHOUT having both of these features are affected.

Peterson said the recall was issued because seepage may increase possible consumer exposure to ingestion, eye contact and flammability as cautioned on the label.

Johnson Wax recommends that consumers having such a container dispose of it carefully observing label cautions. To contact Johnson Wax for product replacement or further information, call the toll-free SHOUT consumer line, 800-558-5790. Or write to Carol Hansen, S.C. Johnson & Son, Inc., 1525 Howe Street, Racine, Wis. 53403.

Gasoline Price Still Dropping In Minnesota

Average price per gallon of gasoline in Minnesota is still dropping, according to the latest state-wide survey by the Minnesota state automobile association (AAA).

Due to conservation efforts by motorists, supplies remain abundant, which apparently is a major contributing factor to the continuing price decline.

Currently, the average price per gallon at full-service stations is $1.256 for regular, $1.356 for premium, $1.298 for unleaded, $1.354 for premium unleaded and $1.093 for diesel.

At self-service stations, the average price per gallon is $1.162 for regular, $1.229 for premium, $1.227 for unleaded and $1.277 for premium unleaded.

Meanwhile, service station hours of operation continue to be favorable as they have all summer. Motorists planning fall vacations or weekend fall-color tours will have no problem finding stations open throughout the state. Information on fall color touring can be obtained from the Minnesota department of economic development by calling 612-296-5029. Persons living outside the metropolitan area can call toll-free 1-800-652-9747.

First Concert Of Series Set Tuesday Night

William and Louise Cheadle will be at the keyboard of Lincoln high school's grand piano Tuesday at 8 p.m. for the first of five concerts sponsored by the Thief River Falls concert association in 1980-81.

The Cheadles are considered among the leading exponents of four-hand piano playing and have established themselves as one of America's foremost duos. The husband and wife team members are both prize winning students of Sascha Gorodnitzki at the Juilliard school of music and graduates of that school.

William Cheadle has received the Kosciuzko foundation national Chopin scholarship, Kresge foundation grant and the concert artist guild award. As a team the Cheadles have performed extensively throughout the eastern and midwestern parts of the United States and individually have been heard in recitals, chamber music performances and as soloists with orchestras.

Adding a local interest to the program will be a narration by Roger Vaughan, drama instructor at Northland community college, who will join with the pianists in one of their numbers entitled "Le Carnaval des Animaux". Script for the number is written by Ogden Nash.

The Cheadles are pioneers in the field of college-sponsored high school ensemble workshops and have published articles dealing with various aspects of ensembles. William is presently associate professor of piano and Louise is director of the conservatory division at Westminster Choir college in Princeton, N.J.

PIANO DUO Louise and William Cheadle will be featured Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the first concert of the season at the Lincoln high school auditorium in Thief River Falls. Admission will be by season membership only. Season memberships are available in limited number at the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce office at $13 for adults, $8 for students and $37 for families. If memberships remain available at concert time, they will be for sale at the door as a convenience to concert goers. Should any memberships still remain unsold after the concert Tuesday, they will be available for a limited time at the chamber of commerce office for the remaining four concerts of the series.

Drivers Alerted To Dangers Of Hazardous Load

Each year two billion tons of hazardous materials — chemicals, explosives, radioactive matter, and combustible gases — are transported by trucks on our highways, explains the Minnesota state automobile association (AAA). You've no doubt driven right along side these vehicles laden with materials that could be dangerous to your health but you probably paid no attention to them before. Maybe you should.

Over 100 serious highway accidents occur each year involving vehicles carrying hazardous materials cargo. Some of these accidents are precipitated by unsafe actions of passenger car operators who failed to safely interact with larger trucks on the highways. Fortunately, in many of these accidents, the hazardous cargo was not spilled on the roadway as a result of the accident of the consequences of the crashes would have been far more serious.

Vehicles carrying hazardous materials are identified on all sides with a triangular placard that gives a broad classification of the substance such as "flammable," or "explosive." These placards are described in a publication released by the AAA foundation for traffic safety. The booklet also describes what you should do in case you come upon the scene of an accident involving hazardous material-carrying vehicles.

ALC To Mark Anniversary At Convention

American Lutheran church returns October 1-7 to the site of the church body's founding assembly for a biennial convention which marks the ALC's 20th anniversary.

The ALC's 10th general convention opens Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m., with a worship service at Central Lutheran church, E. Grant St. and Fourth Ave. S., Mpls. When business sessions begin the next morning at 8:30 a.m., the 1,000 delegates, accompanied by several hundred observers, visitors and staff, will move two blocks to the municipal auditorium, E. Grant St. and Second Ave. S.

Plenary sessions will continue at the auditorium through Monday, October 6, with the convention returning to Central for its final morning's business on Tuesday, October 7.

A presidential election, consideration of several issues that bridge the concerns of church and society, review of the church body's activities during the past two years, setting priorities for the future, and adoption of a 1981 budget are among the agenda items.

Continuing work of the committee on Lutheran unity and other inter-Lutheran and ecumenical endeavors also will receive attention.

The incumbent, Dr. David W. Preus of Minneapolis, and four presidents of educational institutions have been nominated as candidates for the ALC presidency in a process conducted through ALC district conventions this spring.

The four other candidates are Dr. Charles S. Anderson, who will be installed later this month as president of Augusburg college, Minneapolis; Dr. James G. Kallas, president, Dana college, Blair, Neb.; Dr. Lloyd Svendsbye, president, Luther-Northwestern seminaries, St. Paul; and Dr. William H. Weiblen, president, Wartburg theological seminary, Dubuque, Iowa.

After a president is elected, the delegates will select a vice president from the four remaining candidates.

Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie, Minnesota Governor Albert R. Quie, the presidents of four North American Lutheran church bodies, and the chief executives of three inter-Lutheran or ecumenical organizations will address delegates. Dr. Oscar A. Anderson, the retiring president of Augusburg college, will preach at the opening service.

Delegates will also hear an address by Bishop L.E. Dlamini of the Southeastern Diocese of the Evangelical Lutheran church in South Africa.

Bill Would End Russian Grain Sales Embargo

U.S. Senate has adopted an amendment co-sponsored by Senator Rudy Boschwitz which would effectively end the embargo on the sale of grain to Russia.

By voice vote the Senate passed the amendment which will cut off federal funds used to enforce and implement the grain embargo. The amendment was added to a bill appropriating money for the departments of state, justice and commerce. That measure will now go to a conference committee to work out differences between the House and Senate. "This vote should be a clear statement to the administration that the embargo is not popular," Boschwitz said. "It has cost the farmers foreign markets and reduced their income at a time when they can least afford it. On top of the serious drought which is hurting all of rural America," he said, "the administration has continued the embargo as a part of its anti-farmer agriculture policy."

"I hope the administration will take note of this vote and not wait for final congressional action on the matter," Boschwitz said. "It is clear that rural Americans can no longer afford the embargo and the administration should put a halt to it rather than waiting for the Congress to force the issue."

"This vote was clearly a set back to the administration which has continued an unpopular policy that is hurting all of rural America and doing very little damage to the Russians," Boschwitz said.

A Journeymen Cordwainers union in New York City included a closed shop clause in its constitution in 1805, according to "Important Events in American Labor History," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Name Maruska To Zoo Board By Gov. Quie

Harveydale Maruska of Warren, a former state representative and state senator representing this area, was featured in the current issue of the Minnesota Zoological Garden Newsletter, published to promote and inform about the state zoo in Apple Valley. Maruska was recently appointed by Gov. Al Quie to membership on the state zoo board.

The article in the newsletter is as follows:

Harveydale Maruska's interest in serving on the Zoological Board stems from years of association with functions involving people, their entertainment, and their likes and dislikes. These activities include service for the past 10 years on the State Fair Board and formerly eight years in the State Legislature (1959-63); one term in the House and one in the Senate.

He has visited the zoos in San Diego, Portland and Winnipeg, and particularly mentioned the Winnipeg Zoo as an example of a very improved facility. "During the last five years, extensive renovation has been very effective in creating a pleasing, modern recreational facility."

In terms of strengths of the Minnesota Zoo, Harveydale is particularly pleased with the cordial treatment of visitors by staff and volunteers, saying, "In coming unannounced to the Zoo with my family and friends, I have found everyone to be friendly, outgoing and helpful. That's not always easy to accomplish under the stress of crowds and varying visitor needs, but it is extremely important in pleasing people and assuring their continuing support. Another strength is that the Zoo is an education in itself."

The Zoo's major weakness, according to Harveydale, is that people's expectations are not always met; their perceptions are of a traditional zoo, and this one is quite different, being modern, having expansive exhibits, and non-traditional animals. This can be overcome through the Zoo's marketing program and visitor word-of-mouth gradually building awareness of the Zoo's features among Minnesotans.

Harveydale Maruska was born on a farm in Angus, Minnesota, Polk County. He attended Warren High School and North Dakota State University, Fargo, studying Agricultural Engineering. He and his wife, Harriet, moved from Angus to Warren in 1965, and bought Quality Motors in 1969. They retain ownership of the farm and rent it. The Maruska's have three daughters, all married, two of whom live in Warren and one in Plymouth, Minnesota. Thus far, they have one grandchild.

Family activities center on public service, county fairs and gardening. The Maruskas produce several thousand mums annually.

Harveydale sees his role as a Board Member (since the Zoo is a State agency and partially funded through taxes) as a steward of taxpayer money, and to assure a unique experience for everyone who wishes to attend.

Harveydale further commented, "I'm proud of the fact that the planners thus far have done a good job of making it modern and providing a high quality experience. It's first class — in the tradition of Minnesota's education system and its State Fair (the best in the country). With limited funds, creating a first class experience is a slower process, but I believe the long run benefits are far greater. Whatever Minnesotans decide to do, they do well. The Minnesota Zoo is no exception".

"When a fellow says, 'It ain't the money, but the principle of the thing,' it's the money."

Divers Study Coral Damage By Urchins

by Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

Viewed from 2,000 feet out the window of a wind-tossed, 10-seater plane, the tiny white speck seems misplaced among these lush, palm-fringed islands, a chain of 350 emeralds glistening in the azure blue Caribbean waters for 170 miles along the coast of Panama.

The Kuna Indians, sole permanent inhabitants of the San Blas, call this snippet of land "Demar Tupu," or Ocean Island. But the people who lease it from the Kunas have nicknamed it "Ukup Tupu," or Sand Island.

This bit of tropical real estate is no Fantasy Island. With two primitive bamboo shacks and no electricity or running water, the island is a mere 3,000 square feet of arid sand and rocks, tentatively situated, like the rest of the San Blas islands, atop a series of coral reef platforms.

Fortunately, this very geological feature makes it an ideal base of operations for its tenants — a small group of young scientists from the Smithsonian tropical research institute. Within a 10-minute boat ride from the island, they can explore with snorkel or scuba gear the underwater habitats and life histories of an incredible array of sealife — from sea urchins to fishes that change sex (the latter are found abundantly on coral reefs).

By studying what is happening on and to these reefs, scientists hope to gain a better understanding of one of the most complex biological systems in the world.

Reefs are masses of calcium carbonate built up from the sea floor by the accumulation of the skeletons of a profusion of animals, especially corals, which are simple, multicellular animals. A remarkable feature of all reef-building corals is their symbiosis with single-celled algae, which actually live, conduct photosynthesis and divide within the cells of their coral hosts. This reef ecosystem supports more species of animals and plants than any other marine system. These animals and plants live in complex, competitive and sometimes symbiotic relationships with each other, providing a major source of food in the tropics.

At Demar Tupu, Smithsonian scientist Dr. Haris Lessios is trying to unravel some of these intricate reef relationships. The 29-year old Greek-born and U.S.-educated marine biologist has been investigating the impact of sea urchins on reef development.

Sea urchins are probably better known to swimmers and snorkelers as something to avoid — some of these spine-covered marine invertebrates belonging to the Echinoderm phylum can cause a nasty, though not usually poisonous, sting. Worldwide, there are more than 700 species of sea urchins, the result of millions of years of evolutionary good fortune.

Because they are not particularly mobile, sea urchins are relatively easy to study in one locale. Most important to Lessios, urchins are voracious eaters. In temperate waters — off the New England coast, for instance — they decimate large populations of kelp, a giant brown seaweed that serves as a food source for many marine creatures. The eating habits of urchins in the tropics — which include grazing on algae as well as on living or dead coral — are not well-understood.

Lessios arrives at Demar Tupu each month after a journey by car, plane and boat from his laboratory on Naos Island, located on the Pacific side of Panama. Once at the San Blas Island, he spends four and one-half hours a day, two weeks at a time, scuba diving to observe the common black sea urchin, Diadema antillarum.

To determine exactly what Diadema does to one coral species, a globe-like coral called Colpophyllia natans, Lessios is carrying out experiments 30 feet underwater on Mackerel reef, a small patch reef near Demar Tupu. The urchins are so plentiful there that they can literally cover a coral base like a prickly, black unwelcome mat. On the average, he has counted 11 urchins in every 10-square-foot area on this reef.

Hovering in the crystal clear water in wetsuit and airtank, Lessios selects two adjacent clumps of Colpophyllia. Then, he constructs a 3-foot-high wire fence around one clump of the coral. Next, he removes all the Diadema from the fenced area, carefully plucking them off the coral and surrounding ocean floor.

Fish are able to reach both sets of coral and graze on them and on the algae growing there. But because the fences have a horizontal lip, the urchins are unable to climb up and over the fences; they can reach only the unfenced coral. Each month, Lessios returns to the 13 test sites built so far and measures how much the coral has grown and how much has been eaten. The difference in size between the fenced and unfenced coral is due primarily to the urchins.

"These urchins are true gluttons," Lessios says. "There are very definite indications that they inflict major damage on this type of coral, perhaps because Colpophyllia is softer than most other types of coral."

From hours of underwater observations and measurements, Lessios has pieced together this scenario: The urchins move onto a coral base that has already been damaged or killed by something else and begin to gobble away at the rate of a quarter of an ounce of calcium carbonate — the material making up the skeleton of the living coral — per animal per day. Lessios came to this conclusion after dissecting the stomachs of many urchins.

"This may not sound like much, but at this rate, each urchin can eat away a few inches of the coral base every couple of years," he notes.

One dramatic result of this gluttony is the formation of mushroom-shaped coral where a "cap" of live coral sits on a precariously slender calcium carbonate "stem." A strong wave can topple coral that has taken on this form, frequently resulting in its death.

On another nearby reef, Lessios has found very few Diadema and, perhaps not surprisingly, Colpophyllia fares much better there. "That Colpophyllia does so much better on the second reef is additional evidence that urchins are among its chief enemies," he says, "although other factors can also damage coral."

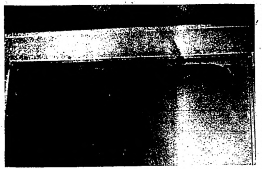
Although Lessios has found major damage to the coral from Diadema, he is not convinced that sea urchins are always detrimental to all kinds of coral.

"Some scientists have suggested that urchins may actually be beneficial in some cases," he says, "because they eat filamentous algae which can choke young coral colonies as they begin to grow on the ocean floor and try to establish themselves. But urchins are indiscriminate grazers. Whether they cause damage to coral may depend on how many urchins are in a given area."

To determine whether patterns of coral abundance are correlated with urchin populations, Lessios is expanding his fenced studies to seven other species of coral using other reefs around Demar Tupu. These long-term studies may take two years or more.

An assignment in such exotic environs might well make other scientists envious. But between diving and daily housekeeping chores, Lessios says he rarely has time to appreciate the beauty of his surroundings. And always there is a constant battle to keep the shoreline of the Tiny, man-made island from returning to the ocean.

"Our hope is that these studies along with those conducted by others will give us more information about the various components of the reef ecosystem," Lessios says, "so that some day we may say with some confidence that we understand it."



MOST OF THE GLASS WINDOWS in the Falls Mall showed damage similar to the pane above following the fire Monday evening. The heavy glass in large windows used extensively throughout the mall sagged in the heat and separated near the top of the frame. The condition created an added hazard for firemen and business owners who sought entrance to the building while the fire was being fought.

Past Challengers Of 2-Party System Rarely Had Effect

by David M. Mayfield
Smithsonian News Service

John Anderson's independent bid for the White House places him in the company of a long line of presidential contenders dating back to 1832 who campaigned outside the two-party system. Though many of these politicians achieved considerable sway over the course of American history, few of them — very few — were successful at the polls.

The name James B. Weaver hardly springs to mind today, but in the 1892 presidential contest, he campaigned against the gilded grip that many felt Eastern bankers and industrialists then held on the nation's economy. A general in the Union army during the Civil War, Weaver was a popular figure whose platform and influence during the election sparked wide interest for the first time in an agenda of progressive reforms. And yet, Weaver, a Populist, came in third place with nine per cent of the vote, losing to the Democratic candidate, Grover Cleveland.

More recently, of course, George Wallace captured the attention of the press and voters with his "common man" themes, but he, too, fared no better then third with 14 per cent of the 1968 popular vote.

"With rate exceptions, third-party and independent candidates have been irrelevant to the outcome of the presidential elections," according to Frederick S. Voss, a historian at the Smithsonian's national portrait gallery and a contributor to "Every Four Years", a new book about the presidency. "But they still keep on running," Voss says, "some simply as a lark and others in dead earnest."

Perhaps what motivates the also rans are, in fact, those rare exceptions. The Republican party, the party Anderson sidestepped to run on his own this year, is after all "the greatest success story in the history of American third parties," Voss points out.

Founded in 1854 in a rural Wisconsin church by dissatisfied Whigs and Democrats, the Republicans by the election of 1856 had become a major party on the strength of their anti-slavery platform. And just four years later, the Republicans attained the dream of all minor parties — the election of a president, no less than Abraham Lincoln.

In the 1884 election, some historians said, a Prohibitionist candidate was one of the decisive forces in electing the Democratic nominee. This is what happened: In pivotal New York state, John Pierce St. John (the Prohibitionist) tallied 25,016 votes — largely drawn from Republican ranks. In so doing, he took just enough support away from the GOP's controversial nominee, James G. Blaine, to tip the Empire state and ultimately the presidency to Cleveland.

One other rate case: Teddy Roosevelt's 1912 "Bull Moose" campaign against his old political protege, William Howard Taft, proved a far cry from the usual third-party effort. Roosevelt, who had come to view Taft as a traitor to the Republican progressive spirit, actually outpolled Taft but not the Democratic nominee Woodrow Wilson, who entered the White House with a total less than the combined tally of the two old political allies, 6.3 million votes to 7.6 million.

Whatever the future holds, the past indicates that the number, influence and vote-drawing power of minor party candidates tends to rise and fall with fluctuations in the nation's economy and security. "In times of stress and ferment, minor parties emerge and flourish," Voss says. Weaver's widely supported 1892 crusade against the excesses of the Gilded Age, for example, contrasts with the 1928 election, a time of prosperity, when the six minor-party candidates won a combined total of only two per cent of the vote.

"The sudden collapse of euphoria after 1929 and the subsequent onset of the national depression, however, brought a resurgence in the fortunes of minor parties," Voss points out. "In 1932 — even while Franklin Roosevelt pushed on to resounding victory — third, fourth and fifth party candidates had once again found an audience."

The have continued strong ever since, and with the complexity of U.S. issues and problems growing each year, Voss predicts that "they will run in ever-greater numbers." In 1980, the federal election commission reports, 32 candidates are registered as presidential contenders under federal law requiring that each raise or spend at least $5,000. Among them are Socialist, Communist, Independent and Libertarian candidates. Besides these hopefuls, there are dozens of other would-be White House occupants who need not register because of the limited scope of their campaigns. (Some candidates actually have no dream of winning; the run to educate the public about their views.)

But the story of the also rans is not all trends and statistics. It cuts across some rather colorful characters in American history, including one William Wirt, who in 1832 became the nation's first third party candidate, in the modern sense of the term.

Although not truly interested in seeking elective office, Wirt nevertheless accepted the nomination of the Anti-Masonic party that year because of his deep-seated antipathy to Andrew Jackson, whom he considered a demagogue and despot. But Wirt never managed to get out and campaign, admitting that he had none of the "captivating arts and manners of professional seekers of popularity." He even tried to withdraw from the race when the national Republicans refused to back him and nominated, instead, Henry Clay, but the Anti-Masons persuaded Wirt to at least stay on the ballot.

With the anti-Jackson vote split between himself and Clay, the first third party candidate was bitterly disappointed over "Old Hickory's" election. . . and also relieved that his venture into presidential politics was over. "A culprit pardoned at the gallows," he later said, "could not have been more light-hearted."

The first woman to run for the White House — Victoria Woodhull — mounted what must be one of the bizarre campaigns in U.S. election year history. No proper Victorian lady she, Woodhull outlined her principles to a New York audience in 1871, calling not only for the franchise for women, Voss says, but something considerably more radical. "Yes, I am a free lover," she told her audience, declaring it her "inalienable constitutional right" to love whom she may, when she may, and "to change that love every" if she so pleased.

Compared to Victoria Woodhull, who eventually left the States to marry an English banker, the next woman to seek the presidency, Belva Ann Lockwood, seemed prim and retiring. Adept at circumventing academic and professional barriers standing in the way of women in the 19th century, Lockwood, a lawyer, entered that already interesting 1884 campaign against Cleveland, Blaine and St. John. Nominated by the National Equal Rights party, she viewed her candidacy as a means of publicizing the feminist cause. Ignoring Blaine altoghther, Lockwood quipped that the real contest was between herself and Cleveland. The results? Cleveland, 4,874,986. Blaine, 4,851,981. Lockwood, 4,149.

Then there were the 20th-century campaigns of Socialist Eugene Debs: he threw his hat in the ring five times. Unlike Wirt's earlier campaign, Debs ran vigorously each election year, although he knew, according to Voss, that he stood little chance of winning. His goal was to educate the public, but if he never did succeed in placing socialism in the mainstream of American politics, Debs certainly added a curious chapter to election lore.

Sentenced to prison in 1918 for his anti-war speeches, Debs ran his campaign from the jail cell. "And so," Voss notes, "American voters faced the novel choice of casting their lot with a convict. Amazingly enough, nearly one million of them did."

CANKER SORES

The canker sore (or apthous ulcer) is one of the best known and most persistently annoying dental lesions. It is small and whitish and may occur on the gums, cheeks or tongue. It appears singly and in clusters. A blister usually forms first, without notice, then breaks to form an open sore or canker. Then the acute pain begins.

The open canker sore is especially sensitive to touch and to hot or spicy foods. Fortunately, the lifetime of the canker sore normally runs its course in about a week or ten days.

No good treatment is known for its cure at present. There's not much you can do except to make sure you avoid irritating foods. Some people are especially prone to canker sores. They seem to run in families and there may be a connection between canker attacks and emotional stress, though there is still no definite information on the cause of this puzzling disorder.

A dentist can treat canker sores to relieve the pain. However, certain kinds of cankers tend to persist or come back in spite of any treatment now known.

Cut storage losses in pit and bunker silos
Corn silage stored in pit and bunker silos can lose 20% of the dry matter because of mold, run-off, and excessive heating. Laboratory data has proven that Crop Cure can dramatically reduce this feed value loss. Farm trials in pit and bunker type silos have shown that Crop Cure can cut up to 10 inches of spoilage off the top, reduce spoilage on the sides and front as silage is fed out, and cut down on run-off. So when you're putting up corn silage this year, use Crop Cure. The Number 1 silage preservative for pit and bunker silos.

Thief River Falls' 33-21 football win over Moorhead Saturday not only got the Prowlers and their fans excited, but it also left a strong impression on the Moorhead fans, who saw their Spuds lose to the Prowlers for the first time since 1940. The following letter, addressed to the Thief River Falls Times sports editor, was received Tuesday:

Dear Sir: As a member of the faculty at Moorhead high school and an ardent follower of our athletic endeavors, I must express my (and others) tremendous appreciation of athletic accomplishment displayed by the Prowlers' football victory over our Spuds this past Saturday evening.

Coach (John) Schmitz and his staff must be congratulated on the excellent preparation they provided their team. These young men were highly motivated, and they had a game plan that was superb!

The Prowlers' excellent teamwork and dedication to the job paid off with a well-deserved victory over, what we believe to be, a darn good football team.

Congratulations. Keep up the good work. We'll be watching your future efforts with a great deal of interest. Sincerely, Chuck Watson.

Grand Rapids Wins In Overtime

Grand Rapids, a 30-6 winner over Thief River Falls back on September 12, pulled out a key 14-7 overtime decision over Hibbing Friday in a match-up of unbeaten Northern Lakes Conference high school football teams at Legion Field in Grand Rapids.

And it was quite a finish, according to the Grand Rapids Herald-Review.

Hibbing fans were in an uproar when it was ruled that fullback Scott Read of the Bluejacks did not reach the end zone on a fourth down play that ended the overtime session.

"Referee Steve Kerzie, the official who had to make the tough decision, agrees that the top of the ball was over the goal line," reported the Herald-Review, "but said that Read's knee hit the ground before he slid forward for what Hibbing players were certain was a touchdown."

Players from both teams were jumping in the air with joy after the play. Grand Rapids thought it had won the game; Hibbing was sure it still had a shot at tying or winning with the expected conversion attempt coming up.

Tony Kellin, the Indians' fine quarterback–defensive back, came up to make the stop on the game-ending play.

Grand Rapids won it when Jim Malwitz scored from six yards out on the Indians' second snap of overtime. Jim Altobell added the conversion kick.

Hibbing, limited to just one first down in the second half, marched 79 yards for a second quarter touchdown, with Read picking up 53 of those yards on eight carries. The drive was helped along by a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty called against the Grand Rapids coaching staff.

An 11-yard end-around touchdown run by Greg Erickson netted Grand Rapids a third quarter tie.

Malwitz, who rushed for 142 yards against the Prowlers and had 525 yards through the Indians' first three games before sitting out last week, was held to 85 yards on 23 carries against Hibbing.

Northwomen Lose 4-1 To Fergus Falls

Fergus Falls defeated Northland 4-1 Tuesday in a Northwest Division community college volleyball match played in Thief River Falls.

The Spartans won 15-11, 15-8, 12-15, 15-3 to spoil the first Northwest Division-counting match of the season for the Northwomen.

"I was pleased with part of the game we were having trouble with before — receiving serves," pointed out Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "But then we fell apart in a couple of other areas; we did not serve very well and our defense was not very good."

There were some bright spots, though, said Jacobson. "The first and third games were our best. Even though we lost the first game we really played well. That last game we just lost all concentration."

CO-CAPTAIN OF the 1980 Lincoln high school volleyball team, senior Marlys Huot set up a spike attempt for a teammate Monday during the Prowlers' 18-4, 18-3 win over Bemidji in the Lincoln gym. Thief River Falls, 4-6 for the year, will be idle until Tuesday when the Prowlers play Marshall County Central in a 7:30 p.m. match at Newfolden.

Volleyball Team Is 2-0 Winner Over Lumberjills

A question mark at the beginning of the season, the play of the Thief River Falls bench was the highlight of the match Monday as the Prowlers defeated Bemidji 18-4, 18-3 in high school volleyball action.

Senior Sue Gere, along with juniors Jill Matson, Wendy Erickson and Tara Nicholson all came off the bench in the second game and played well for the Prowlers, who improved their season record to 4-6.

Thief River Falls slowly built a 6-2 second game lead before Nicholson served the Prowlers to a 9-3 edge and Marlys Huot, one of the few starters still on the floor for the Prowlers, made it 17-3 with her serves that were aided by a pair of spikes by Erickson.

Another Erickson spike returned the ball to Thief River Falls and Gere served the final point.

Thief River Falls quickly established control in the first game when Huot served the Prowlers to a 6-3 lead. Stacy Ehrenstrom, who is co-captain of the Prowlers with Huot, took the hosts from 10-3 to 17-3 with her serves before Thief River Falls misplayed the ball at the net.

"I was pleased with the bench," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss after the match. "In terms of playing a team game and the bench, it was a good night. But there weren't that many really great offensive or defensive plays."

Thief River Falls hit 90 per cent of its serves in the first game and upped that to 92 per cent in the second contest.

"Serves don't win the match, but you have to serve 85 per cent or better to win," noted Stauss.

Thief River Falls junior varsity improved its record to 5-4 with an 18-2, 18-2 victory over Bemidji, but the Lincoln C squad remained winless in eight starts as Bemidji rallied for a 10-18, 18-0, 18-15 decision.

The Prowlers will wait until Tuesday to play Marshall County Central at Newfolden.

TRF Cross Country Meet Set Thursday

Annual Lincoln high school cross country meet, this year renamed the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters invitational, will be held Thursday beginning at 4 p.m. on the Thief River Falls Country Club golf course.

Invitations have been sent to Roseau, Crookston, East Grand Forks, Grafton, Bagley, Detroit Lakes, Park Rapids, Grand Forks Central, Fort Totten and Grand Forks Red River.

The meet will feature five races, with junior high runners starting at 4 p.m.; girls junior varsity 4:20; girls varsity 4:40; boys junior varsity 5; and boys varsity 5:20. The junior high and girls races will cover two-mile courses. The boys varsity and junior varsity teams will run three miles.

East Grand Forks is considered the odds-on favorite in the girls varsity race, an edge that belongs to Grand Forks Central in the boys varsity division.

"If we run really well we should be right up there with Central," pointed out first-year Thief River Falls coach Lynn Dyer. "Central definitely isn't unbeatable."

The race will be the Prowlers' eighth outing of the 1980 season that features 10 scheduled starts. But it's the only time all fall the Prowlers will compete on their home course.

Spectators are welcome.

Prowlers Start NWAC Schedule At Bemidji

Surprising Thief River Falls, 4-1 through the nonconference portion of its 1980 high school football season, will begin a month-long string of Northwest Athletic Conference games Friday when the Prowlers renew their long-time rivalry with Bemidji. The 7:30 p.m. game on the campus of Bemidji State University will serve as the Lumberjacks' homecoming contest.

While Bemidji tries to regroup after dropping an unexpected 20-13 NWAC decision at Fergus Falls last week, Thief River Falls continues to bask in the glory of its stunning 33-21 victory over a Moorhead team the Prowlers hadn't beaten since 1940.

"The kids are still feeling high as a kite," smiled Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz as he began practice preparation for Bemidji.

Pessimists might warn against a Thief River Falls letdown following the emotional win over Moorhead. A year ago the Prowlers, 2-3 through their nonconference schedule, opened NWAC competition with a 22-21 upset victory over unbeaten and No. 2-ranked Bemidji. But Thief River Falls they lost three straight to Fergus Falls 28-22, East Grand Forks 20-18 and Crookston 28-8 to finish 3-6. Thief River Falls coaches acknowledged the fact that conference champion Crookston had better personnel, but they were disappointed in the losses to the Otters and GreenWave.

However, Schmitz isn't overly concerned about the problem of a letdown this week. "I know it's possible," he said. "I just hope they (Prowlers) realize we're going against another good ball club Friday. Last week we made no mistakes and won the ball game. If we would have made mistakes we would have lost. It'll be no different this week."

Bemidji will carry a 3-2 record into the game, with wins over Mid-State Conference foes Crosby-Ironton 21-0, Detroit Lakes 19-12 and Park Rapids 20-2, but losses to Little Falls 14-0 and Fergus Falls , surprising in light of the fact that the Otters hadn't scored a point in three weeks after a season opening victory over Detroit-Lakes.

"Fergus Falls is tough to play on their homecoming; the really get fired up," noted Schmitz as he tried to explain the Otters' victory over the Lumberjacks.

Bemidji's slot-I offense centers around 170-pound fullback Pat Erhart, who has rushed for 379 yards, and 162-pound Tailback Mark Beer, who has added 281 yards to the Bemidji ground game. Senior John Herath and junior Daryl Strunk have both had turns quarterbacking the Lumberjacks.

A 5-2 Bemidji defense is anchored by "pretty solid linebackers," said Schmitz of 210-pound Erich Kemp and 165-pound Todd Heidricks.

Thief River Falls' option offense was in high gear against Moorhead Saturday as the Prowlers racked up 406 yards — nearly surprising the 465-yard total they acquired in their three previous meetings against the Spuds.

Quarterback Scott Wiebolt continues to lead the Thief River Falls ground game with 477 yards. He averages nine yards per carry. Fullback Scott Kezar has 327 yards and a 6.1 average; halfback Tom Ose has 295 yards and a 5.9 average; and halfback Dan Odegaard has 171 yards and a 4.5 average.

Friday will start the Prowlers' quest for their first Northwest Athletic Conference football title since they shared the crown with Bemidji and Crookston in 1972. But Schmitz isn't about to get caught up in the pennant race just yet.

"We'll just take them one game at a time," he offered. "We don't have to worry about the conference (title) yet."

After visiting Bemidji the Prowlers will entertain Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks before finishing the year at Crookston.

In other NWAC action this week, Crookston, a 32-12 winner at Breckenridge last night in an unusual Tuesday night game, will host East Grand Forks Saturday. The Green Wave shut out Breckenridge 21-0 last Thursday. Fergus Falls will be at Moorhead for a nonconference game Friday.

Northland To Visit Hibbing

Winless Hibbing is next on the agenda of the Northland community college football team. The Northmen and Cardinals will meet Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Hibbing in a Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) Northern Division game.

Itasca shut out Hibbing last Saturday 14-0 on a pair of fourth quarter touchdown passes from back-up quarterback Kerry Hecimovich to Bryan Lorensen. Hecimovich was playing in place of starter Mark Hoffman, who suffered a separated shoulder late in the first half of the ball game.

Northland, meanwhile, went on the road for the first time this season last week and came back from Ely a 26-3 loser to Vermilion. The trip to Hibbing isn't much shorter, and Northland head coach John Helley says, "That bus ride takes a lot out of you. But I think we can bounce back. Our defensive line is playing outstanding football right now; we have to get our defensive backs to tighten up," he explained, recalling that Vermilion scored four times on long pass plays.

Elsewhere in the Northern Division this week, surprising Fergus Falls will face Itasca at Grand Rapids, Brainerd visits Crookston, and Golden Valley Lutheran makes the long trip to Virginia to play Mesabi. Vermilion draws an MJCAA bye this week.

Fergus Falls, Crookston and Golden Valley Lutheran remain unbeaten in MJCAA play, but the Spartans, who beat Brainerd Saturday, are 3-0 while the Trojans and Royals are both 1-0-1 after playing to a 7-7 stalemate last week. Fergus Falls will be in Thief River Falls Saturday, Oct. 11 for Northland's homecoming game.

Nordics Face Unbeaten Bears Saturday Night

Beaten 26-8 by Argyle last week, Marshall County Central will try to remain in contention for the Top of the State Conference nine-man high school football title Saturday when the Nordics face a do-or-die situation against undefeated league leader Hallock.

The game at Newfolden will be the second meeting of the 1980 season between the two. The Bears shut out the Nordics 14-0 in the season opener at Hallock, a game that went into the books as a nonconference contest.

A Hallock win Saturday would knock Marshall County Central out of title contention. However, the Nordics could cause a three-way first place traffic jam if they end the Bears' unbeaten status.

Argyle, scheduled to play at Stephen Friday, would benefit from a Marshall County Central win. The Eagles would be in position to share first place with the Bears and Nordics.

Tri-County high school of Karlstad will be at Greenbush to complete this week's schedule. Last week Hallock beat Greenbush 31-8 and Stephen clobbered Tri-County 62-18.

In North Tri County Conference nine-man play Friday, Goodridge will be at Gonvick, Erskine at Oklee, Plummer at Clearbrook, McIntosh-Winger at Grygla and Middle River at Mentor.

It was a round of lopsided games in the North Tri County Conference last week as Oklee shut out Plummer 38-0, Middle River blanked Erskine 26-0, Clearbrook out-scored Goodridge 44-20, Gonvick drilled Grygla 44-0 and McIntosh-Winger handled Mentor 46-0.

Gary Reginbal of Stephen is the current scoring leader in the Top of the State Conference with 48 points; followed by Teammate Doug Schindele and Scott Labine of Argyle with 42 apiece; Scott Nordling of Hallock 30; Dan Mooney of Greenbush and Bill Johnson of Marshall County Central with 28 apiece.

Scott McKeever of Middle River is the leading scorer in the North Tri County Conference with 58 points, followed by Steve Rude, McIntosh-Winger, 52; Richard Bronken, Oklee, 48; Rodney Hill, Clearbrook, 44; and Clint Nelson, McIntosh-Winger, 38.

Spuds Defeat Swim Team

Moorhead showed its power in Section 3 girls high school swimming Tuesday with a 96-73 dual meet victory over visiting Thief River Falls.

The Spuds took every swimming event during the 10-race meet, including double wins by Georgia Corner, 2:24.6 in the 200-yard individual medley and 1:15.9 in the 100-yard backstroke; Holly Corner, 26.3 in the 50-yard freestyle and 1:07.7 in the 100-yard butterfly; and Judi Dalley, 57.1 in the 100-yard butterfly and 1:07.9 in the 100-yard backstroke.

Only Thief River Falls breakthrough in the Moorhead string of success was a 1-2 finish in diving by Brenda Lund, who accumulated 256.8 points, and Lori Swanson, who scored 195.0.

The defeat dropped Thief River Falls' dual meet season record to 4-2. Thief River Falls will host Fargo South Thursday at 5 p.m. in the Franklin middle school pool. The Prowlers will compete in the Fergus Falls invitational Saturday beginning at 12 noon.

Minnesota Outdoors

by Stu and Dee Mann

Autumn's excitement comes to a thrilling climax as our woods and forests burst into a multi-colored picture. There are changes in our lakes, too. For the walleye fisherman, the frog migration is a signal for some of the best fishing of the year.

After the first nippy frost, the frogs head for hibernation on the bottom of the lakes. This migration lasts through the month of November with mild weather.

There is a reception committee waiting to greet the frog when they enter the lakes as the walleyes come in close to share where there are sandy bottoms to banquet on the frogs.

Many of the lakes which offer slow walleye fishing during the summer months perk up in September, October and November. In northern Minnesota most of the lakes in the Park Rapids area are excellent in the fall of the year. Other excellent lakes are Big Minnie, Leech and Mille Lacs.

In a consumer product hazard listing produced by the U.S. consumer product safety commission, biking ranked No. 1, baseball No. 4, basketball No. 12, snow skiing No. 41, ice skating No. 51, tennis and badminton No. 61, golf No. 72 and snowmobiling No. 86.

An estimated 6.4 million new cases of eye disease occur each year.

TRF Native Named To UND Hall of Fame

Eight new members will be inducted into the University of North Dakota athletic hall of fame Saturday during the annual meeting of the UND national letterwinner's club in Grand Forks, according to athletic director Carl Miller.

"These eight men represent high achievements of our athletic stars of the past and cover a wide range of activities since leaving UND. We are extremely proud to induct these men to our UND athletic hall of fame," said Miller.

Newest members of the hall are Lloyd M. Amick of Eugene, Oregon; Gordon G. (Ginny) Christian of Hibbing; Gordon F. (Boomer) Dablow of Columbus, Ind.; Mark B. Foss of Fargo, N.D.; Arjan Gelling of Vancouver, B.C.; Donald A. Loepp of Petoskey, Mich.; Ralph L. Pierce of Hyannis, Mass; and Donald F. Ross of Roseau.

Induction ceremony will follow the annual meeting of the UND letterwinner's club at the Westward Ho Motel, which begins at 8 a.m. with breakfast for the ex-Sioux letterwinners.

Gordon G. (Ginny) Christian ranks as one of North Dakota's all-time hockey greats and is known as one of the pioneers of Sioux hockey. A native of Warroad, Ginny's playing feats earned him a place in the UND scoring record books. During his 1947-50 Sioux career he averaged scoring slightly over a goal a game. In 1949 he was named to the All-America second team and Sioux most valuable player. He was a member of the 1956 U.S. Olympic hockey team that won the Silver Medal. He also played on the 1955 and 1958 U.S. National Teams in world tournaments. Christian is in the construction business at Hibbing where he resides with his wife and two sons.

Gordon F. (Boomer) Dablow, a native of Thief River Falls, was a Sioux All-North Central Conference football selection three times at guard, 1930-32, and twice in basketball as a guard, 1931-33. He played on Sioux NCC champion football teams that won 24, lost 3 and tied two. After leaving UND he worked for Jewel Tea Co., served in the Army as major in World War II and when he retired in 1976 was vice president of Cosco Inc. in Indiana. One of his two sons, Darral, was a Sioux football center in the mid 1960's. Dablow and his wife now live at Columbus, Ind.

Donald F. Ross ranks as one of North Dakota's greatest hockey defensemen. He earned All-America honors twice — in 1963 and again in 1965. He also was named to the All WCHA team and served as team captain his senior year. He was a leader of the 1963 UND team that won the national hockey championship. Between his junior and senior seasons at UND he was a member of the 1964 U.S. Olympic hockey team. He graduated from UND in 1966 with an elementary education degree, taught in St. Paul Park, two years and player-coach for the semi-pro hockey team at Klagenfurt, Austria, winning two Austrian titles. He presently is associated with his father in the hardware business in his home town of Roseau.

The eight new members of the UND Athletic Hall of Fame bring its membership to 55.

Trapping Permit Required For Red Lake WMA

With the opening of trapping seasons approaching, area trappers are reminded that permits to trap for all species of furbearing animals on the Red Lake wildlife management area (Red Lake game refuge) will be required this year. In recent years, permits to trap on this area have been required only for beaver and otter.

According to Phil Watt, manager of the area, the primary reason for this change is to obtain better information on the status of furbearer populations within the unit, and to establish closer contact with the trappers. There is no intention at this time to limit the number of permits, and it seems unlikely that it will become necessary in the near future.

Permit trappers will be required to submit reorts on numbers, species, sex and age of furbearers taken. This data will be assembled and made available to the trappers, through the report of no individual trapper will be made available to any other.

Trappers are also reminded that the danger of contracting Tularemia when skinning or handling wild animals, particularly beaver and muskrats, may still be great and extra care in skinning and handling pelts is recommended.

Trappers or others desiring further information regarding boundaries of the Red Lake wildlife management area, trapping permits, or other regulations in effect for the area may phone (218) 783-6861 or write: Phil Watt, Manager, Red Lake Wildlife Management Area, Box 100, Roosevelt, MN 56673.

EARLY SUCCESS during the 1980 archery season was met by Mark Forsberg, 16, of Thief River Falls, who shot this buck about dusk on opening day from a tree stand north of Newfolden. Mark, who was hunting with Bruce Johnson of Thief River Falls, used a compound bow with 45-pound pull and made a heart shot on the animal which was running about 20 yards away.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Olson were Saturday supper guests of Mrs. Tilda Nelson and Jack in Thief River Falls.

Vernon Dokkin was a Monday forenoon coffee guest at the Pete Bradley home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Stolp of Thief River Falls were Wednesday evening visitors at the Ervin Olson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Inar Mikkelson left Saturday and drove through the Bagley area to view the lovely fall colors, going on to their lake home at Park Rapids to spend overnight. They returned home Sunday evening.

We were sorry to hear that Mrs. Jens (Ella) Kierk had the misfortune of breaking her other hip recently, having barely recovered a first break. She is a former resident of Norden, now living in Colorado. For those wishing to send cards, her address is 5945 Ward Road, Arvada, Colorado 80004. We were also saddened to hear that Paul Furuseth, who has been feeling good to the point of remodeling their home, was hospitalized Sunday with apparent heart trouble. At this writing, he is still in intensive care at Northwestern hospital in Thief River. Best wishes and prayers go out to these folks.

Mrs. Gordon Olson, Jane Olson of Bemidji, and Mrs. Ray Berg and Sandy of Helgeland were Saturday noon coffee guests at the home of Mrs. Lilas Klefstad.

Mrs. Kendall Jenson was a Friday visitor at the Leland Nelson home in Sanders.

TOM MICKELSON, 12, Goodridge, pets his "favorite fuzzy friend" in the riding corral during his recent stay at Camp Courage, near Maple Lake. Camp Courage's communication disorder session for speech and hearing impaired children combines daily therapy sessions with recreational activities to help children with communication disabilities overcome barriers to communication, build self-confidence and develop better self-understanding. The camp is operated by Courage Center, which is supported by local United Ways. Courage Center, headquartered in Minneapolis, provides services in medical and vocational rehabilitation, education and recreation to Upper Midwestern children and adults with physical disabilities and speech, hearing and vision disorders.

Homecoming At UND Features Reunions, Game

More than 50 special reunions, dedications, banquets and other activities fill the 1980 University of North Dakota homecoming calendar, October 3-4. Student activities will include a torch march, trivia bowl, stationary float contest, the Homecarney and a dance.

Other highlights for the weekend should be the dedications of Starcher hall and the Wilson Laird Core and Sample library; the unveiling of a bust of UND alumnus and arctic explorer Vilhjalmur Stefansson by modern-day adventurer Maxie Anderson; the homecoming kick-off luncheon with Anderson discussing and showing slides of his recent flight across the United States; the Sioux awards banquet where the UND alumni association will present its highest honor to Marijo Shide, Glenn Lee and Vic Rose; the 75th anniversary of the UND medical school; the UND-NDSU football clash and the traditional homecoming party.

Outgrowing facilities at the Westward Ho motel, the traditional homecoming party has been moved to the Grand Forks armory, with a buffet dinner available for $9 per person from 7 to 9 p.m., and dancing to the big band sounds of Dick King and his orchestra from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. UND alumni, faculty, staff and students are expected to join with the Grand Forks community in one of the year's social highlights.

Special reunions for the classes of 1955 and 1965 will take place, along with a gathering of all former members of the UND alumni association's board of directors. Members of the university chorus will celebrate its founding some 20 years ago. Nursing, geology and aviation alumni are expected to gather for special events, and Beta Theta Pi fraternity has planned several activities in its attempt to reorganize an active chapter on the UND campus. Several other fraternities have also planned special activities.

Tickets for luncheons and banquets, along with a complete listing of activities may be obtained from the UND alumni office, located in room 405 Twamley hall or by calling 777-2611.

SMOKE DAMAGE as well as damage caused by heat is apparent in this photo taken following the fire which extensively damaged the Falls Mall Monday evening. Damage became more extensive as the heat rose inside the building. Note the melted letter at the top of this store sign on a wall on the first floor. Second floor damage was not as extensive as on the third floor where heat was trapped under the roof and intensified.

District Meet Of MAC Here On October 7

Representatives of co-ops in this region will attend a district meeting of the Minnesota Association of Cooperatives (MAC) in Thief River Falls Tuesday night (October 7).

The meeting is scheduled for the Best Western Inn and will begin at 8:30 p.m., according to Leonard Hupka, Argyle, MAC director for District Seven.

Co-op leaders from Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake, and Roseau counties will take part in the meeting.

Edward E. Slettom, St. Paul, MAC executive director and Allen J. Gerber, executive assistant, will report on MAC activities and legislation affecting cooperatives. A film about cooperatives will be shown.

Open House During Parents' Day At UMC

A campus-wide open house will be the principal drawing card on Parents' Day this year at the University of Minnesota — Crookston (UMC).

Fifth annual event, open to the public as well as to parents of currently enrolled students, will be conducted Saturday (October 4) with registration beginning at 10 a.m. in the new food service building.

A welcoming and general information session will follow at 10:30 a.m. All academic and student service facilities will be open for inspection from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. Group tours will be organized. Visitors will be shown through the recently opened dining hall, the new UMC library (an addition to Kiehle building), and through Bede hall, which was formerly the food service facility on campus until it was remodeled into a student union this summer.

The day's program will continue with a home football game at Lincoln field. The 1:30 contest pits the UMC Trojans against the Red Raiders from Brainerd community college. Parents of UMC gridders will be introduced and honored at halftime.

A cafeteria lunch will be served from noon to 1 p.m. in the second floor dining room of the food service building. There will also be a post-game social hour, starting at about 4 p.m., with free refreshments being served in the Bede hall ballroom (on the second floor).

Ten-Part Series On Vikings To Be Aired

For most people, the word "Vikings" summons up vivid images of blond, seagoing warriors adorned in nightmarish horned helmets and furs, wielding double-bladed axes as they rape, pillage and burn their way across defenseless Europe. Further reflection may produce a grudging acknowledgement that their oceanic explorations of the globe were extraordinary ventures, and people with some background in art history may summon up a memory that the Vikings did turn out some attractive wood carvings. By and large, however, their mark on history is a violent and bloody one. Even many of their contributions to the modern English language — words like "berserk," for example — mirror this enduring, unendearing image.

Recent archaeological discoveries, however, seem to indicate that the Vikings have been victims of a thousand years of bad press, and that there was much in their civilization which was beautiful, constructive and heroic. In a ten-part public television series, "Vikings!", Magnus Magnusson sifts the evidence in an attempt to recreate this lost but still-vivid world, and to explore the character of these early Scandinavians, whose torches cast such a long shadow across Europe for almost 300 years.

"Vikings!," will premiere Saturday, Oct. 4, at 8 p.m. on Prairie Public Television.

"Vikings!" is written and narrated by Magnusson, himself an Icelandic-born descendant of Viking stock. Magnusson, one of Great Britain's best-known television personalities, freely admits that his aim is to present his notorious ancestors not as mere blood thirsty pirates, but as contributors to the world's culture and technology. "It is as much a matter of emphasis as anything else," Magnusson says. "Less emphasis on the raiding, more on the trading; less on the pillage, more on the poetry and the artistry; less on the terror, more on the technology of these determined and dynamic people of Denmark, Norway and Sweden and the positive impact they had on the countries they affected."

"Vikings!" begins by exploring Viking art and mythology (introducing such fearsome gods as Odin and Thor) through museum treasures, Icelandic sagas and other contemporary records. The popular image of the Vikings as murderous marauders is disputed by the revelations or archaeology and modern scholarship which place them in the realm of early cultures in the northern world, visualizing the hardy Norsemen as emotionally and economically driven to worldwide commercial expansion.

The series then follows a more or less chronological format in which Magnusson traces the extraordinary Viking voyages throughout the northern lands, to Canada in the west and to the Islamic world in the east. Acting as guide to the Vikings sites and treasures, Magnusson sails up the fjords of Norway, investigates the reconstruction of Viking ships, metalwork and wood carvings, reads fascinating runes on many a Northern headstone and describes the stylized depiction of Norse battles on land and sea.

"Vikings!" was filmed in Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Iceland, Greenland, Russia, Turkey, Italy and the United States, as well as several locations in the United Kingdom, including the Isle of Man, Orkney, Shetland and Ireland. The production team received cooperation from many national museums, and nearly all the principal items traveling to the United States for the October "Vikings!" exhibition at New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art have been filmed.

Magnusson's companion volume to the series, also entitled "Vikings!", will be published this fall by E. P. Dutton & Co.

MSU Student Financial Aid Up $1.5 Million

Moorhead state university students will receive over $7 million in financial aid this year, $1.5 million more than last year, according to university financial aid director David Anderson.

"That figure could exceed $8 million by the end of the school year," Anderson said. "It's the largest financial aid package our students have ever received."

Although federal aid to students across the country has dropped slightly this fiscal year — less than five per cent — Moorhead state hasn't felt the pinch. "It's obviously affecting some schools more than others," Anderson said.

Over 4,800 MSU students will get some kind of aid this year, 900 more than last year. About half of it will come in the form of grants, scholarships and college work programs, the other half in loans.

Much of the increase, Anderson said, can be attributed to higher funding from three aid programs: government guaranteed bank loans; government funded financial need programs and Minnesota state scholarships and grants.

Bank loans to 1,900 MSU students this year will amount to $2.9 million, up from $2.7 million last year when 1,600 students received the government backed loans.

Bank of North Dakota loans are also up $5 million this year and about a quarter of the full time students at MSU are North Dakota residents attending under reciprocity agreements between the two states.

Federally funded need programs — national direct student loans, supplemental educational opportunity grants and college work study — went from $1.2 to $1.8 million this year. They'll be awarded to 1,800 students, 300 more than last year.

State scholarships and grants, direct awards to students from funds allocated by the Minnesota Legislature, climbed from $417,000 to $722,000. Over 1,500 students, 300 more than last year, will receive them.

A primary reason for the increases, Anderson said: the economy.

"Mom and dad are plain strapped for money because of inflation. Our region was also declared an economic disaster area this year. And on top of that, summer jobs are very scarce. It all adds up. Students need the help and more are eligible for it."

As an alternative to unemployment or less rewarding jobs, Anderson said, a lot of people have apparently decided to go back to school and improve their employment prospects. "It looks like a good time to go to school," Anderson said. "I don't know how many times I've heard that this year."

Another kind of financial aid that doesn't get much mention, Anderson said, but certainly has to be considered, is the relatively low tuition and housing rates at the state university. "Simply put, dollars stretch a little further here."

Right now, Anderson said, his office has distributed all $1.8 million in federal financial need dollars that was allocated to MSU this year. "In other years, stragglers would come in and apply late and still have a chance. This year it's all gone."

Other kinds of financial aid — bank loans and federal grant funds — are still available and will be distributed throughout the school year. By next spring, Anderson said, it could boost the amount of aid to MSU students another million dollars.

We realize you have no desire to meet the artist personally. But isn't her work magnificent?

Delicate . . . graceful . . . symmetrical. Yes — and functional. So very functional! Charlotte has to eat, you know . . . this is her insect trap.

Nature is a lesson book in design and purpose. God seems to have taught so many of his creatures to meet necessity with artistry.

It's a lesson man has been learning for ages — with God's own help. Learning to add some beauty as we make our way . . . to enrich the scene for those who labor with us.

Your Church or Synagogue teaches God's design . . . His purpose.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

ARGENTINA INVESTOR

A growing number of investors are finding Argentina can be a safe place for their money and themselves.

A growing number of businesspeople are finding that a good way to help their money grow is to invest it in industries in Argentina.

Net reserves in foreign exchange there are $10 billion—compared with only $20 million in 1976. The balance of payments' surplus for each of the last two years has been $2 billion.

The financial situation in Argentina continues to improve. It is the leading Latin American country in nuclear energy development, with one plant completed and another under construction. Four more electric-nuclear plants are expected to be built by the year 2000.

With its extensive on- and off-shore oil fields, Argentina expects to produce all of its own petroleum by 1982. The 1978-79 Argentine wheat harvest was 52.8 percent higher than the previous year's and industry is up 16.6 percent. It's been called a country of almost unlimited agricultural, mineral and forest resources.

The World Bank and the Inter-American Development Bank have approved loans of $420 million to help finance a $3.8 billion hydro-electric project along the Argentine-Paraguay border and the billion-dollar Salto Grande hydro-electric dam between Argentina and Uruguay is already working.

The streets of Buenos Aires, its capital of more than 8 million people, and other Argentine cities are peaceful and safe once again for citizens, tourists and businesspeople.

Many people are finding that country a safe place for their money, too.

U of M Med Student Describes Refugee Life In Thailand

by Doyle Tarwater

Along the famed Mekong river, some thousand miles below its Himalayan source, lies Nong Khai. On the opposite shore is a well-equipped army of Pathet Lao, Russians and Vietnamese.

It is a wide river here with a fast current. Those with money hire a boat to cross to freedom. Others must cross upstream where the river is a maze of wadeable channels. My friends, Kong Keo and Keo Manivanh, blew up large plastic sacks for flotation and swam the big river by night. There is, they say, "lots of shooting from the Laotian side."

One night while driving out to do rounds, Dr. Karen Olness (University of Minnesota pediatrics professor and a member of the refugee camp medical team) told me a story of the miracle baby, tossed from one wounded and drowning relative to another as the family tried to cross the river. The father was shot nearing the Thai shore and managed to toss the baby to Thai people gathered there watching. The father and baby are all that is left of the family.

Kong Keo tells me of an island in the Mekong between Laos and Cambodia, used to re-educate young people who disobeyed the dress and conduct rules of the new regime, such as wearing blue jeans, long hair, listening to Western music, and being openly affectionate. A knock on your door at night meant only that a father or brother was gone and was never coming back.

When Kong Keo's older brother swam the river to Thailand (and later moved to France where he now lives), the family was deemed reactionary, and he lost a scholarship to study at a university in the Soviet Union. Now, he, too, is a refugee.

Forty-thousand Lao live here (in the refugee camp), many for four and five stagnant years. The bright, the well-educated spend two to six months before going to countries such as the United States for a new home. The United States is the hardest to enter, even with relatives who are residents there.

In these crowded and fetid conditions swarm a legion of dreaded diseases: tuberculosis, cholera, malaria, meningitis, measles, encephalitis, sepsis, renal stones, skin contagions. The list goes on.

Many here have no money and resources whatsoever. Their food ration leaves them only boiled rice and salt to feed their children. They live in totally filthy, crowded squalor, in concrete ovens that accumulate heat all day and radiate all night. Toilets drain into reservoirs. Water comes from highly suspect wells. But just as we cannot do blood cultures in our hospital, we cannot trace outbreaks of the many dreaded diseases.

Much of the camp is a desolation of ashes, broken glass and rubble since the camp fire in February that left 25,000 homeless. "Many people lost a lot of money when the camp burned," explains Kong Keo. The fire started in three places on a windy twilight at Chinese New Year. There were rumors that the Communists and Thais had plenty of reason to make the camp less attractive to others wanting to come.

This is not the Cambodian border, a far-larger and more desperate reality. Thais say the Lao refugees have vastly better care in the camp than do families of Thai farmers in the wetlands extending away from the Mekong. After three years of drought in the clay hills of northeast Thailand, many Thais have little or no rice. Therefore, the refugees have a far easier life now and a much better future life prospect assured for some.

The United Nations official food rations pass through many hands before reaching the destitute refugees. The expectation in a land of well-publicized public corruption is that everyone takes. The gentle, loving Lao say, "it would not be polite to criticize a country kind enough to take us in." So our poor refugees would have only rice but for the help of agencies such as Food For The Hungry and Catholic Relief Services.

There are two long, low wooden buildings with tin roofs, built by Norwegian Church Aid. They house the hospital, outpatient and ancillary lab, pharmacy and treatment room. X-ray is built but not wired.

We're generally swamped on all fronts by the claims of the sick. We lack supplies. Critical equipment is found inexplicably locked up. Key staff often disappear. We press on through awesome heat and shattering rains, the screams of infants, crowds jostling to get in earlier to see the doctor, bewildering pathology to investigate, ponder and treat. All the children need vitamins. This is truly a terrible, crowded place where parents see their children dying.

The children suffer on hot days, sitting under a bare, tin roof waiting to be seen in the clinic. Although we ask that the sickest be sent in without delay, they often must wait. Nearly every day the admissions begin at 5 a.m. They are miserable, and starved. Children cling to their mothers and cry fitfully when they're touched.

For the medical student, it is a challenge to make the decisions and do what needs to be done when everyone else has gone home. Inevitably, the professional self emerges with the tenacity to investigate, to stay just a bit longer.

I carry a well-stocked bag of instruments and drugs. Most useful are antibiotics and the occasional Bicillin injection.

We see some progress. We use refeeding protocols for the severely malnourished, giving increasing strengths of milk and high-energy formula. After one year of age, when a child goes from a mother's breast to protein impoverished rice diet, a mild diarrhea can precipitate crashing Kwashiorkor. Most of these children are being saved now.

The hospital is cleaner, not so many deaths. Despite long days, daily disasters, few tools and linguistic havoc, quality medical care is being delivered here.

Skills of physical diagnosis are honed and I am blessed by the knowledge of my consultants. It is this medical student's best rotation.

Philadelphia carpenters struck unsuccessfully in May 1791 for a 10-hour day and additional pay for overtime; this was the first recorded strike of building trades workers in the United States, according to "Important Events in American Labor History," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

How Does The IRS Collect Delinquent Tax?

When a taxpayer, for one reason or another, fails to pay the full amount of federal tax owed, the Internal Revenue service will collect the delinquent tax in one of several ways. To answer questions about its collection process, the IRS has prepared the following:

Q. I thought I had enough taxes withheld from my pay, and now I've received a notice from the IRS saying I owe more. How can that be?

A. There may be several reasons. You may not have had enough tax withheld from each paycheck, or perhaps an error was made in the preparation of your tax return. If you are self-employed you may have missed making the required quarterly estimated tax payments.

Q. The IRS says I owe more tax, but I don't agree. What can I do?

A. If you think that the bill is wrong, the best course is to notify the IRS immediately — in writing, by telephone or in a personal visit to a local IRS office. Be sure to have any records which support your claim, such as cancelled checks or tax returns, available for the IRS to review.

Q. Do I have to pay the entire amount of delinquent tax immediately?

A. If possible. The employee handling your collection case will review financial information which you provide to the IRS and determine whether the full amount can be paid at once, or if you qualify for an installment payment plan.

Q. What if I don't pay the IRS after they notify me that I owe delinquent taxes?

A. When an individual owes more tax, a bill is sent with payment due within 10 days. In practice, several notices and, in some cases, telephone calls are made to a delinquent taxpayer before any further action is taken. If a taxpayer neglects, or refuses, to pay taxes or to make satisfactory arrangements for payment, a levy may be issued against the taxpayer's salary, wages, bank accounts or commissions, for example. During the levy process, if the bill is paid in full or an acceptable installment agreement is reached, oridinarily the levy will be released.

Q. What rights do I have during the collection proceedings?

A. You, as a taxpayer, have several basic rights during all collection-related activities. They include representation, the transfer of a tax case to another geographic area, receipts for cash payments and contractual agreements, confidentiality of tax matters, and the elimination of a penalty with reasonable cause.

Q. Where can I get more detailed information about the collection process?

A. More information is available in IRS Publication 586A, "The Collection Process (Income Tax Accounts)" available free by mail, or by calling the IRS number listed in the local telephone directory. It can also be picked up at most IRS offices.

FACTUAL NEWS REPORTING EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

Believe The Basics

Although firearms are used for sport throughout the year in this part of the country, the greatest period of use will be during the next couple of months when upland game, waterfowl and deer hunting seasons will be in progress.

It shouldn't be necessary to remind people familiar with guns of their destructive capabilities if misused or used carelessly, but familiarity with firearms can lead to carelessness.

Anyone handling a gun must realize that he or she is part of a system over which he or she has complete control. Only the person handling the firearm can make that firearm safe or unsafe. Below are 10 basic rules for gun safety which even the most experienced and careful sportsman would do well to review, and which every novice should study and believe:

(1) Don't rely on your gun's safety. Treat every gun as if it were loaded and ready to fire.

(2) Never cross a fence, climb a tree or jump a ditch with a loaded gun.

(3) Never load or carry a loaded gun until you are ready to use it.

(4) Watch your muzzle so the other fellow doesn't have to.

(5) Keep guns and ammunition separately and in locked storage.

(6) Don't shoot unless absolutely sure of your target and what is beyond it.

(7) Know the range of your gun. Remember, even a 22 rimfire can travel over one mile.

(8) Always wear eye and ear protection when shooting.

(9) Always be sure the barrel is clear of obstructions. Only carry ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are using.

(1) Always carry handguns with the hammer down on an empty chamber.

Why Not 3 Times 2?

Following editorial is from the Christian Science Monitor:

President Carter can scarcely pick up any points with the electorate by refusing to join a three-way presidential debate. The politically motivated refusal makes him appear petty and unstatesmanlike. Certainly the public interest is served by the League of Women Voters' decision to invite independent candidate John Anderson to participate. Mr. Anderson has demonstrated that he is an important factor in the campaign, something even Mr. Carter acknowledges, and therefore deserves to have access to this media event and to the broad voter attention it is bound to attract. For the sake of fairness and a dignified presidential posture, it is to be hoped that Mr. Carter will reconsider his decision, something which seemed possible as negotiations continued at this writing.

Unfortunately, the true purpose of debates — to bring to the fore and clarify the issues on which voters will go to the polls — seems all but lost in the frenetic political game they have become. No one is fooled by the political factors that dictate the candidates' concerns. President Carter clearly is afraid a three-way debate will enhance the Anderson candidacy to his disadvantage. He wants a two-way debate with Ronald Reagan because he is drawing abreast of him in the polls and feels it would give him the upper hand. Mr. Reagan, for his part, prefers three-man debates that ostensibly would hurt the President. Yet one can just imagine Mr. Reagan's position if the roles were reversed.

How to cut through these political considerations, which admittedly it is unrealistic to expect the candidates to ignore altogether, is the problem. If we had our druthers, we would like to see the league's three-man debate followed by one-on-one debates involving all three candidates: between the President and Mr. Reagan, between the President and Mr. Anderson, and Between Mr. Anderson and Mr. Reagan. The league presumably would not agree to back such a format in view of its earlier guidelines for four debates, including one between the vice-presidential candidates. But other sponsors — the National Press Club, for instance — could do so. In any case such debates would offer the American public a more concentrated, meaningful look at each candidate and his views.

This is to warn, however, against giving to these televised debates the overriding weight they seem to have assumed. It disserves the objective of good government to convey the impression that a candidate's worthiness for the nation's highest post must stand or fall on how he performs before the television cameras rather than on how he has performed in office or on what his positions are. Jousting in public with a political opponent shows up a candidate's mettle, too, of course. But it is a question how much the debates manage to disclose the true and significant differences between contenders. In them the candidates themselves are trying desperately not to stumble into a political quagmire the way Gerald Ford did with his inept comment about Eastern Europe. They have come fully prepared with stock answers to expected stock questions and stock rebuttals. Their caution tends to prevent spontaneous and genuine exchange.

The format of past presidential debates, moreover, has not abetted such a lively exchange. With journalists asking the questions, the debate becomes as much a press conference as a direct give-and-take between the debaters. The questions tend to be unrelated, making it difficult to focus on issues and resulting in vague and noncommital responses. It is difficult to focus on issues and resulting in vague and noncommital responses. It is difficult to know how to inject into today's TV format the kind of depth and incisiveness that characterized the old Lincoln-Douglas debates. But this is something to which the league ought to give careful thought. One proposal made by analysts of the 1976 Carter-Ford debates is that each debate deal only with one major issue, with each candidate given sufficient time for extended remarks and several opportunities for rejoinder.

How, in other words, can the television debates get beyond the platitudes and set speeches heard on the campaign trail? And, we hasten to add, beyond the posture, mannerisms, and voice of the candidates to what they really think and are? That is the challenge if the debates — and the political process — are to become something more than television entertainment.

Love Affair With Autos

"Some popular magazines are starting to predict the end of the private car," states Michael Marsden, who teaches a course on "The Automobile in American Culture" at Bowling Green state university in Ohio. Writing in DuPont "Context" magazine, Marsden says the magazines are wrong, and goes on to make some pertinent observations.

"We've had a 70-year love affair with cars in this country," he said, "and you can bet that our slogan during the 80's and 90's will be, 'Til rust do us part'.

"Sure, there will be changes. The auto industry began as a producer of luxury items and it may become one again, with a booming market in used cars supplying most of the population.

"As gas becomes more expensive, you may find people parking in their driveways and listening to their sophisticated car stereo systems. But people will still own cars, because people still want freedom. In America, we've always believed in the open road, in exploring frontiers, and also in being able to control our technology. Cars give us all those feelings," he said.

"The technicians talk about people not driving on weekends. Nonsense. People will ride buses all week to be able to drive where they want to on weekends. Ask 60 million Americans who go camping if they're willing to settle for a campground on a Greyhound loop.

"Have you ever watched somebody wash a car? People caress them, pamper them, speak softly to them. People name their cars. It's a love affair. Of course, it's expensive — but when did lack of money ever stop love?

"There's a message here that's broader than the auto industry's problems. The message is that products become a part of our culture and even a part of the way we think. This means two things for corporations: they should be more aware of the way their products influence the whole culture, and they should also be prouder of the good products they make, because people don't just use them — they really like them."

Borrowed Nonsense:

"Our main problem seems to be that we can never agree on anything," the husband said to the marriage counselor. "It's been that way during the entire eight years we've been married."

"Nine years," the wife said.

Interesting Opinions:

"All progress is based upon a universal innate desire on the part of every organism to live beyond its income."

Love and the Army

U. S. Army Lieutenants Mike and Sue Abreu.

There probably isn't a man alive who is more proud of his wife than Army Lt. Mike Abreu. His wife Sue, who is now also an officer in the Army, is a past winner of the coveted Hughes Award. This award is presented each year to the prior year's most outstanding Army ROTC graduate. She's also won the Superior Cadet award and the Legion of Valor Bronze Cross for Achievement.

They are a young couple with a lot in common. Both attended Purdue University, both enrolled in Army ROTC and attained the top spot in their unit, that of Brigade Commander, both were superior students and received four-year Army ROTC scholarships, and both have chosen careers in the Army, Mike in field artillery and Sue in medicine where she wants to specialize in orthopedics.

But unfortunately, the Abreus haven't been able to spend much time together since their marriage. After graduation, Mike spent three years in Germany while Sue finished her studies. They wrote constantly. After graduation Sue joined Mike in Europe and they were engaged in Paris. Since then various assignments have kept them pretty much apart.

As Sue puts it, "Some people live together and never get married. We got married and haven't had much of a chance to live together." But both Sue and Mike are happy pursuing their careers in the Army. And both see a time in the near future when they will be stationed at the same place at the same time.

"The military is becoming more and more cooperative about making a great effort to keep married couples together as much as possible," Sue says. And Mike agrees.

"In fact, we may be together more than a civilian married to a military person because Sue will be able to go to areas where a civilian husband or wife would not be allowed."

Any regrets? Just one as far as Mike is concerned and that is he was not able to be at the ceremony for Sue when she won the Hughes Trophy Award. "I was so proud of her. That's quite an honor to be selected as the top Army ROTC graduate in the country."

It was a very impressive ceremony according to Sue. "It was held before the kickoff of the big Purdue-Michigan football game. The stadium was packed with over 60,000 fans. Maybe it was because of the political situation at the time, but the crowd was very pro-military and very enthusiastic. I was very happy and very proud."

As of now, Mike and Sue are stationed in North Carolina and Maryland, respectively.

"That's just a six hour drive," Mike says with a grin. "That's a whole lot better than 3,000 miles and an ocean apart."

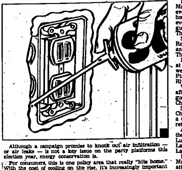
Down With Air Infiltration



Although a campaign promise to knock out air infiltration — or air leaks — is not a key issue on the party platforms this election year, energy conservation is.

For consumers, this is one policy area that really "hits home." With the cost of cooling on the rise, it's increasingly important to make homes weather-tight. According to a study by the Texas Energy Advisory Service, properly sealing small cracks and crevices to stop air infiltration can cut air conditioning costs by up to 30 percent.

"Many people are surprised to learn they can save this much by applying 'spot' insulation around electrical outlets, window air conditioners and other often-neglected sources of air leakage," says Ralph Gearson, sales manager, Insta-Foam Products, Consumer Products Division. "In fact, up to 68 percent of air infiltration can occur around these inconspicuous areas."

Insta-Foam, manufacturer of Great Stuff® insulating foam sealant, a multi-purpose urethane foam sealant that dispenses from an aerosol can in a froth form and expands and solidifies to fill cracks, holes and voids around the house, has developed the following recommendations for saving energy — and cutting costs — during the air conditioning season.

1. Insulate the soleplate, or area where the house frame meets the foundation. This is the greatest source of air leakage — contributing an average of 25 percent.
2. Check window and door frames, the second-worst energy-sapping culprits. Foam insulation should be applied to any areas that don't fit together tightly.
3. Remove wall outlet covers and apply foam around and behind the electrical box in outside walls.
4. Think about the geography of your house. Do you have exterior vents, fireplaces, utility meters or hose bibs? Holes or gaps around any of these can cost you money.

And, here's one promise you can make yourself in this energy-saving campaign: What you save on cooling, you'll also save on heating.

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:

Is there any evidence that skin cancer is contagious? I am a swimming instructor. One of the women in my class is being treated for skin cancer on her nose. The rest of the women in the class are afraid that she is spreading germs in the pool and may cause them to "catch" skin cancer. They avoid the unfortunate woman even in the dressing room.

Also, I'm concerned that the chemicals in the pool may be harmful or irritating to this woman's cancer. Should her nose be covered while swimming?

Jane L.

Dear Jane:

No, skin cancer if not contagious. There is no chance that the disease will spread to others using the pool. Skin cancer is most often caused by overexposure to the sun. It is unfortunate that the group shuns the woman as she may already be self-conscious and worried about her appearance.

If the skin cancer is an open sore, the possibility of infection to the sore does exist. If it were grossly infected, it would not be wise for the woman to be swimming, for her own sake as well as for others using the pool since such an infection — not the cancer — can be spread.

Since the woman is being treated for the skin cancer and is seeing her doctor regularly, the physician would be aware of any infection or irritation and would advise her against swimming in that case. According to several dermatologists, there is no need to cover the cancerous lesion while swimming.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Is there any new evidence linking flouridated water to cancer?

William R.

Dear William R.:

No. On the contrary, a recently completed, detailed statistical study on the relationship of cancer deaths and water flouridation failed to produce evidence linking natural or artificial flouridation of public water supplies to cancer.

The study compared the number of cancer cases diagnosed in "two" major metropolitan areas in the periods 1947-1948 and 1969-1971. The two areas were Birmingham, Alabama, which has remained largely unflouridated during the periods covered by the study; and Denver, Colorado, which was flouridated soon after 1947-48.

No flouridation-associated differences in cancer risk were apparent between the two metropolitan areas.

The National Cancer Institute scientists also studied cancer death rates over a 20-year period in two groups of counties in the United States. On the basis of their findings, the scientists have concluded that there is no evidence that flouridation has increased the risk of cancer, either in countries long exposed to varying levels of natural flouride, or in countries relatively recently exposed to artificial flouridation. The NCI study therefore provides no support for the contention that consumption of flouridated water can be directly linked to an increased risk of cancer.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My mother has recently had a hysterectomy for cancer of the uterus. She's recovering nicely but I'd like more information for my own peace of mind. What is the outlook for a person with this kind of cancer? Is there any further treatment she should be having? What if the cancer comes back? Am I likely to get cancer of the uterus too? Are there any symptoms I should watch out for? Will a Pap smear detect this cancer?

Worried

Dear Worried:

The overall cure rate for cancer of the lining of the uterus is about 75 per cent but may go as high as 80-90 per cent when the cancer is diagnosed in its earliest stage.

Surgery is often the only treatment necessary for cancer of the uterus. Sometimes radiation therapy is used alone or in combination with surgery to treat uterine cancer. Drugs and hormones are also used in treating some cases of advanced or recurrent uterine cancer. Since each case is different and requires individual treatment, it would be best to discuss your mother's followup and treatment with her doctor.

Uterine cancer does not appear to "run in families" so you need not worry about having inherited a tendency to develop this disease.

There is evidence that some women are at higher risk of uterine cancer than the general population, however. Those at risk include women who, during or after menopause, have unusual bleeding or discharge; have estrogen therapy during or after menopause (risk related to dose and length of time taken); had a late menopause (after 55); have diabetes, high blood pressure and are overweight.

Warning signs or uterine cancer include bleeding between menstrual periods, excessive bleeding during periods, and bleeding after menopause. If any of these signs appear, you should see your doctor promptly for an examination.

Although cancer of the cervix (neck of the uterus) can almost always be detected with a Pap smear, the test is less than 5 per cent effective in detecting uterine cancer. A more diagnostic technique is dilation and curretage (D & C), removal of tissue samples from the body of the uterus by a scraping technique while the patient is anesthetized. It is done in the hospital, and the tissue samples can be studied microscopically for cell changes characteristic of cancer.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My husband is receiving radiation therapy for cancer and doesn't feel like eating most of the time because the treatments make him nauseated. I'm worried because I know he needs to eat more to keep up his strength. Could you give me some suggestions on nutrition for people having radiation therapy? Does he need a special diet while receiving these treatments?

Mrs. W.H.

Dear Mrs. W.H.:

It is important that your husband be well nourished during his course of treatment. He should try to include the following in his daily diet unless otherwise directed by his physician:

+ Three or four glasses of milk (can substitute cheese)
+ One egg
+ Two generous servings of meat or fish
+ Cereals and breads, as desired
+ Potatoes as desired
+ Two to four servings of vegetables, one of which is green or yellow
+ Two servings of fruit, one of which is a citrus fruit.

This diet will be high in protein and carbohydrate and is quite flexible. Your husband may eat any food which he can tolerate. Since he is having nausea, where are several suggestions that can be made for modifying his diet.

+ Eliminate as much fat as possible. Use skim milk, very lean meat or fish (chicken and most fish are very lean), dry (unbuttered) toast and crackers, sherbet instead of ice cream, simple puddings made with skim milk, fruits, plain vegetables and eliminate fried food, sauces, gravies or any other fatty substance.

+ Carbonated beverages are often very useful for controlling nausea.

+ Many patients find that eating several very small meals is better than three large meals. Try eating a small amount every two to three hours and try separating solid food from liquids. For example, divide a breakfast by having dry toast and a poached egg, and then an hour or two later have fruit juice, some skim milk and coffee.

+ Sometimes sucking on a piece of hard candy will be helpful.

+ If these measures are not successful, your husband may need to use a liquid diet for a few days. This should include skim milk, fruit juices, tea and coffee, cooked cereal thinned with skim milk so that he can drink it, strained soup, vegetable juices and some simple custards, Jello, ice cream or sherbet. Try to drink a quart or more of milk each day.

After your husband's treatment is over, all of the side effects should disappear, and he may return to the general high-protein, high-carbohydrate diet. It would be wise to stay on this diet for three months before going back to his normal diet. Of course, you should check with your husband's doctor if this problem continues. He or she may prescribe medications to help control the nausea.

If you would like additional information, there are publications available that offer further hints as well as menu suggestions and recipes. You can request these publications by calling the Cancer Information Service toll-free. In Minnesota the number is 1-800-582-5262. If you live in North Dakota or South Dakota the number is 1-800-328-5188.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My husband had a malignant lymphoma removed from his abdomen a year ago. The last time he went to his doctor for a check-up the doctor said he wanted to do a C.T. Scan of his abdomen to see if the tumor had recurred. Could you explain what a C.T. Scan is, what it does and how it is different from an x-ray?

Evelyn B.

Dear Evelyn B.:

The C.T. Scan, or Computerized Transaxial Tomography, is actually a more technologically sophisticated form of x-ray. Each image, or picture, taken by a C.T. Scanner is a composite of over 300,000 individual x-ray beams passed through the body at as many different angles. A computer collects the image messages from the beams and compiles a picture which appears on a television-like viewing screen for immediate evaluation by the doctor. It is also photographed for permanent record.

Although many thousands of x-rays are taken during each examination, the level of radiation to which the body is exposed is relatively low, and only those portions of the body which the doctor wishes to examine are exposed to radiation.

Another unique feature of the C.T. Scan is the type of picture it takes. The doctor sees what appears to be a horizontal slice of a protion of the head or abdomen. Depending upon the type and extent of his examination, he may wish to look at several consecutive "slices" of varying thicknesses. A series of continuous pictures will show the doctor the shapes and positions of the internal organs and will give him a more complete picture than even multiple conventional flat x-rays. A C.T. Scan can often enable the physician to accurately pinpoint an abnormality for later surgery or radiation therapy.

An act of Congress in 1920 established the Women's Bureau in the Department of Labor, according to Important Events in American Labor History, a U.S. Department of Labor publication.

Double Treat

Pants continue to make an important fashion statement this season. On the left, Turtle Bax styles Cone Mills cotton sheeting in lean, straight leg pants with the neat, clean front so popular today. A checked shirt, floppy bow tie and regimental striped belt give this look its preppy feeling. On the right, all cotton indigo denim, also from Cone Mills, is done up in straight leg jeans with fancy stitching along the back pockets. Designed by The Great Escape, their very name promises getaway fun for the cooler fall days just ahead.

FASTER WAYS WITH MICROWAVES

Vacation days are over and the kids are back in school, but that doesn't mean your daily routine has to become "ho-hum". Here are some recipes from a Whirlpool microwave oven cookbook that can make your family think they're spending an evening south of the border. Mexican food can be a fun dinner with the family or a great idea when the kids have a few friends over after the football game. Huevos Rancheros are tortillas topped with sausage, peppers, eggs, tomato and cheese. The Chile Con Queso is a quick and easy dip to serve with tortilla chips.

Total cooking time: 18 min. 30 sec.

- 2 tablespoons cooking oil
- 4 6-inch corn tortillas
- 8 ounces bulk pork sausage
- 1 cup refried beans
- 2 canned green chili peppers, seeded and chopped
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 tablespoon cooking oil
- 2 large tomatoes, peeled and chopped
- 1 4-ounce can green chili peppers, seeded and chopped
- ½ teaspoon salt

- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon water
- 4 eggs
- 1 cup (4 ounces) shredded process American cheese

Heat 2 tablespoons oil in skillet on top of range. Dip tortillas in oil for 10 seconds on each side, just till limp. Set aside to drain on paper toweling. In bowl, cook sausage at HIGH for 3 to 3½ minutes, stirring twice. Drain off excess fat. Stir in beans and the 2 chili peppers; set aside. In 10 x 6 x 1½-inch baking dish, cook onion and garlic in 1 tablespoon oil at HIGH for 3 minutes, stirring once. Stir in tomatoes, the 4-ounce can of chilies, and salt. Cook, uncovered, at HIGH for 6 to 7 minutes or till boiling and tomatoes are tender.

Combine cornstarch and water; add to tomato mixture. Cook at HIGH for 1 minute. Break eggs into tomato mixture. Cook, covered, at HIGH for 3 to 4 minutes or till eggs are almost done, turning dish once. Let stand, covered, 2 to 4 minutes. Meanwhile, spread sausage mixture on tortillas. Place on ovenproof platter. Cook at HIGH for 1½ minutes; top with egg-tomato mixture and cheese. Cook at HIGH for 1 minute. Makes 4 servings.

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT, the highest award given by the American Red Cross to a person who sustains or saves a life by using skills and knowledge learned in a volunteer training program offered by the Red Cross in first aid, small craft or water safety, was awarded Wednesday to the Thief River Falls men. James A. Thune (second from right) and Mark A. Haugen (center) received the award at a Lions club meeting from Pennington county Red Cross chairman Charles Samuelson (left). Also pictured are police Chief Ken Froechheiser and Northwestern Bell Telephone company manager Al Bacon. Thune and Haugen are credited with saving the life of Lester Ringstrand on January 16 by applying mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and cardiopulmonary resuscitation after Ringstrand suffered a heart attack.

Cite Thune, Haugen For Efforts In Lifesaving

Two Thief River Falls men received the American Red Cross certificate of merit Wednesday for their efforts in saving the life of a man who had sustained a heart attach. James A. Thune and Mark A. Haugen were cited during a meeting of the Thief River Falls Lions club by Charles R. Samuelson, chairman of the Pennington county chapter of the American Red Cross.

The certificate of merit is the highest award given by the American Red Cross to a person who sustains or saves a life by using skills and knowledge learned in a volunteer training program offered by the Red Cross in first aid, small craft or water safety. The certificate bears the original signatures of the President of the United States, honorary chairman, and Jerome H. Holland, chairman of the American Red Cross.

In a letter to Northwestern Bell Telephone company to have Thune considered for an employee award, local company manager Al Bacon described the lifesaving efforts as follows:

On January 16 at one o'clock in the afternoon, Mr. J.A A. (Jim) Thune rendered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to a Mr. Lester Ringstrand in the alley at the rear of the telephone building located at 403 LaBree Avenue North, thereby saving Mr. Ringstrand's life.

Mr. Thune had been dispatched on a case of trouble in the professional building on Fourth street across from the telephone building. He noticed a car at the entrance to the alley behind the telephone building that appeared to have struck a power pole with minimal impact and was at rest against the pole. He finished his assignment, and upon leaving the building approximately five minutes later, noticed that the car was in the same position and that a man was peering into the car. Jim approached the scene and noticed a man slumped on his side inside the car. The other individual told Jim that he had summoned the ambulance which should be arriving soon.

Jim noticed that the complexion of the man inside the car was very blue, that he was not breathing, and that his pulse was very sporadic. He immediately turned the victim on his back and began to apply mouth-to-mouth

Public Forum Wed. On Bond Question

People interested in expressing their opinions in regard to the proposed $15 million bond issue for School District 564 are invited to participate in the public forum scheduled for Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Public comment and questions have been encouraged by Dale Dillon, president of the sponsoring Thief River Falls chamber of commerce, and by Chris Twomey, chairman of the legislative affairs committee, who will serve as moderator.

Dillon said that persons knowledgeable in school district background and planning, tax computation and other areas will be in attendance to answer questions at the forum.

"Due to the high interest in the bond issue in our community, the chamber of commerce felt it necessary to hold a public forum to explore all facets of this proposal," Dillon said. "Public attendance and participation is urged."

Sign Vandalism Costs In Area Are $15,177

Vandalism of highway signs costs Minnesota taxpayers $150,000 annually, according to Marvin Bates, maintenance engineering coordinator, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

More than 5,700 signs were vandalized during the last fiscal year ending June 30. Sign valdalism is primarily due to theft or damage by gunfire or paint, Bates said.

Highway sign valdalism costs for the Northwestern Minnesota area with maintenance offices at Bemidji and Crookston totaled $15,177.

Gunfire was responsible for the most damage to signs, with a cost of $62,000 to repair or replace 2,600 signs statewide.

Sign theft and alteration is a dangerous practice which can cause a motorist injury or even death, Bates warns. When signs have been stolen or speed limit signs have been altered, motorists have either no warning or misleading information.

He also reminds that sign valdalism is a misdeneanor punishable by a fine of up to $500 and-or a jail sentence of up to 90 days. Possession of highway signs is a petty misdemeanor.

Dog Diseases Are Topic Of Kennel Club

Agassiz Kennel club conducted a meeting September 24 with several dog diseases being covered and literature regarding each being handed out to all members. Included in the discussion was the life-threatening Parvo virus.

Members also planned the club's Christmas party. The club, which was formed approximately three months ago, now boasts a membership of 17 people. Anyone interested in knowing more about the club may call 681-5664.

Candidates To Give Views At Newfolden

Newfolden Study club, a member of the GFWC, will be sponsoring a meet the candidate night Monday, (October 27) at 7:30 p.m. at the Newfolden community center. This meeting is open to the public and everyone is invited to attend.

House candidates from District 1A and District 1B, State Senate candidates from District 1, and the candidates running for Marshall county commissioner in District 4 will be at the meeting to express their views on issues.

Local Teachers Give Support To Bond Issue

Al Dalen, president of the Thief River Falls Education association, announced today that, "the majority of the membership is in support of the school bond issue of District 564".

In addition, Dalen noted, "The most important single element in the education process is still a competent and dedicated teacher. To secure and keep good teachers, however, a community needs to provide:

(1) An adequate salary comparable to other schools and to other competative jobs in industry;

(2) A suitable environment in which to work; and

(3) A community which demonstrates a positive attitude toward a quality education."

In summation Dalen added, "Without something being done to improve the high school environment, the quality of education can only deteriorate in grades nine through 12 at Thief River Falls."

First Concert Tuesday Night

Pianists William and Louise Cheadle will present the first concert of the Thief River Falls concert association series Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Lincoln auditorium.

Admission to the concert will be by season membership only and memberships will be on sale at the door.

Homecoming Activities At LHS Begin Today

With the arrival of the fall season, and the second month of school well underway, homecoming has also begun at Lincoln high school as students plan activities throughout the week.

Senior queen candidates, one of whom will be crowned 1980 Homecoming queen at the school Friday, include Kim Koropatnicki, Val Knutson and Andrea Lel. Junior attendants include Kris Knutson and Lori Thompson; sophomores Collettte Thune and Lisa Nepper; and freshmen Melissa Bondy and Jill Isaacson.

Activities occurring throughout the week begin today with Twins day, which will be followed by dress-up day tomorrow. Display of hats will occur Wednesday throughout the school during hat day and jersey day will take place Thursday. Also Thursday will be the Powder Puff football game between the juniors and seniors at 9 p.m. at the football field. Friday will be apple day, which each student will bring an apple to their favorite teacher.

Coronation ceremonies will take place at 1:15 p.m. Friday in the Lincoln high school gymnasium and will be followed at 2:40 by the parade, consisting of class floats, attendants, the 1980 Homecoming queen, and the high school band traveling through downtown Thief River Falls.

The 7:30 p.m. football game that evening will bring the Thief River Falls Prowlers and the Fergus Falls Otters to the football field. During halftime, the high school band will perform and the queen and her attendants will be escorted to the field.

After the football game, the Homecoming dance will be conducted in the Lincoln high school cafeteria with the "Intruders" performing from 9 p.m. to midnight. Tickets for the dance, sponsored by the student senate, will cost $5 in advance and $6 at the door.

Residents Get New Figures On Bond Issue Cost

Concerned that the statistics used in the Times and the local citizens' committee brochure regarding Thief River Falls residential property taxes were difficult to understand and misleading, two school district residents requested and obtained another set of comparisons from the office of Pennington county assessor Gerard DeHaan.

"We feel the Springstead figures don't give a clear picture of the effect which the $15 million school bond issue would have on residential property," stated Bert Vigen and Dennis McCullough. (A letter from McCullough is in this issue of the Times.)

"The assessor made the calculations for us and we believe they more accurately describe the effect of the bond issue than the figures published in the Times and in the brochure. We're not trying to tell anybody how to vote, but we think they should be as fully informed as possible about how the bond issue will affect their taxes," Vigen and McCullough added.

The men said they recognized that 100 per cent accurate figures could not be obtained because necessary figures to make that an exact computation are not yet available. But they believed the comparisons which they had prepared for them more accurately reflect the probability than the Springstead computations published earlier.

Comparisons of sample properties for 1980 and projected for 1981 include the following:

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Swendra - Wold Vows Are Exchanged At RLF

Marriage vows were exchanged recently at St. Joseph Catholic church in Red Lake Falls by Sharon Swendra, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Roi of Red Lake Falls, and Lee Wold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Wold, rural Thief River Falls.

Rev. Jerome Fellon officiated at the double-ring afternoon ceremony with approximately 135 relatives and friends in attendance. At the organ was Jan Neiland, a friend of the bride. Arlene Reierson, a cousin of the groom, was the soloist. She sang "The Wedding Song," "Annie's Song," and "The Rose," which was sung as the bride presented the rose at the altar of the Virgin Mary.

Forming the chancel setting for the bridal party were baskets of yellow and white gladioli, accented with blue ribbon bows. Matching bows with clusters of blue and white daisies marked the pews.

The bride and groom were escorted to the altar by their parents. For her wedding, the bride selected a white satin empire styled gown featuring a sheer overskirt appliqued with lace motifs in daisy pattern. Matching lace trim was repeated on the sheer bishop sleeves, the high neckline and the deep flounce that encircled the skirt and chapel-length train. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow, blue and white daisies, interspersed with wild flowers. Her diamond necklace and earrings were a gift from the groom.

Barbara Mills was the bride's personal attendant.

Matron of honor was Kathy Schmidt of Litchfield, the bride's only sister. Other attendants were Sandra Ratliff and Sonia Wold, sisters of the groom, and Vanessa Hanson, a friend of the couple. All wore yellow, spaghetti-strapped, empire fashioned gowns with A-line skirts topped by a corresponding yellow floral sheer, matching their caplets. In their hair was a cluster of yellow wildflowers. They carried arrangements of yellow, white and blue daisies and wild flowers with yellow streamers, backed by straw fans. Their gold chains were gifts from the bride.

Attired like the bridesmaids was the flower girl, Shannon Ratliff, a niece of the groom. The rings were carried by Donny Swendra, a nephew of the bride. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a light blue tuxedo with a yellow ruffled shirt and a yellow daisy boutonniere. The groom's boutonniere corresponded with his white shirt.

Timothy Pahlen, Red Lake Falls, a friend of the couple, was best man. Groomsmen were Richard Swendra, brother of the bride; Mike Srnsky and Steve Appel, friends of the couple. Serving as ushers, were Herman Schultz and Myron Iverson, friends of the couple.

The mother of the bride was attired in a pink floor-length, two-piece ensemble with a corsage of white, yellow and blue daisies and wildflowers. Similar corsages were worn by the groom's mother, who was attired in a light blue knit floor-length gown, and by the bride's grandmother, Rose Dispensa, Red Lake Falls, who was honor guest at the wedding. All the corsages, boutonnieres and bouquets were of silk flowers, made by the couple's families.

A wedding supper and dance followed at Sullivan's. Serving as host and hostess were Lloyd and Kathy Hoefer of Blaine, brother-in-law and sister of the groom. Angela Steiger registered the guests and Renae Wilson served the punch.

Highlighting the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake on a square base, baked and decorated by the groom's mother and sister, Kathy. On the stairway, leading up the side of the cake were yellow candles with yellow, blue and white daisies and wildflowers on the steps. A double wedding bell ornament with a dove graced the top tier and a miniature bride and groom, topped the tier beneath. The cake was cut and served by Cheryl Zotorski, cousin of the bride, and Kathy Hoefer, sister of the groom.

At the gift table was Delores Zotorski, aunt of the bride. Brian Mills and David Hoefer were gift bearers. The rice packets were distributed by Amy Schmidt, Penny Mills and Stacy Ratliff.

Relatives and friends attending were from St. Paul, Blaine, Litchfield, Moorhead, Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire and the Red Lake Falls area.

For traveling on the fishing and camping trip to Waskish, the bride wore a blue jean Western ensemble.

The couple is now at home in rural Thief River Falls. The bride is a graduate of Lafayette high school, Red Lake Falls; and the groom is a graduate of Lincoln high school. He is employed by Vigen Construction, East Grand Forks. Photo, Associates Advertising, Thief River Falls.

Pamela Berg Marries Stephen Boe In Bemidji

Pamela Rae Berg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Berg of Thief River Falls, and Stephen Jeffrey Boe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Torlief Boe of Bemidji, were united in marriage on Saturday, August 23, at Calvary Lutheran church in Bemidji.

Rev. Luther Abrahamson officiated at the double-ring ceremony in the presence of more than 150 guests. Organist was Teresa Hartan of Bemidji. She played 'Praise to the Lord" for the wedding march, and accompanied Lori Harlow and Judy Asp as they sang, "Ruth," and Maridel Potucek, as she sang "My Tribute," during the lighting of the unity candle. Steve Reitmeier, Bemidji, played the guitar and sang "The Lord's Prayer," after the exchanging of the rings.

The birde given in marriage by her parents, wore her mother's wedding gown of lace and tulle over satin. The fitted lace bodice was fashioned with long-tapered sleeves and a Queen Anne collar. A cap headpiece, edged with pearls and dotted with sequins, held her fingertip veil, edged with matching lace. She carried a jade Bible, her gift from the groom. Topping the Bible was a white orchid with yellow lip, accented with white satin streamers intertwined with ivy.

Miss Karen Berg, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Maridel Potucek and Michelle Lamb, both of Warren. Junior bridesmaid was Sandy Berg, also a sister of the bride. All wore sleeveless, floor-length gowns of a blue and green floral printed qiana. The maid of honor and the bridesmaids carried solitary red roses; and the junior bridesmaid carried a basket of silk carnations and daisies.

Jon R. Boe, brother of the groom, was best man, and Jeff Lastovich and Scott Berry of Bemidji were groomsmen. They wore light blue tuxedos with darker blue trousers, vest and bow tie, and a single white carnation boutonniere. The groom's attire, all in light blue, was complemented by a peek-a-boo boutonniere featuring a white carnation centered with a rosebud.

Serving as ushers were Scott Stebbins and Thomas Gillespie of Young America, a brother-in-law of the groom.

The mother of the bride wore a steel blue floor-length gown with capped cleeves. The mother of the groom was attired in a two-piece ensemble featuring a blue and pink floral print, floor-length skirt and top. Their corsages were of red and white silk roses with white netting and ribbon.

Special guests at the wedding was Mrs. Lilas Klefstad, Thief River Falls, a grandmother of the bride. She wore a button-down, cream-colored, street-length dress, accented with a corsage of red silk roses. Mrs. Gertrude Berg, Thief River Falls, another grandmother of the bride, was unable to attend.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. The serving table was centered with a two-tiered, heart-shaped wedding cake, with single heart-shaped cakes on either side. The cake was baked and decorated by the bride's mother. It was cut and served by Mrs. Gene Miller, Thief River Falls, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Peter Grimsbo, Grand Rapids, aunt of the groom. The bride's aunts, Mrs. Joseph Taylor and Mrs. John Brahosky of Thief River Falls, poured the coffee.

Punch was served by Becky Harlow and Tammi Veale as Miss Wendy Woods of Minneapolis registered the guests. All are friends of the bride.

The bride and groom of 1980 graduates of Bemidji State university with the bride receiving a degree in social work and the groom in aquatic biology. The groom previously served four years with the U.S. Navy, in the Seabees.

The couple is temporarily making their home at Bemidji at 1103 Bemidji avenue.

Set 95th MEA Convention October 16-17

"Education: A Family Affair" is the theme of the 95th Minnesota Education association (MEA) convention, which is expected to attract a record number of educators and is open to the public.

For the first time in history, the two-day event — October 16 and 17 — will be conducted in conjunction with the MEA representative assembly, legislative body of the MEA.

Centered in the Minneapolis auditorium and convention hall, the convention will feature hundreds of exhibits and numerous special performances with all open free to the public.

Many of the convention's activities, including musical and theatrical presentations, are designed to entertain persons of all ages. Among featured programs, for example, will be the Minnesota Meilkin puppet show, a professional company that has toured the nation, introducing elementary school age children to poetry.

Hundreds of workshops, speeches and luncheon meetings in facilities throughout the Twin Cities and surrounding areas will provide pertinent information on educational issues. Sessions will center around student art, problems within the society concerning issues of chemical dependency and family living.

Seed Money Is Available For New Projects

Funds are available once again this year through the Minnesota council on quality education (COE) for people with good ideas for improving education. This will be the tenth year that CQE, established by the state legislature, has solicited proposals for ideas that involve a new method or approach to education for elementary or secondary students and that could potentially reduce school costs.

Concept behind CQE is that a modest amount of seed money can encourage educators to try out new ideas. And new ideas can result in better schools.

"We're quite proud of the contribution CQE has made over its first 10 years," said Eugene Kairies, program coordinator. "We feel that we are at the forefront of education change in the state. Over 85 per cent of the projects that begin with CQE funds prove themselves worthy enough to continue due to cost-effectiveness once our seed money is gone. That's a high rate of success."

Over the years, innovations funded by the program have included development of new curriculum materials and courses, increased use of technology, new techniques for special students, improvements in school budgeting and management, and many others.

CQE projects may be funded for up to three years. Although there is no formal funding limit, grants have ranged from under $10,000 to $85,000. Last year CQE funded 28 innovations, for a total of $775,000.

Proposal process is simple. Just send a 2-page description of your idea to CQE by December 15. Each school has a form and you may attend a proposal writer's workshop in Marshall at the University student center October 9 from 7-9 p.m. or at the Thief River Falls high school on October 14 from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

For an application form or for more information, call LeAnn Velde at 612-296-5072. If you're outside the metro region, call person-to-person collect.

WITH THE FIRST day of waterfowl hunting over, the contests began, and arm wrestling was no exception during the Middle River goose festival Saturday. The contests, which began at dusk, were followed by dancing to the music of the Sunrays at the Legion Hall and the Last Resort at the Meadowbrooke Ballroom.

No Insurance Division Rep To Visit Here

A circuit rider program started in 1968 by the insurance division of the Minnesota commerce department to assist outstate residents with insurance problems will be curtailed effective today, according to insurance commissioner Michael Markman.

Markman explained that in lieu of face-to-face visits with insurance division employees, persons living outside the Twin Cities metropolitan area may use a toll free number, 1-800-652-9747, to ask questions or ledge complaints about insurance policies or insurance business practices. He said the circuit rider will continue monthly visits to St. Cloud, but that visits to 25 other cities will be cancelled resulting in a savings of about $5,000 annually.

Markman said the circuit rider program had been scaled back previously due to substantial increases in travel costs, adding that the discontinuance of the program at this time is due partially to restractions on spending resulting from the projected state budget deficit.

"With this new 800 number, our consumer assistance service will actually be expanded to include those living where circuit riders do not now visit. We are now able to offer access to our entire staff on a statewide basis while saving money in the process," Markman concluded.

Cities to be dropped are Albert Lea, Austin, Bemidji, Brainerd, Crookston, Duluth, Fairmont, Fergus Falls, Grand Rapids, Hibbing, Hutchinson, International Falls, Mankato, Marshall, Montevideo, Moorhead, New Ulm, Owatonna, Red Wing, Rochester, Thief River Falls, Virginia, Willmar, Winona, and Worthington.

NO TRICKS or treats accompanied this tiny pumpkin (KayeLyn Wagner, daughter of Mr. and Mr. Virgil Wagner) who concentrated on keeping in step throughout the parade which traveled down Main Street in Middle River Saturday as part of the annual goose festival activities.

UMC Budget Cut To Meet Order By Quie

University of Minnesota — Crookston (UMC) has reduced its budget by $44,228 as part of the $14.1 million total University cut mandated by Gov. Quie's executive order to reduce funds appropriated earlier to state agencies.

"The decision was a painful one," said. Dr. Stanley D. Sahlstrom, UMC provost. "It is difficult to make these cutbacks at a time when we are well into the fiscal year and when our enrollment is up."

The cuts, which will be made from the operations and maintenance budget, are temporary and will be in effect for the rest of the fiscal year, until July 1, 1981. The spending reductions will have no impact on funding for construction projects and similar physical plant improvements.

"We have bitten the bullet and will absorb our share of the total reductions," said the provost.

He emphasized that the reductions would be made without any significant adverse effect on the quality of instruction or the quality of equipment needed for teaching technical courses. The impact will be felt most in the administrative and support areas.

Budgets will be trimmed in two major areas (1) Support service personnel and (2) supplies, expense and equipment allocations.

From the personnel budgets items totaling $21,101 have been temporarily removed. Personnel cuts include reduction in plant service positions for the remainder of the year, and the decision to leave the continuing education and community services position unfilled until next summer. In addition, University Relations will lose 25 per cent of one full-time position through reassignment of a major function through the end of the 1980-81 fiscal year.

Supplies, expense, and equipment funds will be reduced by $23,127. These decreases will come from the budgets of learning resources, administration (primarily for travel), alumni, transportation, and plant services.

Besides these specific reductions in localized accounts, UMC's share of the all-University women's intercollegiate athletics budget will be trimmed approximately $1,600.

Where to make the cuts was difficult, according to Sahlstrom. Every member of the academic community was asked for input. These suggestions were then sent to a budget executive committee for consideration and recommendations before Sahlstrom made his final decision and notified the affected departments and service areas.

Graduation for dog obedience classes will be conducted Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the new sports arena.

Thune, Haugen Honored For Lifesaving

resuscitation. He was continuing his efforts approximately four minutes later when the local police arrived. Jim directed one of the patrolman, Mark Haugen, who had been trained in CPR, to check the victim's heartbeat. This he did and then began to apply CPR while Jim continued with mouth-to-mouth.

Upon the arrival of the ambulance shortly thereafter, the victim was transferred into the ambulance where he began breathing spontaneously.

At the time of Mr. Thune's arrival on the scene, there had apparently been several other people who had observed the situation and then moved on without making efforts to help. Jim started action of his own volition and was observed by other telephone people; namely Mrs. Shirley Daley and Richard Park.

Upon arrival of the ambulance bearing Mr. Ringstrand to the hospital, Dr. Mestery, attending physician, diagnosed heart attack.

When Mr. Ringstrand's condition had become stabilized and after he had regained his faculties, Dr. Mestery made it clear to both Mr. and Mrs. Ringstrand that Jim Thune's actions, and those of Mark Haugen, saved his life.

Post Script: At the conclusion of this memo it was learned that Mr. Ringstrand had died in the hospital in Rochester on February 8, where he had been taken for installation of a pacemaker. None the less, I feel that Mr. Thune's initiative, effort and spontaneous action should be officially recognized.

NFO Views On Farm Program Are Announced

During the Minnesota state convention, DeVon Woodland, president of the National Farmers organization, announced the details of the farm program the NFO would support when Congress writes new farm legislation in 1981.

In remarks prepared for delivery at the Minnesota NFO convention held in St. Cloud, Woodland said the new farm bill should include three major elements.

"First," he said, "there should be a minimum price arrangement comparable to the minimum wage provision now established by statute. Obviously, such a minimum price should be of value only if it reflected a true average cost of production, adjusted for quality and location differentials."

"Second," Woodland continued, "it should use national marketing orders as a means of administration, with producer referenda to implement the program."

"Third," the NFO leader concluded, "the price support loan program should be restricted in availability to owner-operators, whose primary source of income is farming and limiting the amount. The farmer-owned reserve concept could be continued as reassurance to the general public; nonfamily corporations, conglomerates, foreign owners and institutions should not be eligible."

The National Farmers Organization proposal was adopted at a national board meeting that was also attended by state leaders at its Corning, Iowa, headquarters.

Woodland then announced the NFO's commitment to a "stronger, independent approach to new legislation. The present farm program concepts were originally designed to aid farmers involved largely in diversified production patterns, when we produced for a domestic market . . . when our capital requirements and methods were not those of the 1980s, and when we did not face the current inflationary pressures that bear so broadly on our economy," he said.

Al (Butch) Mueller Jr. of Regal was nominated for a three year term as national director. His election becomes final at the national NFO convention to be held in Cincinnati, Ohio, this December. Les Kittleson of Milan was chosen as an alternate director.

Speakers at the afternoon business session included Mike Lamp, Willmar, of NFO's procurement department, who told delegates that most collection points in central Minnesota have doubled their hog volume or better the past year.

Harry Fowler, Fargo, North Dakota, of NFO's grain department, said the region that includes Minnesota has increased its grain volume 24 per cent the past year.

Missy Wallberg Included In MSU Honors Group

Thirty-three sophomores were admitted this fall into Moorhead state university's honors program, an effort to recognize and challenge top academic desire and ability. Among the students is Missy Wallberg of Thief River Falls.

Over 80 Moorhead state students are now enrolled in the program. They're selected according to scholastic achievements and college-level grade point averages that must exceed 3.5 (B+).

Besides their regular studies, the honors students take part in advanced seminars looking at a variety of academic fields. They're also required to write a senior honors thesis that is acknowledged at graduation and on their transcripts.

Honor students also join together in several informal activities and events, from visiting regional art exhibits to viewing local drama productions. Last year they traveled together on a foreign study tour of Egypt, Israel and Greece during Christmas break.

Hibbing Widow Participant At Holiday Fair

Among the participants at the Thief River Falls Holiday Fair scheduled for November 15 will be Mary Spotts, a widow from Hibbing who began making pine wreaths seven years ago when the last of her 10 children left home.

Mrs. Spotts is the mother of Mrs. Gus (Mary) Holmes of Thief River Falls, and the Holmes' daughter Cathy, a senior at Lincoln high school, tends the holiday fair booth for her grandmother each year.

Living 18 miles from town, Mrs. Spotts cuts and gathers the material necessary for the wreaths on her own land. She has three sons who bend the wire forms for her, after which she uses the techniques learned at classes in Hibbing to make and decorate the wreaths.

She stores the completed wreaths in a cool shed, setting them outside is there is a light rain or mist to keep them moist and fresh. The holiday fair is her main sales outlet and has been for the past four years.

Scout Jamboree Involves 108 From Council

Thousands of Boy scouts will gather in Virginia next summer to celebrate "Scouting's Reunion With History," and 108 Scouts in the Northern Lights council, Boy Scouts of America, will be among those in attendance.

The 1981 national scout jamboree will be conducted July 29-August 4 at Fort A.P. Hill near Fredericksburg, VA. Approximately 28,000 scouts and adult leaders from across the nation and some 100 foreign countries are expected to attend.

"The national jamboree is conducted every four years and is one of the most exciting scouting events that is offered," said Ray E. Miller, 1981 national jamboree chairman. Program will feature a great number of skill events involving patrol and individual competitions, as well as daily activities such as swimming, boating, archery and pioneering.

In addition, there will be merit badge demonstrations, troop shows, campfires and other scheduled events and contests.

"The 1981 jamboree's historical theme is tied in with the fact that the jamboree is being conducted in the historical triangle of Washington, D.C., and Williamsburg and Yorktown, VA," Miller pointed out.

To be eligible to attend the jamboree, a Boy scout must be at least 12 years of age and have earned the second class rank by July 1, 1981, and have not reached his 18th birthday by Sept. 1, 1981. He also must pass a medical examination and demonstrate proficiency of certain required skill awards. It's hard to decide who needs your gift the most, isn't it?

United Way helps you do the right thing.
Some people only give financial support to the large, well-known charities. That's fine, but there are also a lot of small agencies providing vital aid to a lot of people. And United Way helps them do it. Because it helps not just the well-known causes, but those people you wouldn't turn your back on if you knew how much they really needed your help.
Thanks to you, it works. For all of us.

The Public Forum

We like the idea of the local Chamber of Commerce sponsoring a public forum for discussion of issues regarding the proposed $15 million school project for Thief River Falls. The public meeting will be held Wednesday, October 8, at 7 p.m. in the city auditorium.

We like the idea for two reasons. First, it provides an independent atmosphere for the discussion and expression of opinion because the sponsor is a neutral party. Second, it demonstrates the interest of the chamber of commerce in the community and the willingness by that organization to play a significant role in community life.

To make a successful and worthwhile effort of the forum, however, it takes more than a sponsoring organization. It takes participation by the public, by the people who may not be actively involved but who certainly will be affected by the results of the election.

Every voter owes it to himself or herself to be as informed as possible on the issues before making a decision on how to cast a ballot. The open forum October 8 should provide a good opportunity to hear expressions of opinion as well as to express those opinions. It is important to take part as a listener as well as a speaker.

More importantly, it is beneficial to have questions answered and misconceptions corrected so that judgments can be made on fact. The chamber plans to have resource people on hand to answer questions and provide information to accomplish that end.

With the school open for tours every day this week from 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. and the open forum scheduled for October 8, there is no reason for voters to be uninformed on the school question.

Following comments on the non-debate held recently with Ronald Reagan and John Anderson as participants are from the Ely Echo:

After all the hoopla about who will debate whom and where and how, the first confrontation occurred Sunday, Sept. 21 between presidential candidates Ronald Reagan, the Republican hopeful, and John Anderson, who is still hopeful, but didn't make it as a Republican. Hailed by both the press and the sponsoring League of Women Voters, this meeting in Baltimore was supposed to bring out the differences in the candidates. Democrat Jimmy Carter stayed home. Perhaps wisely.

Now any kid who ever attended a high school public speaking class knows that this was no debate. In a debate, there is a central question and there are two sides, pro and con. The debaters are given ample time to research their side of the subject, the other side of the subject, and prepare their cases with facts, figures and logic. Each side presents its case within a set time slot, then each side is allowed to give a rebuttal of the opponent. That is a debate.

What the press and the League of Women Voters call a debate is actually a confrontation with reporters, sort of a "Meet the Press" in which the candidates can only guess what questions might be asked and then give general, not specific answers. The reporters can research the questions, but the candidates have no way to research the answers. The reporters prefaced their questions with a lot of assumptions, valid or not, which were aimed at locking the candidate into some type of an awkward answer. The idea appears to be to try and get one or both candidates to make a mistake so the reporters can have something to leap on.

Behind the scenes, there is a one-upmanship among members of the press to see who will be picked for the panel . . . who will be the inquisitors. The biggest thing in journalism today is getting on TV. The reporters who are picked for the panel seem to acquire an aura of importance as though the very fact that they are on the show gives them some special perception not granted ordinary news-gathers.

Even on the panel, there is a contest to see which reporter can be more cute than his fellow questioners.

One idiotic question involved Reagan's acceptance of support from fundamentalist religious groups, the reporter somehow perceiving this as a breach of campaign ethics if not a threat to the whole election system. Reagan skirted the matter by declaring everyone, even religious people, had a right to a political opinion.

Incredibly, no one brought up the fact that the entire U.S. foreign policy in the mideast has been manipulated in the political arena by a fundamentalist religion — the Hebrew religion — and every politician in the country is well aware of what happened at the ballot box in the state of New York when Jewish voters perceived Jimmy Carter as not being a standard-bearer for Israel. Apparently, it is perfectly O.K. for fundamentalist Jewish voters to exercise political pressure but not fundamentalist Baptists, Methodists or whatever.

None of this.

If the League of Women Voters wanted to perform a real service to the voters, it would pick a series of subjects in advance, give the subjects to the candidates to research, and then let them openly debate the subjects without the added distraction of off-the-cuff questions from a panel of reporters. In this way the voters could weigh genuine viewpoints, backed by figures, and would be given the opportunity to hear those viewpoints attacked and defended.

Let's Be Responsible

Autumn months of September and October are among the nicest of the year in northern Minnesota. The crisp, cool air and the radiant colors make being outdoors an absolute joy. For the sportsman the season is doubly enjoyable, for he can combine being outdoors with the hunting or fishing which provide him with so many worthwhile experiences.

Along with the enjoyment of the outdoors, however, comes the responsibility of upholding the traditions of sport hunting and improving the relationships between sportsmen and land owners. The new trespass law, which would have been unnecessary if sportsmen had been good citizens, may yet help to restore strained relationships if it is obeyed.

Obtaining permission before hunting private property is a good way to start being responsible, but responsibility extends beyond that. It means observing legal shooting hours, making every effort to retrieve downed game, abiding by bag limits and utilizing game taken. It means respecting the game birds or animals you hunt and appreciating the privilege of being afield.

And it means helping to police our own numbers, no matter how distasteful that may be. Some slob hunters are that way because they don't realize how their attitude and actions can affect their future. It has already affected the present by creating bad experiences for land owners in the past. Their misdeeds, carelessness, insolence or vandalism will affect your hunting future as well as their own.

Let's enjoy the nicest days of the year in the next several weeks, but while we're doing it, let's be responsible sportsmen.

Feel The Heat . . . See The Light

The story is told of the politician who reversed his stand on a certain issue, causing a voter to remark, "I'm glad he finally saw the light." To which the politician's aide replied, "It wasn't so much a matter of seeing the light as feeling the heat!"

That is probably a bit of what happened in the following situation reported by the U.S. chamber of commerce:

Uncle Sam almost got into the business of regulating radio waves emitted by a new type electric light bulb. Fortunately, the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) saw the light and scotched the idea.

Nonetheless, the General Electric Co. was forced to obtain permission from the FCC, which regulates television and radio stations, A.T. & T., newspapers and similar enterprises, to market and field test a new energy-saving light bulb.

According to "Regulatory Watch," a newsletter published by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the new bulb uses a tiny radio frequency generating mechanism, and any product generating radio waves comes under jurisdiction of the FCC.

The frequency used falls under an FCC rule requiring that each source be recertified every three years. Since recertifying each light bulb every three years could create a few problems, GE succeeded in obtaining a waiver from the FCC.

This is one of the few "success" stories you will find in the "Federal Register," the official government publication which records all new proposed regulations and never seems to run out of material.

DUANE NOEL (right), Thief River Falls fire chief, welcomed all attendants Saturday to the firemen's sectional training school conducted Saturday and Sunday at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute. Second speaker at the morning meeting Saturday was George Fitt of Minneapolis, coordinator of the sectional schools. Noel was also presented a plaque at the meeting in behalf of the schools for hosting the sectional school — one of five conducted in the course of the year throughout the state of Minnesota.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Numerous school district residents contacted me after the dialogue between Mr. Wiebolt and myself regarding the bond issue for the proposed high school. Most indicated that the exchange was helpful and encourage a continuance of such. Hence, the following questions and comments.

(1) Since the majority of area lost due to condemnation appears to be general classroom space, why are we not devoting our efforts toward a bond issue which would replace the same? Such a bond issue would avoid duplicating high cost areas as the auditorium, hardwood floor gymnasium, cafeteria, library, etc., none of which have been condemned, but would be abandoned if the proposed school was built?

(2) It appears that the architect used a figure of $62 per square foot in projecting the cost of a new building and the same cost per square foot for a general classroom addition. Is it not true that general classrooms can be built cheaper per square foot than hardwood floor gymnasiums, auditoriums and other special areas, and therefore the remodeling-addition projections are overstated?

(3) Since architects are generally paid on a percentage fee would it not be natural for them to attempt to make the biggest financial apple the most appealing to the community and, thus, our situation smacks of hiring the fox in the chicken coop to count the chickens? Consequently, might it not be wise to have a remodeling-addition review made by a second architectural firm or by a team of university building experts? A second opinion is often recommended and very fruitful in medicine and many business practices.

(4) Should not the citizens committee for education be a truly representative group of the district rather than a carefully selected power structure group appointed by the board? Since the board represents all of the district voters and not only those who favor the building proposal, it seems that a true cross-section of the voters through random sampling technique would be more appropriate. Some district voters commented that the title 'citizens' committee' is a misnomer and should be entitled 'sales committee', especially after being cajoled by their telephone blitz.

(5) The tax cost data for the proposed new building has been extremely confusing and hardly meritorious of the term informative. To give individual property owners some general idea of what they might expect in terms of a tax increase on the property they own, I submitted the following simple proposal to the chairman of the concerned citizens' committee for education about three weeks ago and as of yet have not been afforded the courtesy of an acknowledgement.

Since the school district would be required to levy for an additional $1.4 million per year for the next 24 years and the district valuation is roughly $43 million, this means an average increase of 32.4 mills. To get a rough idea of what your tax increase would be, do the following:

(A) Find the assessed value of your property on the property tax statement you received from the county treasurer's office.

(B) If you own more than one parcel of property add the assessed values to find the total of your assessed value.

(C) Multiply your total assessed value by 32.4 mills. (Since a mill is one-tenth of a cent, point off accordingly.) The product is an approximation of your tax increase.

MARY GENTRY, 1980 Miss Middle River, was one of many participants in the goose festival parade in Middle River Saturday afternoon. Mary, a senior at the Middle River high school, is the daughter of Mrs. Sally Gentry.

The above formula does not allow for variances in homestead credits or changes in valuation so it is only a "ballpark" figure. But nonetheless, if you end up paying less than the amount of your computation, someone else is paying more than the amount of his computation because the end result of the additional dollars raised by the district must be $1.4 million annually.

(6) Why is the board so adamant about the proposed site when the present site is more geographically centralized in the city and has a number of inherent transportation advantages? In his review of the proposed building plan, Howard Casmey, commissioner of education, made this comment about the proposed northeast site: "The location of the high school appears to limit expansion and future flexibility of both the AVTI and high school." With this type of review from the commissioner, I think we need to reconsider before moving the school to the fringe area of the city. If we need more building area, it would appear that multi-level would be the solution.

(7) Is it not true that because of a deficit in our state budget, state-aid to our district will be decreased 5.3 per cent for the coming year and the local taxpayers will have to pick up that tab in addition to our regular operating budget? How many dollars does this translate into?

(8) Are district residents being subjected to gimmicky tactics by those supporting the bond issue to gain favorable responses on October 14?

Examples:

(a) Board president airing possibility of paying only interest on bond the first year if issue would pass. (this wouldn't decrease the $35 million debt service liability of the district.)

(b) Carry front page interviews of students questioned about a new school for which they will assume no immediate financial responsibility. One could have asked if they each would have liked a new car without any payments and anticipated the same response.

I believe that student concerns should be considered even to the point of having student representation on the citizens' committee, but interviews with representative taxpayers provides good readability, too!

(c) Inadept photography — as I viewed the pictures on page 2 of the citizens' committee brochure the first glimpse led one to believe that a portion of Lincoln was falling over, but upon closer examination it appears that the photographer must have been what was falling over!

(9) Is it true that the county and-or the city has been offered the present high school for a dollar if the proposed bond issue is approved? Would such a move not have a two-fold negative impact as it would not generate any tax revenue for the district and if it is so energy inefficient the taxpayers would be forced to make it more efficient or continue to pay high energy costs when occupied by local government officials?

(10) In summary, I do not believe that it's fair to ask taxpayers to approve a building project of this magnitude without better tax information and additional planning. The need for such, I believe, is reflected in education commissioner Howard Casmey's comment after reviewing the proposed plan. Mr. Casmey stated, "Interior arrangement of spaces shown on the high school preliminary plans appear quite inflexible and may force future school boards to make expensive changes to the building to accommodate changes in the instructional program."

After the defeat of the bond issue on October 14, let's go back to the educational apple tree not looking for the biggest apple, but an alternative that will nicely satisfy our students' educational needs and not cause the district taxpayers financial indigestion for the next 24 years.

Sincerely,
Dennis McCullough

CCC Alumni Seeks To Expand Organization

Purpose of the National Association of Civilian Conservation Corps Alumni (NACCCA) — a non-profit organization — is to recapture and preserve the nostalgia, history and accomplishments of the CCC which contributed so much to America during that critical period of the '30s, according to a recent news release from the CCC alumni.

"That is why we are building a national CCC memorial museum which will also serve as a long overdue memorial to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the millions of Americans who served their country through the CCC," they said.

"Purpose of the NACCCA is to contribute everything possible toward the conservation of the nation's rapidly diminishing and seriously abused natural resources — to help today's youth with their problems as we were helped with ours over 40 years ago," they added.

"That is why we are also urging the president, Congress and the American people to establish a permanent CCC II with the same sense of urgency that characterized the creation of CCC I in 1933," members said.

All CCC veterans and all Americans, sympathetic to the CCC concept, the solution of the problems of our young Americans, the conservation of our nation's natural resources; can help build and operate this national CCC memorial museum by sending their tax deductible donations (indicate "Memorial Donation") to: NACCCA, 7900 Sudley road (Suite 41B), Manassas, VA 22110.

All those who served the CCC, in any capacity are being urged to affiliate with NACCCA.

"We sincerely appreciate the efforts of the communications and the news media — press, TV, radio and others — in helping to acquaint America and establish this memorial which will take its place among the other great memorials of the nation," they concluded.

THE RATE CHANGES DESCRIBED IN THIS NOTICE HAVE BEEN REQUESTED BY NORTHWESTERN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY. THE MINNESOTA PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION MAY EITHER GRANT OR DENY THE REQUESTED CHANGES IN WHOLE OR IN PART, AND MAY GRANT A LESSER OR GREATER INCREASE THAN THAT REQUESTED FOR ANY CLASS OR CLASSES OF SERVICE.

Further information on these private line service rate increases, which affect only services not generally considered to be part of basic residence or business telephone service, is included in the remainder of this notice.

On May 5, 1980, pursuant to Minnesota Statutes No. 237.075, Northwestern Bell Telephone Company filed with the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission a private line service rate increase request. Northwestern Bell Telephone Company requested that the rate schedule be effective on August 3, 1980, but the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission suspended the requested effective date and the implementation of the rate schedules and ordered that a Public Hearing be scheduled on the requested rate increase. The hearing schedule is included in this notice.

These tariff or rate changes cover services such as foreign exchange service, tie line service, radio control circuits, alarm and security circuits, off-premises extensions (both business and residence), private line data circuits, and telephone answering services, as well as other miscellaneous services not generally considered to be part of basic residence or business telephone service. Installation charges for these services are also covered by these changes. Most affected customers will have an increase on their bill but in some instances a customer will have a decrease. Examples are attached showing the impact of the tariff changes on selected service configurations.

We would like to emphasize that the proposed changes involve a RESTRUCTURING of the rates and tariffs for these non-switched telephone services. This differs from the usual rate increase in that customers with certain services will see their costs increase much more than other customers because the actual methods of pricing are being revised to correspond to the costs of providing each service. For example, certain configurations could increase 500 per cent or more.

The rate increase request was filed with the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission, which had ordered Northwestern Bell to file cost based rate schedules. The request is based upon the cost of providing the service.

Although some customers will experience large percentage increases for these services, these customers may be able to temper this impact by changing their service to a more cost-efficient configuration.

To aid those customers who may wish to change their service, and additionally to minimize the impact on the increase, we have proposed that the billing of some of the new rates be phased in over a two and one-half year period.

You may get information on how the changes will affect your bill by contacting the Northwestern Bell Business Office. The telephone number is located on page 4 of the Customer Guide section of the local telephone directory or is shown on your telephone bill. You may, in the alternative, contact your Northwestern Bell Account Representative if that is with whom you usually deal. The Company will make every attempt to provide you with the requested information within 14 days.

The Commission may order a lesser or greater increase than the one requested by Northwestern Bell. The first phase of the approved rates will not be billed until six months after the Commission approval of those rates.

The proposed Private Line Tariff rate schedules may be examined by the public during normal business hours at the Department of Public Service, 790 American Center Building, 160 East Kellogg Boulevard, St. Paul, Minnesota, or at Northwestern Bell Business Office in Minneapolis, Duluth, Detroit Lakes, Crookston, St. Cloud and Rochester.

Evidentiary Hearings, which are for parties who formally intervene in the rate case, will be held in St. Paul at the American Center Building commencing at 9:30 a.m. on December 15-19, 22-23, and 29-30, 1980. These Evidentiary Hearings are for the presentation of direct testimony and cross-examination. Information about the Evidentiary Hearings may be obtained by contacting Hearing Examiner Harry S. Crump at the Office of Administrative Hearings, 1745 University Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55104, (612) 296-8111.

The following monthly and installation charge examples reflect the changes being made in the rate level and rate element structure associated with private line and extended exchange services. The examples show the ultimate proposed rate levels.

Index Of Farm Prices Rises For 4th Month

Index of prices received by Minnesota farmers gained two per cent to 260 during the month ended September 15, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. The index is 12 per cent above the September 1979 level. Higher prices for oats, barley, soybeans, and turkeys led the general increase in farm prices. Lower prices for wheat, flaxseed, potatoes, sunflowers, and hogs failed to offset price gains for other commodities.

Corn prices reached their highest level since August of 1975. Compared to a year ago, prices are up significantly for corn, oats, dry beans, hay, potatoes, hogs and turkeys. Prices for sheep, calves and slaughter cows are below a year ago.

Crops index rose three per cent to 268 during the month and was 24 per cent above the index a year earlier. The mid-September prices and the changes from last month are: all wheat — $4 per bushel, down seven cents from the revised August estimate; corn — $2.78, up 10 cents; oats — $1.51, up 12 cents; barley — $2.72, up 16 cents; soybeans — $7.36, up 41 cents; flaxseed — $6.87, down 23 cents; potatoes averaged $8.05 per hundredweight for all grades, down $1.45. NWAC Football Pennant Chase

That loud thud you heard Friday night was the sound of the Lincoln high school football team coming back to earth. Flying high after a 33-21 win over Moorhead a week earlier, the Prowlers were shot down by Bemidji 26-12.

It was a dismal performance by the Prowlers, who should have beaten the Lumberjacks. They played superbly in knocking off Moorhead and it might not be fair to expect them to play at that level every time out. But they didn't play anywhere near their potential Friday at Bemidji.

The Bemidji Pioneer had labled Thief River Falls a "Juggernaut" before the game, with Jim Carrington rating the then 4-1 Prowlers No. 5 on his Pioneer ratings of northern Minnesota football teams that featured No. 1 Grand Rapids; No. 2 Crookston; No. 3 Hibbing; and No. 4 International Falls.

But the Prowlers hardly lived up to that billing.

It was a reversal in form for the two teams. Bemidji had played poorly in losing a surprising 20-13 game to Fergus Falls a week earlier, and coach Ray Kavanagh was very displeased with the performance by the Lumberjacks in that game, citing frequent mistakes, both mental and physical, which kept Bemidji from breaking the game open early. And at the end Fergus Falls march for a pair of fourth quarter touchdowns for the win. It was Thief River Falls making those mistakes Friday.

Ironically, it was one year ago when Thief River Falls stunned then undefeated and No. 2 ranked Bemidji 22-21. The defeat cost the Lumberjacks their state ranking, an unbeaten season and a state playoff berth as they sagged to a 6-3 finish. Friday night it was the Prowlers, who despite losing a 30-6 game to Class AA power Grand Rapids earlier, had conference and post-season thoughts as they began their 1980 NWAC schedule.

It was a demoralizing defeat.. But it certainly won't spoil the entire season if the Prowlers can regroup for a strong finish. Thief River Falls is 4-2 right now and has a chance for its first winning season since 1974. And wins over Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks over the next two weeks could still set up a Northwest Atehltic Conference championship showdown with Crookston in the 1980 season finale at Crookston October 24.

The Pirates, 25-14 winners over East Grand Forks Saturday, play St. Peter in a nonconference game this week before finishing the year with NWAC tests against Bemidji and Crookston. An unexpected Crookston victory over Bemidji, coupled with Thief River Falls wins over Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks, could gain a NWAC title tie and a state playoff berth for the Prowlers.

The big test, however, will be Friday when. Thief River Falls will celebrate homecoming with a 7:30 p.m. game against Fergus Falls. That's when we'll see if the Prowlers can bounce.

Cross Country Teams Eye NWAC Meet

Defending champion Bemidji will be the favorite to win the boys portion of the 1980 Northwest Athletic Conference cross country meet when that event unfolds Tuesday, Oct. 14, at East Grand Forks, but Thief River Falls' strong performance in last week's Thief River Falls Sports Boosters invitational has stamped the Prowlers as an NWAC challenger.

Thief River Falls' clean sweep Thursday, featuring wins in boys and girls varsity, boys junior varsity and boys junior high races was a bit surprising," acknowledged first-year Thief River Falls head coach Lynn Dyer. "We had a poor performance over at East Grand Forks last Tuesday — except for a few individuals — and I was a little worried that we wouldn't be ready mentally for our invitational," said Dyer. "But I was wrong. Many of our kids ran close to their best times."

The Prowlers, originally scheduled to run at Park Rapids Thursday, will instead wait until the NWAC meet to run again competitively.

"I decided to cancel the trip to Park Rapids so we could stay home and work," explained Dyer. "We have been running two meets a week for about a month and it's hard to get good practices in with that kind of schedule. And after running so well at home, our runners are psyched up. If we stay fired up and carry that enthusiasm into the conference meet I know we can do very well in both the boys and girls races. But if we went to Park Rapids and did not run a good race we would undo everything we accomplished Thursday."

Bemidji will be going after its fourth straight NWAC cross country title next week. And during the Lumberjacks' three-year championship reign they've always had a 1-2 finish in the individual category. For the past two years it was Ron Wolfe and Brian Kraft pacing the Lumberjacks, like a year ago Fergus Falls when Wolfe, a senior, ran a 15:37 three-mile and Kraft, a junior, was in at 15:38.

But Thief River Falls' Bruce Johnson, a junior, could challenge Kraft for individual honors this year. Johnson ran third in the NWAC meet as a sophomore with a 16:30. He won Thursday's Thief River Falls Sports Boosters invitational in 15:55.

Thief River Falls hasn't had an individual win in the NWAC cross country title since John Albrecht paced the Prowlers to the 1976 crown. It was back-to-back conference championships for the Prowlers in 1975 and 1976 before Bemidji began its current title streak in 1977 when Tom Lortie and Wolfe finished one-two, and then-sophomore Brian Kraft finished ahead of three Prowlers for a fourth place effort that enabled the Lumberjacks to edge the Prowlers 29-31 in the final team point standings.

Bemidji and Kraft will be favored once again when the 1980 NWAC cross country meet gets started, but keep an eye on Thief River Falls and Johnson.

This will mark the first year of the girls participation in the NWAC meet. The youthful Lincoln high school girls will not be expected to win, but Dyer is convinced that the Prowlers, led by junior Susie Hanna, can be competitive.

Lumberjacks Outplay Prowlers For Surprising 26-12 NWAC Win

A Lincoln high school football team that had been so impressive in beating Moorhead 33-21 a week earlier did an about-face Friday with an embarrassingly poor performance that cost the Prowlers a 26-12 defeat at the hands of long-time nemesis Bemidji.

It was bad timing by the Prowlers who chose their 1980 Northwest Athletic Conference opener to play their poorest game of the season. The disappointing setback drops Thief River Falls to 3-2 overall, with NWAC foes Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston left to be played. The Otters will serve as the Prowlers' homecoming opponent Friday.

"That was no where near the football team I saw beat Moorhead last week," said Bemidji coach Ray Kavanagh, who was on hand for the Prowlers' celebrated win over the Spuds six days earlier. "Thief River came off that win over Moorhead and they sagged; they let down," added Kavanagh, who was equally surprised with the strong showing by his Lumberjacks after they had been upset by Fergus Falls 20-13 the week before.

"Bemidji just played a fine football game," said dejected Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz after the game, played on the rain-soaked Bemidji State University field. "We made mistakes."

The Lumberjacks turned two first quarter mistakes into touchdowns for a stunning 14-0 lead before the game was 10 minutes old.

A fumble by Thief River Falls fullback Scott Kezar at midfield was recovered by Bemidji's Paul Sickmann on the game's first series: Thief River Falls Mistake No. 1. Mark Beer sprinted 40 yards around the left side on second down before being driven out of bounds at the Thief River Falls six-yard line, and four plays later John Herath used a quarterback sneak to wiggle in from the one. Pat Erhart's conversion kick made it 7-0 with 3:37 elapsed.

Forced to punt on their ensuing series after the kickoff, the Prowlers got a weak 22-yarder from Dean Dokken, who had averaged 46 yards per punt against Moorhead: Thief River Falls Mistake No. 2 as the Lumberjacks again took over possession at midfield.

Eight plays later it was 14-0 as Erhart scored on a straight-ahead dive from the two and then added the conversion kick. A 24-yard burst by Troy Hendricks on an inside counter got the 49-yard drive off to a flying start, with Herath passing 16 yards to Dave Sea to reach the 10. A penalty moved the Lumberjacks back to the 15, but Hendricks quickly made that up with another inside counter that was good for 13 yards.

Fortunate to get out of the drizzly first half down just two touchdowns, the Prowlers still harbored hopes of staging a second half comeback. But two more mistakes quickly dashed those hopes as the Lumberjacks duplicated their first quarter blitz by converting the Thief River Falls errors into points and a 26-0 cushion.

Forced to punt on their first possession of the second half, the Lumberjacks got the ball back when the officials ruled that punt returner Dan Odegaard didn't have his mouth guard in place when he fielded the kick. And for the second time in the game a penalty commited by the Prowlers while a Bemidji punt was in the air — technically still Bemidji's ball — gave the Lumberjacks efficient yardage for a first down. Six plays later Hendrickson, again on that inside counter, scored from the 11 for a 20-0 bulge.

"That penalty," said Schmitz, who disagreed with the call after Odegaard said he had the mouth guard in until after he had completed the fair-catch on the ball, "was a big one. The chance of us coming back was still there until that penalty."

And if that play put the lid on the coffin, the next one nailed it shut as the Prowlers fumbled away a short kickoff that the Lumberjacks recovered at the Thief River Falls 29. Herath went in standing up on a quarterback sneak from the one as the score mounted to 26-0 with 5:42 left in the third quarter.

Thief River Falls managed to save some face with two fourth quarter scores. Wade Hruby recovered a fumbled Bemidji snap at the Lumberjacks' seven on the final play of the third quarter, setting up a touchdown sweep by Tom Ose on the first snap of the final period.

The on-side kick worked, with Steve Jorstad recovering Kevin Grochow's kick at the Bemidji 46, to set up a seven-yard touchdown run by Odegaard with 7:32 remaining. It was strong second effort by Odegaard, who stretched to break the plane of the end zone, that netted him the touchdown after he had been seemingly stopped cold at the two by a pair of Bemidji defenders.

"It was a very, very disappointing performance," concluded Schmitz.

Bemidji, like Thief River Falls, is now 4-2. The Lumberjacks will be at East Grand Forks Friday.

TOP RUNNER FOR the Lincoln high school girls cross country team this fall, junior Susie Hanna, rounded a green on the Thief River Country Club golf course Thursday during the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters invitational cross country meet. Hanna ran a third-place 13:33 over the two-mile course as she helped the Lincoln girls win their portion of the four-race event. In fact, it was a clean sweep for the Prowlers, who also won the boys varsity, boys junior varsity and boys junior high races in their only home appearance of the 1980 season.

BEMIDJI RUNNINGBACK Troy Hendricks out-ran Thief River Falls linebacker Rob Jorstad to score on an 11-yard touchdown run early in the third quarter of Friday's Northwest Athletic Conference high school football game played at Bemidji State University. Hendricks carried the ball six times for 61 yards and caught three passes for 47 yards in the Lumberjacks' 26-12 homecoming victory over the rival Prowlers.

Nordics Upset Hallock 20-13

Marshall County Central scrambled the Top of the State nine-man high school football conference standings Saturday with a 20-13 upset victory over previously unbeaten Hallock.

The Nordics' homecoming victory threw the Top of the State Conference lead into a three-way tie as Marshall County Central, Hallock and Argyle all carry 4-1 records into the final three weeks of regular season play.

Marshall County Central, beaten by Hallock 14-0 in the 1980 season opener that went into the books as a nonconference affair since the two teams were scheduled to meet twice in the reduced Top of the State Conference this fall, jumped out to a 20-0 lead Saturday night and held off a second half Hallock rally.

The Nordics went up 13-0 in the first quarter on touchdown runs by Gordy Collin and Bill Johnson covering 15 and 2 yards, respectively, along with a Dave Karagness conversion kick.

A nine-yard Rick VanCamp touchdown run in the second quarter, along with another conversion kick by Kragness, made it 20-0 at halftime.

Hallock's Brian Johnson passed for two touchdowns in the second half to narrow the gap, hitting Brian McVean with a five-yarder in the third quarter and finding Scott Norland for a 17-yarder in the final period.

Marshall County Central, 4-2 overall, will host Greenbush Friday.

"This one was a big one," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart after beating Hallock. "We came out and played real well at the start; we stuck it to them. We lost the momentum in the third quarter, but we came back and made the big plays on defense in the fourth quarter."

Three times Marshall County Central lost the ball in its own territory in the fourth quarter, but the Nordics got it back every time as Van Camp came up with two of this three interceptions for the night and Nate Stokke was credited with a key fourth down quarterback sack. Stokke, a defensive end, also came up with an interception, blocked a kick and was in on 14 tackles. Middle linebacker Steve Boe led the Nordics with 15 tackles while also coming up with an interception.

"We didn't make the big mistake this time like we have before," noted Gebhart.

Lincoln Runners Sweep All Four TRF Race Titles

Host Thief River Falls completed a clean sweep Thursday by winning all four races in the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters invitational cross country meet on the Thief River Country Club golf course.

The Prowlers won the boys varsity race with 49 points, followed by Kelvin of Winnipeg 52, Fort Totten 59 and Grand Forks Red River 93.

It was a one-two finish for the Prowlers as junior Bruce Johnson ran a 15:55 over the chilly three-mile course and sophomore Lon Aune was just six seconds back at 16:01.

Thief River Falls girls won with a 29-point effort, followed by Kelvin 43 and East Grand Forks 56.

Finishing in a pack, the Prowlers collected 3-4-5-6 places, headed by junior Susie Hanna, who ran a 13:33 over the windy two-mile lay-out for girls that was covered by a Kelvin runner in 12:42.

Thief River Falls junior varsity boys edged Kelvin 49-52 for first place, followed by Fort Totten 59, Red River 93 and East Grand Forks 157.

Although Thief River Falls' best junior varsity runner did no better than seventh, senior Todd Bergland's 17:49 three-mile run headed a 7-8-9 pack finish by the hosts.

Freshmen Jeff Matson and Doug Suronen placed 1-2 to lead Thief River Falls to the boys junior high title with 25 points, followed by Fort Totten 44 and Crookston 71. Matson won it with a 12:01 two-mile run and Suronen was second in 12:28.

Thief River Falls coach Lynn Dyer, who spent most of his day escorting the runners around the track on a motorcycle, was overjoyed with the performances by the Prowlers, but declined to single out indivuals.

"If I mention one name I'd have to say something about every runner," noted Dyer. "All of them were great. There is nothing better than running a good race at home in front of parents and local spectators."

"The junior high boys started the day off for us," continued Dyer. "And after they won the first race, the other runners just seemed to light up. Before long the entire team was just going nuts. Everyone was really fired up."

FIRST ARROW ever fired at a deer by Mrs. Chester (Marla) Yonke found its mark about 5 p.m. Thursday while Mr. and Mrs. Yonke were hunting northeast of Thief River Falls. Mrs. Yonke, who used a 45-pound recurve bow with which she has practiced the past three years, was offered a standing shot at about 20 yards. Although this was her first season hunting with a bow, she has bagged two other deer during firearms seasons.

A LONELY FIGURE, Lincoln high school senior Karen Kloety watched the race continue without her as she rested against a tree after turning an ankle during Thursday's Thief River Falls Sports Boosters invitational cross country meet on the Thief River Country Club golf course. It was a successful home appearance for the Prowlers who won all four races — boys and girls varsity, boys junior varsity and boys junior high. Thief River Falls will close out its 1980 regular season schedule Tuesday by competing in the Northwest Athletic Conference meet at East Grand Forks.

Skippers Rip Mentor 41-12 Behind Bengston, McKeever

Steve Bengston and Scott McKeever scored three touchdowns apiece Friday as Middle River belted Mentor 41-12 in North Tri County Conference nine-man high school football.

The victory ran the Skippers' winning streak to five games after a season-opening upset loss to Clearbrook and set up a Friday night showdown against unbeaten conference-leader McIntosh-Winger. The Skippers and Scots will tangle at 7:30 p.m. at McIntosh.

"It's going to be a rugged one," admitted Middle River coach Eldon Sparby as he looked ahead to the impending confrontation. "If we can control the ball on offense like we have been, and keep it away from them, I think we'll be all right."

Bengston, known for his size and not his speed, nevertheless broke a 60-yard touchdown run to open the scoring at Mentor. He added two typical short touchdown plunges and finished the day with 132 yards on 17 carries.

McKeever, who played sparingly in the second half after Middle River opened up a 28-12 halftime cushion, scored on a 50-yard run in the first quarter, burned Mentor on a 60-yard punt return for a touchdown in the third quarter and added a one-yard touchdown run in the final period. He carried the ball just six times from the line of scrimmage, but still netted 75 yards in the Skippers' 215-yard ground attack.

"Our first half wasn't that impressive," noted Sparby, "but we took over in the second half."

Eugene Kaml and Mike Peterson came up with two interceptions apiece against the pass-happy Trojans, 3-3.

Erskine 14

Oklee quarterbacks Richard Bronken and John Cyr passed for 197 yards Friday as Oklee rolled over Erskine 34-14 in a North Tri County Conference game played at Oklee.

Bronken, the starter, was just 4-for-15 in the completions and attempts departments, but those four completions went for 120 yards. Cyr was 4-for-8 for 77 more yards while catching a pair of touchdown passes himself, including a 74-yarder from Bronken in the third quarter that pushed the Bobcats' lead to 34-0 in their homecoming game.

A 14-0 Oklee halftime lead was quickly enlarged to 22-0 when Erskine fumbled away the second half kickoff. Paul Gunderson scored from the 20 on the first snap by the Bobcats. Gunderson, who rushed for 102 yards on 12 carries, also added the two-point conversion on the play.

"We dominated the first half, even though it was just 14-0," explained Oklee coach Dale Svaren. "We played well. We had the game under control at halftime."

Tackle Joel Stolaas led the Oklee defensive effort with 19 points on the Bobcats' defensive point charts, including a fumble recovery — one of five turnovers committed by the Comets.

Oklee, unbeaten in six conference starts, will host Mentor Friday before finishing the season against North Tri County Conference contenders McIntosh-Winger and Middle River. Erskine fell to 2-4.

Trapping Is Topic Of New Program Series

A program sponsored jointly by the Minnesota trappers association and the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources employing the use of video tapes is being presented in various parts of Minnesota this fall. The program emphasizes trapping ethics and correct trapping procedures.

Roger Holmes, DNR wildlife chief, said the Minnesota trappers association contributed $400 for the purchase of video tape sets last year.

A workshop is divided into six lessons corresponding to the tapes. Topics covered include trapping ethics, trapping laws, basic trapping equipment, trapping safety, trapping sets, and fur handling.

Said Holmes, "We want beginning trappers to learn proper techniques so that trapping can be carried out humanely, productively and efficiently."

Additional instructors are being south because of the large number of persons seeking to take the course. One of the requirements for instructors is that they have at least three years of trapping experience.

Those who are interested in becoming certified instructors should contact Tim Murphy, 421 Elm street, Farmington. Phone 612-463-8744.

A PACER for the runners participating in Thursday's Thief River Falls Sports Boosters invitational cross country meet, Thief River Falls coach Lynn Dyer rode a motorcycle around the Thief River Country Club course to show the route for the competitors during the sunny, but cool and windy weather. Dyer is shown checking the rear-view mirror to watch the progress of his top runner in the boys varsity race — Bruce Johnson, who won the three-mile event in 15:55. Thief River Falls runners swept all four races — boys and girls varsity, boys junior varsity and boys junior high.

Wildlife Survey Is Completed By DNR

Department of Natural Resources reports that pheasant populations in Minnesota this fall are substantially higher than in recent years.

Roger Holmes, DNR section of wildlife chief said, "Our higher population this year results from good over-winter survial combined with a good reproductive season.

"The central counties have the highest pheasant densities. Intensive agricultural practices and severe winter weather led to the decline of pheasants in southwest Minnesota and the center of pheasant abundance has shifted accordingly."

Populations still do not equal those in the early sixties, he added.

Holmes noted that ruffed grouse populations also have increased in most of Minnesota. "Our counts indicate a 46 per cent increase in the central hardwoods counties and a 29 per cent increase in the southeastern river counties."

He said the grouse population in the northwest is up about 12 per cent from last year.

"Research on grouse in northern Minnesota indicates that a high level of breeding activity was started early this year and was followed by good brood survival.

"According to historical records," said Holmes, "we should still be on an upswing in the 10-year grouse population cycle, although the classic increase seems to have stalled since 1978 due to unknown factors."

He said Hungarian partridge populations are at an all-time high in Minnesota and noted that Hun populations generally have increased in the farmland zone in recent years. "Numbers are up about 36 per cent from last year throughout their range and hunters will find the most birds in the southwest."

Sharptailed grouse populations are down from last year by 10-14 per cent in both the Aitkin county area and in the northwest, according to wildlife surveys.

The deer herd shows a slight increase in some areas of the state this year and no real change in others, said Holmes. He noted that the lack of severe weather last winter prevented extensive mortality.

The DNR license center has received about 185,000 antlerless permits applications compared to 225,000 last year.

"The success of antlerless permit holders is expected to increase in zones 1 and 2 because they can a take antlerless deer during the entire season in those zones," said Holmes.

Minnesota enjoyed a substantial increase in the number of ducks breeding in the state this spring. An estimated 756,000 ducks were observed, compared with 598,000 last year.

The 1980 figure is the highest recorded during the past six years. However, dry conditions resulted in poor nesting conditions in the Dakotas and the Canadian prairie provinces and will mean a significant decrease in the number of ducks migrating from those areas this fall.

A FOURTH QUARTER touchdown run by Thief River Falls halfback Dan Odegaard (22) was reason enough to celebrate with teammate Dave Upham (81) during Friday's Northwest Athletic Conference high school football game played at Bemidji. Odegaard scored on a outstanding effort as he bulled his way into the end zone from the Bemidji seven-yard line with 7:32 remaining in the muddy affair. But it wasn't enough as the Prowlers lost their NWAC opener to the Lumberjacks 26-12.

Stock, Gobell Lead Northmen . . .

Northland, Hibbing Play To A 6-6 Tie Saturday

Outstanding defensive play by Mark Stock and the leg of Jeff Gobell enabled Northland to tie Hibbing 6-6 Saturday in an MJCAA Northern Division community college football game played at Hibbing.

Gobell supplied the Northland points as the Thief River Falls sophomore kicked a 37-yard third quarter field goal and then added a 22-yarder midway through the fourth quarter.

Both Gobell field goals were set up by Stock, a Mahnomen freshman who was seeing his first full-time duty as a nose guard on defense after starting the season as a fullback. Stock came up with an interception that led to the third quarter Northland score and then recovered a Hibbing fumble at the Cardinals' 28 to put the Northmen in position for a tie.

And it was Stock who broke through to block Hibbing's conversion kick following a short touchdown run early in the first quarter.

"Mark Stock played an outstanding football game," reported Northland coach John Helley, who had the 5-8, 192-pounder credited with eight unassisted tackles and eight assisted tackles to go along with his blocked kick, fumble recovery and interception.

Stock's play spearheaded a strong Northland defensive performance that found the Northmen coming up with four pass interceptions and four fumble recoveries. Northland had a goal line stand at the one-yard line following a fumble by the Northmen in the first quarter.

"Our defense was super," acknowledged Helley. "Offensively we're sputtering. We can't get it going."

It was the second straight game the Northland offense has failed to put any points on the scoreboard. A Gobell field goal was the only Northland scoring in a 26-3 loss to Vermilion a week earlier. The 5-11, 176-pounder is now 3-for-5 in the field goal department and 5-for-5 kicking extra points to lead the team in scoring with 14 points. The two field goals in one game and three for the year are both new Northland records.

He missed a desperation 52-yard field goal try with five seconds left at Hibbing. Ironically, Hibbing didn't cover the ball on the play and Northland regained possession at the Cardinals' five-yard line. But time had expired.

In addition to Gobell's performance, Northland had another outstanding kicking game turned in Saturday by Duane Kjono, a sophomore from Mahnomen who averaged 42 yards on seven punts.

Northland, after spending the last two weekends on the Iron Range, will be at home Saturday when the 1-2-1 Northmen host a strong Fergus Falls team in a 1:30 p.m. Northern Division game on the Thief River Falls athletic field that will serve as Northland's homecoming contest.

Freshmen Are 46-0 Winners Over Valley

Lincoln high school freshman football team took a 14-0 halftime lead and turned it into a one-sided 46-0 victory over Valley junior high of Grand Forks Thursday on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

A three-yard first quarter touchdown run by Scott Jorstad and a one-yard second quarter touchdown run by Doug Odegaard, along with a two-point conversion by Mitch Semanko, supplied Thief River Falls with a 14-0 halftime edge.

In the second half, Jorstad scored on a 34-yard screen pass from Dave Stimac and added a 30-yard touchdown run; Odegaard scored on a 15-yard run; Semanko reached the end zone from 38 yards out; and Brian Kemnitz scored from the 35.

Thief River Falls, 3-2 for the year, will be at Crookston for a 4 p.m. game Tuesday.

Help Needed In Tracking Tagged Birds

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service scientists have requested citizen assistance to locate almost 1,000 red-winged blackbirds color-marked in an effort to determine breeding and migratory habits.

A part of the research is intended to aid in reduction of blackbird damage to grain crops.

According to Cal Royall of FWS's Denver wildlife research center, the birds were trapped, banded and marked with either blue or orange plastic tags in Canada last May.

Royall asked that the bird sightings be reported to state wildlife conservation officers, or that they write direct to him advising of the location, date and number of marked birds spotted at: Building 16, Denver Federal Center, Denver, Colo. 80225.

He said 507 redwings were marked with blue plastic tags in Manitoba and 412 redwings with orange plastic tags in Saskatchewan.

"Without citizen help, our prospects for tracking the routes of these relatively few marked birds among the millions in the migration would be poor," Royall said. "We have had fine cooperation from interested citizens in the past and are hopeful we will again have this help."

AN OPTION PLAY by Thief River Falls broke down Friday against Bemidji when halfback Dan Odegaard (22) couldn't hold on to the pitch from quarterback Scott Wiebolt (11), who was hit by a Bemidji defender as he unloaded the ball in the first quarter of the Northwest Athletic Conference game played at Bemidji State University. Wiebolt ending up recovering the fumble on the play, taking a seven-yard loss back to the Thief River Falls 21. The favored Prowlers fell behind 14-0 at the start and never recovered in dropping their 1980 NWAC opener to the Lumberjacks 26-12.

Fall Sports State Meets Start Oct. 22

First of eight Minnesota State High School League sponsored fall sports state tournament events being held during a seven-week span will begin October 22 when the seventh annual state Class AA and Class A girls tennis tournament gets underway.

Tennis action begins on Wednesday, Oct. 22, and runs thru Saturday, Oct. 25, at the Rein Tennis Clubs (Como, Phalen, Lilydale) in St. Paul. Team competition will be conducted on October 22 and 23, while singles and doubles play is slated for October 24 and 25.

Defending Class AA team champion is Edina East, who also won in 1978. In Class A St. Paul Academy was the team victor. Both singles champions from a year ago — Anne Lemieux, Edina East, in Class AA and Lisa Martin, St. Paul Academy, in Class A, are expected to win their way back to this year's tourney. New doubles champions, however, are assured as three of the four players from last year's winners have graduated.

Following the girls tennis event, the first ever state girls soccer tournament will be held on Tuesday and Thursday, Oct. 28 and 30. Four schools from among the state's 27 that are participating will enter state tourney play. Semifinal action on October 28 will pit champions against one another from among the section tournament winners. The championship clash is set for October 30. All games are scheduled for 7 p.m. Sites for contests will be determined once section victors are named.

Seventh annual state boys soccer tournament will also be held during the same week as the girls soccer playdowns. For the first time in the event's short history, eight teams will qualify for state berths. Previously four section winners had advanced.

Quarterfinal games will be played on October 28, semifinal games October 30, and the championship game is set for Saturday, Nov. 1. Quarterfinal and semifinal action will take place at 7 p.m. while the title game is set for 1 p.m. Sites of games will be known once section titlists are determined. There are 57 high schools sponsoring interscholastic soccer this fall. Robbinsdale is the defending state champion.

Next in line among the eight fall sports state meets is the annual state Class AA and Class A boys and girls cross country meets. Those running affairs take place on the University of Minnesota golf course in Falcon Heights on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 31 and Nov. 1.

Class A competition is scheduled for October 31 and the Class AA November 1. The girls will run 3,200 meters each day beginning at 1 o'clock with the boys covering 5,000 meter terrain starting at 2:30 p.m.

Girls cross country has a five-year history in the MSHSL. Boys cross country first began in 1943.

Defending Class AA boys team titlist is Burnsville, who has won the past four years. Winner of last year's Class AA girls title was Owatonna. In Class A 1979 team laurels in the boys competition went to Rochester Lourdes, while the Class A girls team victor last November was Montgomery-Lonsdale.

Two individual winners from among last year's four titlists are expected to win their way back into the 1980 state meet. They include boys Class AA winner Dan Roach, a senior from Minneapolis Southwest, who will try and become the first runner ever to capture three consecutive state championships, and girls Class A champion Kristin Asp, a senior from Lamberton.

Adding to the excitement of those early November days will be the ninth annual state football playoffs, scheduled for October 31-November 1 (quarterfinals); November 6-7 (semifinals); and November 14 (finals).

Among the 496 teams throughout the state playing interscholastic football, 40 of them (eight in each of five classes) will advance to the state playdowns. Competition will once again be conducted in classes AA, A, B, C and nine-man.

Sites for all games will be determined once qualifying teams are known. Defending champions include Columbia Heights in Class AA, Rochester Lourdes in Class A, Gaylord in Class B, Bird Island-Lake Lillian in Class C and Russell in nine-man.

Seventh annual state girls Class AA and Class A volleyball tournament is also on the November slate. Scheduled for the Met Center in Bloomington on Friday and Satuday, Nov. 14 and 15, that event will bring together eight region champions in each class for three rounds of championship series play.

Then just prior to the Thanksgiving recess will be the 39th annual state boys gymnastics meet, scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Nov. 21-22, at Edina West high school.

Team and all-around winners will be named on November 21. The schedule for November 22 includes competition in the six individual events. Robbinsdale is the defending team champion.

Twenty-fifth state girls swimming and diving championships, scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Dec. 5 and 6, at Cooke Hall pool on the campus of the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, round out the fall sports state events calendar.

Preliminaries in all 11 events is scheduled for December 5 with finals on tap December 6. Hopkins Lindbergh is the two-time defending state team champion.

Dicken, Semanko On MSU Football Team

Thief River Falls products Don Dicken and Murray Semanko are contributing members to the rousing football success story at Moorhead State University this fall, reports MSU sports information director Larry Scott.

Transfers from Northland community college, Dicken and Semanko are both seniors at Moorhead State and fill reserve roles with the high-flying Dragons.

Dicken, a 6-1, 216-pound service veteran, has been stationed at defensive tackle. A criminal justice major, he plans a career in law enforcement.

Semanko, a 5-9, 191-pound fullback, rushed for six yards in his only carry against Bemidji State University. He is majoring in industrial illustration.

MSU visited Winona State University last Saturday and returns home for a regionally televised (WDAY-TV) meeting with Mankato State University October 11.

In Memoriam

In remembrance of Stuart Stark's 23rd birthday:

To My Dear Son!

There's many a tear I shed for you, my son, when I am blue.
No matter what people say to me, I always think of you.
They tell me time will ease the pain, but so far, it's all in vain.
I did not want to give you up, but 'twas not for me to say.
I look forward to the time we will meet again.
This is what I have in my heart.
And this is what I pray.

Your mother, Mariann 1t78p

85 Motorcycle Deaths Noted To Mid-August

A study of 85 motorcycle deaths in Minnesota through mid-August shows 50 resulted from crashes of cycles with other vehicles, said commissioner John P. Sopsic of the Minnesota department of public safety.

Twenty died when their machines struck trees, culverts or other objects and 15 fatalities were from accidents where cycles ran off the road.

The 85 motorcycle related deaths is only 13 less than the 1979 total figure. All occurred after April 1 with 10 in April, 18 in May, 22 in June, 20 in July and 15 by mid-August.

Most deaths happened in late evening or early morning; 24 in early morning and 31 from 6 p.m. to midnight. There were five accidents involving two deaths. Twenty-eight other injuries resulted from cycle crashes.

Sopsic said of the figures: "They give us more indication about what is happening on streets and highways this year. Statistics can never accurately reflect the amount of grief resulting from just one accident. They do tell us again that we have to slow down, respect other's rights and obey regulations."

Minnesota is not without neighbors who understand the problem. In Wisconsin the number of motorcycle deaths has increased from 68 in 1977 to 124 in 1979. Wisconsin's helmet law was repealed in 1978. Minnesota took its helmet requirement off the books in 1976.

Van Replaces Truck Used By Crime Bureau

Minnesota's modern crime investigation program has taken a further step ahead by providing on-the-spot investigation with a new mobile crime laboratory van, according to Commissioner John Sopsic of the Minnesota department of public safety (DPS). The bureau of criminal apprehension (BCA), a DPS division, has recently added the van, replacing a three-quarter ton truck which was previously used in the field.

"The van has everything as far as investigative equipment is concerned," BCA superintendent John Erskine said. The new van is equipped with photography equipment, metal detector, a refrigerator and a large variety of kits for gathering crime scene evidence.

BCA's former mobile crime investigation vehicle was a modified three-quarter ton truck. Its use was pretty well limited to transporting cases of equipment to crime sites for daytime collection of evidence, according to Erskine.

"The new van has storage space for all types of containers necessary for storing evidence at the crime scene. It has a generator and flood lights to allow for nighttime investigation," Erskine said.

A few amenities such as heating, air conditioning, plumbing and desk top work space make the van a virtual "on the scene office" for the two investigators or lab technicians accompanying it, Erskine said.

"It is good, for example, in -20 weather to be able to work right out of the van as an office instead of possibly disrupting a crime scene," he added.

A pair of BCA crime investigators flew to New Jersey in July for intensive 40-hour orientation courses on the van's operation. They accepted delivery for the state and drove the mobile crime van back to Minnesota.

The van quickly showed its value to the BCA. A week after arriving here it was pressed into action investigating a stabbing death. Local authorities were reportedly pleased by the van's utility, Erskine said.

BCA's mobile crime scene investigation van cost the state about $25,000 for the vehicle and equipment. Erskine said it is one of the finest and best-equipped vehicles of its kind in Minnesota.

The old unit was used about twice each month. The new van should see more use than that, according to Erskine, as the bureau's technicians and investigators get accustomed to its greater visibility.

New Potato Variety Yields Better Chips

Potato chips that are less fattening than the chips of yesteryear are becoming more and more popular. What's leading the way seems to be not so much a concern about those spare tires around people's middles; rather it's a combination of changes in economics, nutrition, and advances in agricultural and food processing technology.

"We're learning to appreciate the value of potatoes with low moisture content," says research chemist Edward C. Lulai of USDA's Science and Education Administration — Agricultural Research.

Chips made from high moisture potatoes must be cooked longer because frying of potato chips is essentially a drying operation. That means a larger energy bill for the food processor. Cooking oils in which chips are fried can be expensive too, and Lulai says the high moisture potatoes absorb more of these oils that add calories to consumers' diets.

A measure of the relative amounts of moisture and dry matter is called specific gravity. Potatoes with high specific gravity are high in dry matter content. They yield a greater weight of chips than potatoes of the same size with low specific gravity.

With the help of a computer, Lulai and agricultural engineer Paul H. Orr derived mathematical equations that define the chip yield and chip oil content that processors can expect from potatoes of a given specific gravity. The researchers obtained data for the equations from chipping experiments in a pilot plant at the Red river valley potato research laboratory at East Grand Forks.

Potatoes with a low specific gravity such as 1.06 produced low chip yields — only 28 per cent of their weight in chips. In contrast, potatoes with specific gravity as high as 1.11 produced more than 36 per cent of their weight in chips and contained 28 per cent less oil.

Lulai's and Orr's study also showed how many potatoes must be tested from a potato lot of a given size to obtain a statistically reliable specific gravity measurement.

Specific gravity in potatoes may vary according to the agronomic conditions under which the tubers are grown. Well balanced soil fertility and good moisture management enhance the specific gravity of potatoes. Also, some varieties have higher specific gravity than others.

In the spring of 1980, North Dakota state university, Fargo, and the Red river valley potato research laboratory, East Grand Forks, announced the development of a new potato variety called Crystal which averaged nearly 10 per cent higher in dry matter content than a popular variety called Kennebec in six years of tests.

As potato breeders at North Dakota state university and the University of Minnesota, St. Paul, develop new breeding lines, they routinely send samples to the Red river valley potato research laboratory for evaluation of processing qualities.

Conference On Disabled Will Draw 2,000

Two thousand Minnesotans are expected to attend the 1980 Minnesota governor's conference on disabled persons October 10-11 at the Saint Paul civic center. The conference, Minnesota's official kick-off for the 1981 international year of disabled persons, is sponsored by Governor Albert Quie and the Minnesota state council for the handicapped.

Purpose of the conference is reflected in its theme, "Access to Opportunity — Full Participation", for all disabled people. The opportunity for appropriate employment, education, transportation, housing and recreation are a few of the topics to be addressed at the conference.

The conference will be honored with the presence of nationally recognized leaders in the disabled community to keynote at Friday's opening session and at Saturday's international year kick-off luncheon. Governor Quie will address the participants during Friday's session at 1 p.m. Richard L. Ramberg, executive director, Minnesota state council for the handicapped, and Sandra Gordon, conference chairman, are two of the leaders heavily involved in planning the conference.

Along with a host of speakers, there will be a job fair with approximately 60 employers available for information and assistance to disabled persons seeking employment and knowledge in the job market and also an extensive exposition of services and devices. Also featured are consumer displays of creative accomplishments or innovative ideas, 14 widely varying workshops focusing on pertinent issues, and entertainment including the winners of the Sister Kenny talent show, the PACER Center puppets, and the Barbary Coast Banjo Brass.

Feed, Forage Hints To Help Dairy Herds

This year's drought in northwestern Minnesota will probably make forages more expensive than grain to supply energy for milk production.

"Grain can be used to replace a considerable portion of forage in the ration," says Jim Linn, extension dairy specialist at the University of Minnesota. However, a minimum amount of forage is needed to supply fiber in the ration. Rations with excessive amounts of grain will lower milk fat and cause digestive problems.

Linn says lactating cows need a minimum forage dry matter intake of one per cent body weight (13 pounds of forage dry matter for a 1300-pound cow). Or, 40 per cent of the total ration's dry matter content should be from forage. At minimum levels, long dry, forages are preferred to maintain rumen function.

Dry cows should be fed forage dry matter at 1.5 per cent of body weight (higher if fine chopped silages are fed). Dry cow rations should contain a minimum of 65 per cent forage dry matter.

Calves less than four months old require no forage provided adequate fiber sources are included in the starter rations. Starter rations should contain eight per cent crude fiber or more from ear corn, corn cobs, beet pulp or other fiber sources.

Heifers older than four months should get a minimum of one per cent body weight as forage dry matter. Heifers should be fed to gain about 1.5 pounds a day, but don't let them get too fat.

"Try not to sacrifice optimum milk production," Linn advises. He lists these management tips:

—Carefully plan and formulate the feeding program. This includes selecting the best feed buys for energy and protein, locating adequate forage supplies and testing all forages for nutritive content. Rations must be balanced for protein and minerals. As feedstuffs change, you need to continually re-evaluate and reformulate rations.

—Cull older, marginally productive animals. But don't cull replacement animals unnecessarily to save feed since this could damage the future of your dairy herd.

—Cows should be gradually adjusted to high grain, low forage rations. Buffers will help correct problems of low fat tests and digestive upsets frequently encountered with high grain rations. Recommended buffers include sodium bicarbonate (baking soda), bentonite, magnesium oxide, methionine hydroxy analog, and dried whey.

More detailed information on buffers is available from Minnesota county extension offices in northwestern Minnesota. County agents also have detailed information on alternative forages and substituting grain for forage in the dairy ration.

Pain In Lower Back Common Human Ailment

Back pain has been described as one of the prices mankind pays for standing erect. If so, it is a price that is widely shared, for the Arthritis foundation has found that 80 per cent of the population suffers from low back pain.

While one of several kinds of arthritis can be an underlying cause of low back pain, it is neither the only one nore the most common, foundation investigators report. Poor posture probably leads the list that also includes fractures, tumors and disc problems.

Medical attention is needed for accurate diagnosis, and rest followed by some kind of medication, exercise or physical therapy is usually directed, the Arthritis foundation has found.

A leaflet published by the Minnesota chapter of the Arthritis foundation is available without charge to those who call the Arthritis Foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. Answers to other questions about arthritis will also be sought.

Combined public support, usually through the United Fund, makes the free services of the Arthritis foundation possible in most Minnesota communities.

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES

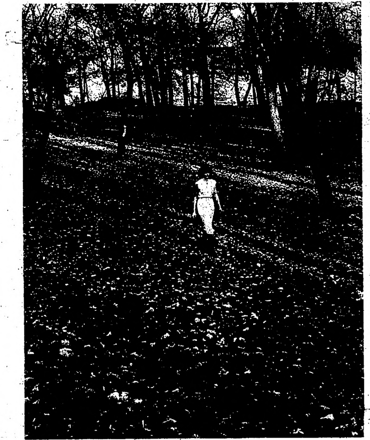
Volume 69 (USPS 627-360) Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota Wednesday, October 8, 1980 Number 79



SUNLIGHT AND SHADOW cast ribbons of light and dark across Oakland Park, located next to the former Oakland Park nursing home in Thief River Falls. The park created by Pennington county is one of several in the city where the public can enjoy an autumn outing to picnic, bask in the sunshine or take a peaceful walk among the autumn leaves. Temperatures into the 70's the past couple of days under mostly clear skies resulted in near-perfect fall days for enjoying the out-of-doors.

Disagreement Noted On School Tax Projections

Question of accuracy in projection of tax effect from the proposed $15 million school bond issue in School District 564 remains unanswered — or more exactly, remains answered in at least two different ways.

Tables of tax projections for residential property in Thief River Falls published in the Times and in the informational brochure circulated by the local citizens' committee were prepared by Springsted, Inc., bonding consultants, from information received through Pennington county assessor and auditor offices.

Those figures were questioned by local citizens who received another table of statistics on Thief River Falls residential property from the county assessor's office. That table was published in Monday's edition of the Times.

In a telephone conversation with the Tims this morning, Ron Langness of the Springsted firm said his company stands by its original projections and, following discussion with the county assessor Tuesday, sees no reason to change them.

"The county assessor indicated to me when we prepared the original table that the average limited market value of residential property in Thief River Falls was in the $30,000 to $40,000 range," Langness said. "He also indicated that the anticipated increase in valuation from this year to next year would be in the range from 33 to 38 per cent.

"In the table published Monday, the assessor has taken a home valued at $30,000 this year and projected it at a valuation of $50,000 next year —an increase of abougt 67 per cent. Using $10,000 increments in the remainder of the table, the percentage gets closer as the figures increase; however, there are considerably fewer houses in those valuation categories."

Langness said a move from $30,000 to $40,000 in limited market value would be closer to the 33 to 38 per cent valuation increase projected, and called the assessor's projections "exaggerated". The Springsted tables had used figures in the 33 per cent area.

Also questioned is the application of the current year's mill rate to the increased valuations. If budgets remain unchanged, increased valuations should result in reduced mill rate to produce the same amount of revenue. Budgets for local governments have not yet been set for the coming year, making it impossible to determine how much money will have to be raised through county, city, school district and township levies.

County assessor Gerard DeHaan also continues to maintain that the information he provided and which was published Monday is factual.

"The average valuation increase for the residential property in the city is 30 per cent," he said, "but some of the newer houses, which are in the higher valuations, will increase 75 to 80 per cent. There are more older houses with lower valuations which bring the average down to 38 per cent.

"It is possible the average house in 1979 had a limited market value of $30,000 to $40,000," he added, "but the average for 1980 (taxes payable in 1981) has to be at least $40,000 to $50,000."

DeHaan also said he used the past year's mill rate in making the projections because he anticipates increased budgets for local governments and there are a number of changes being made in assessed valuations applied to the limited market values.

The assessor said he has received a number of telephone calls, has made many studies of actual examples, and will attend tonight's public forum at 7 p.m. in the city auditorium.

Newfolden To Open Housing Project Soon

The long-awaited sixplexes are nearing completion in Newfolden and applications for occupancy this fall are being processed. The 12 apartments are being built by Newfolden Community Homes, Inc., a non-profit corporation and they are an Equal Housing Opportunity project. Financing, as well as rent subsidy, is provided by FmHA with a rural rental housing for the elderly loan under Plan II.

This plan provides that anyone 62 years of age and over is eligible to rent these apartments. There is no income limit.

The amount of rent is based on the adjusted annual income of each renter. It provides housing that allows older people to remain in their home community and not have the work and expense of maintaining a house and yard. A utility allowance, which is the amount of electricity for heating estimated to be used by each tenant on an average monthly basis, will be subtracted from the rent each one pays.

The sixplexes are located next to the three duplexes which were built by the Newfolden Community Homes in 1968. The duplexes have seldom been vacant for even a short period of time and a waiting list was growing, so

School Bond Vote Scheduled Tuesday

Voters in Independent School District 564, Thief River Falls, will go to the polls Tuesday to determine whether or not the district will issue $15 million in general obligation bonds for construction of a new high school and remodeling of existing facilities.

Specific question to be stated on the ballot is: "Shall the school board of Independent School District No. 564, Minnesota, be authorized to issue general obligation bonds of the district in an amount not exceeding $15,000,000 to finance the acquisition and betterment of school facilities, including constructing, furnishing and equipping of a new senior high school in Thief River Falls?"

Voters will mark the ballot with a "yes" vote if they favor issuance of the bonds and construction of the school and a "no" vote if they are opposed to the bonding and building plans.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the four polling sites in the district — St. Hilaire school for the former St. Hilaire school district; Franklin middle school for the area south and east of the Red Lake river; Lincoln high school for the area west of the Red Lake river; and the area vocational-technical institute for the area north of the Red Lake river and east of the Thief river.

Persons unable to be present to vote in the bond election may obtain absentee ballots at the superintendent's office in the school district service center any school day until 5 p.m. through Monday, October 13.

Eligible to vote in the election is anyone 18 years of age or older who is a citizen of the United States, a resident of the school district and who has resided in Minnesota for 20 days or longer.

Not eligible to vote are those under the age of 18 or anyone who has been convicted of treason or any felony and not had his civil rights restored, is under guardianship or is adjudicated non compos mentis or insane. Voter registration is not required in school district elections.

Proposed use for the $15,000,000 in bonds is the construction of a new senior high school with auditorium and center school facilities on district-owned property on the northeast side of Thief River Falls, and the remodeling of elementary schools for safety, energy efficiency and accessibility.

(Editor's Note: Following comments were written by Lincoln high school principal Frank Hamerlinck at the request of the local citizens' committee to better explain the closed campus concept associated with the proposed school bond issue.)

Closed campus means designing a building and site to house all students for the full school day. It also means designing a program of education to meet the needs of the students who will be housed on this campus.

Students must learn some basic concepts of living which can be taught within the closed campus design. Rules and regulations which go with the closed campus attempt to relate to students that their coming and going from the campus will be controlled and is intended to insure an environment conducive to learning and teaching.

Site control includes district-owned parking lots and all other district-owned property at the site. This control is not available to us at this time. A closed campus would mean that the students would come to the site at the beginning of the school day and remain there for the entire day, including the student noon hour. This is difficult today because of the split-campus classes and little or no room within the building where the students can be when they are not in class.

There are opportunities for students to leave the site when you have a closed campus, but this would be under the direct control of the school. An example of this would be field trips, school supervised work programs, and medical appointments.

It is anticipated that the closed campus will reduce the exposure of students to influences outside of the school which could be detrimental to their educational and physical well-being. It also means that

The groom's mother wore a floor-length, navy blue and white dotted gown fashioned with a white lace trimmed empire bodice with long, sheer sleeves. A ruffle, edged with white lace, enhanced the hemline. Their corsages were of yellow roses, white apple blossoms and babies' breath. All the floral arrangements, and corsages at the wedding were of silk and were made by the bride.

MCC Advisory Council Formed At Newfolden

Marshall County Central (MCC) school board has recently chosen a 21-member community education advisory council. Elementary principal James Hodney was named coordinator of this task force.

Every effort was made to include council members from different locations in the district, as well as having the members represent different age groups and occupations, Hodney said.

At an organizational meeting conducted in the MCC library recently, the following officers were elected: chairman, John Rokke; vice chairman, John Haglund; and secretary, Leanna Bengston.

Discussion centered on how the council should operate and what its priorities should be. It was agreed that each member should get as much input as possible from his or her neighbors and friends in the school district as to what classes should be offered.

Next meeting is set for Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the MCC library. Anyone who has any suggestions as to what courses should be included in this year's program should contact any of the above named members before that date.

3 From TRF Student Teach In Area Schools

Bemidji state university director of student teaching, Dr. Gordon Oberg, announce that three Thief Rver Falls students are currently teaching in the area.

Renee Bedard and Jodell Dallmann are both assigned to Washington elementary in Thief River Falls with David L. Peterson placed at Oklee high school.

Student teaching is required of all students seeking the bachelor of science degree in education and Minnesota certification for teaching. Students placed in area schools by BSU are supervised by a teacher from that school district, as well as a supervisor from the division of education at Bemidji state.

While serving in the school systems, student teachers observe daily classroom techniques and routines, serve on occasion as the teacher of the class, and assist their supervising teacher in preparation and presentation of class materials.

The student teaching experience is usually the culmination of a student's preparation for the teaching profession and is viewed by many students as the most valuable requirement of their teacher education.

Johnson; architect Fordon Olson, branch manager Curtis Brandt, board members Ronald D. Haugen, Lenord Swanson, Dona Rock and Edward G. Moe and vice president of credit Tarry L. Edington. The new building will serve as headquarters office for the association which provides agricultural credit in several northwestern Minnesota counties.

Babysitter Co-op Formed; To Meet Mon.

Thief River Falls Babysitting Co-op will meet Monday (October 13) from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the St. Bernard's church basement meeting room.

This newly formed babysitting co-op is a pool of families who provide babysitting for one another with no cost involved. Each member may choose who they want to watch their own children and which families they will babysit for.

Babysitters care for children in their own home and are credited with points which they can later "spend" when they need a sitter. Some members are interested in providing occasional daytime or evening sitting, whereas others are available to care for children for an entire day or overnight.

Guidelines are set up to govern how points are earned, with a co-op secretary keeping point records for the entire group. Anyone interested in joining should bring a 50-cent membership fee and vital information about their children to go on a master list. Anyone is welcome. If you have any questions, contact Pat Hoefer at 681-1934.

Gov. Quie's Column

There was good news for Minnesota taxpayers last week when it was announced that state projections for inflation over the past year were within .2 of 1 per cent of accuracy, ensuring that Minnesotans will receive more than $289 million of income tax relief due to indexing tax brackets during the current biennium.

The Consumer Price Index (CPI) for the Twin Cities, which is used as the basis for expanding income tax brackets so that Minnesota taxpayers will not automatically be pushed into higher income tax brackets by inflation, showed a 10.17 per cent increase since August 1979. The state Department of Revenue had estimated the inflation rate to be 10.3 per cent.

This tax relief from indexing will benefit middle-income Minnesotans most. Of the $289 million, $159 million would have been collected this biennium as income tax from Minnesotans earning between $10,000 and $30,000.

For a family of four with one wage earner receiving $18,000 per year, (which is about the state average), indexing will save $170 in income taxes from Jan. 1, 1979 to Dec. 31, 1980. That family, whose state income tax obligation in 1979 without indexing would have been $1,024, will pay $854 after indexing in 1980.

Tax relief from indexing, combined with other tax relief enacted in 1979 and 1980, brings total tax relief during the current biennium to $777 million, the largest tax cut in state history.

On an individual level that means $200 of tax relief for every man, woman and child in the state.

Let me briefly explain how indexing works.

The new CPI figure of 10.17 per cent, which was prepared by the federal department of Labor, is used to compute the inflation rate for the year.

The 10.17 per cent increase is multiplied by .85 because indexing for state income taxes was set at 85 per cent of inflation by the 1979 Legislature. As a result individual income brackets will expand taxes by 8.6 per cent.

Before indexing was enacted, a taxpayer who received a cost-of-living salary increase would not only pay a higher tax but be taxer at a higher percentage.

For example, for taxes due in the spring of 1980 a taxpayer paid a 1.6 per cent tax on the first $551 of taxable income, 2.2 per cent on the next $551, 3.5 per cent on the next $1,101 and so on. This spring the bracket will be expanded by 8.6 per cent so a taxpayer would pay a 1.6 per cent tax on the first $559 of taxable income, 2.2 per cent on the next $559, 3.5 per cent on the next $1,196.

By expanding the brackets, state income taxes rise only slightly faster than personal income, thus preventing automatic surpluses in the state treasury, such as those which occurred before the 1979 implementation of indexing.

Right now we are seeing a savings to taxpayers of $289 million due to indexing at 85 per cent of inflation. Although it will not be in the upcoming biennium, due to our current tight fiscal situation, it is my future goal to extend this tax relief by seeking 100 per cent rate of indexing.

Conference On Aging Studies Senior Needs

"People living in rural Minnesota will soon have an opportunity to thoroughly discuss the concerns of rural seniors at the mini-conference on aging," said Paul Anderson, Minnesota Green Thumb state director.

A rural mini-conference on aging will be conducted at the Holiday Inn in Sioux Falls, S.D. October 19, 20 and 21. Green Thumb and Farmers Union are sponsoring the event which will include the states of Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

People will be challenged to vote their concerns about the unique problems in rural areas and to recommend solutions at the local level. Resolutions that are adopted from this conference will have an effective impact on the issues to be discussed for the 1981 White House conference on aging in Washington, D.C., Anderson said.

Nineteen voting delegates from Minnesota will attend the conference, 17 selected by the rural Task Force on aging in the state and two sponsored delegates.

Other interested individuals or agency representatives are sincerely urged to attend this conference designed to afford delegates and non-delegates alike a chance to jump in and participate. Mini-conference is rural America's opportunity to shine. Federal agencies participating to date in the inter-agency agreement and in the funding of the rural mini-conferences are: U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, U.S. Dept. of Labor, U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development and the Applachian Regional Commission.

Green Thumb, Inc., an employment program for rural men and women age 55 and older, working for community service organizations, is sponsored by the national farmers union and is funded through the U.S. Dept. of Labor and local project sponsors.

For more information on the regional mini-conference contact: Minnesota Green Thumb, Box 310, Wadena, MN 56482 or call (218) 631-3483.

NCC Receives Enforcement Grant Of $900

Congressman Arlan Stangeland announced recently that Northland community college at Thief River Falls has received a law enforcement education program (LEEP) grant in the amount of $900 from the U.S. department of education.

Under the provisions of Section 406 of the crime control act of 1976 (Public Law 94-503) as amended, Northland community college was named as participating in LEEP.

LEEP provides education grants and-or loans to public law enforcement and criminal justice personnel and students who are committed to careers in the criminal justice system. Awards may cover the costs of tuition and mandatory fees. Grants are available only to currently employed criminal justice personnel and may be up to $400 per semester of $250 per quarter. Loans are available only to full-time students (currently employed or preparing for criminal justice employment) and may not exceed $2,200 per academic year.

Actual awards of grants and-or loans to students are made by participating schools. Awards for the 1980-81 academic year will again be restricted to returning and community college transfer students who were recipients of LEEP awards during the 1979-80 academic year.

Last Day To Pre-Register To Vote Is Oct. 14

Last day to pre-register to vote in the November 4 general election is Tuesday, October 14.

"Being pre-registered will insure that the voter doesn't have to go through the lengthy process of proving who he or she is on election day," secretary of state Joan Growe said.

Anyone wishing to register should contact his or her city clerk or county auditor and have a registration card sent out. The card should be filled out and returned by October 14. It is not necessary for the card to be notarized nor is it necessary for it to be witnessed by another voter.

"The total process," Growe said, "takes about three minutes and will save the voter and election officials many problems on election day."

Registrant is sent a non-forwardable post card after registering to confirm that he or she lives at the address.

Persons who have never registered, have moved or changed their name, or who have not voted in the past four years must register in order to vote.

In order to be qualified to register, a voter must:

—Be a citizen of the United States;

Be a resident of the state for 20 days preceding the election;

—Be 18 years of age by election day;

—Not be under guardianship over his person, adjudicated insane, or convicted of treason or felony without having his civil rights restored.

Interim Action Taken On Milk Pricing Orders

U.S. Department of Agiculture has established an interim procedure for announcing Class II milk prices in 29 federal milk marketing orders while assessing the record of an August 12 hearing on the matter. The hearing record will be the basis for a recommended proposal to be made later by USDA.

Herbert L. Forest, dairy official with the Agricultural Marketing Service, said the interim procedure was necessitated by an order of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, which had ruled invalid the existing announcement procedures in the 29 orders. Court ordered USDA to establish on the basis of further rulemaking procedures a method for announcing Class II prices, and, pending the completion of these procedures, to use the same notice procedures as for Class I prices.

Under the interim procedure, the Class II price for each of the orders will be the dairy division director's estimate of the Minnesota-Wisconsin manufactured milk price for the month plus 10 cents per hundredweight (45 kilograms), Forest said. Class II price in the interim action will be announced on the same day of the preceding month that the Class I price is presently announced.

Based on that announcement each month, the procedure will continue as closely as possible the present relationship between Class II and Class III milk prices in each order.

The interim action will be published in the October 3 Federal Register.

The 29 milk orders affected by the interim action are: St. Louis-Ozarks, Georgia, Tennessee Valley, Chicago Regional, Southern Illinois, Louis - Lexington - Evansville, Indiana, Central Illinois, Greater Kansas City, Nebraska-Western Iowa, Upper Midwest, Neosho Valley, Wichita, Eastern South Dakota, Iowa, New Orleans-Mississippi, Greater Louisiana, Memphis, Nashville, Paducah, Fort Smith, Red River Valley, Oklahoma Metropolitan, Central Arkansas, Lubbock-Plainview, Texas, Central Arizona, Texas Panhandle, and Rio Grande Valley.

'80 Crop Insurance Act Expands FCIC Program In U.S.

Federal Crop Insurance corporation (FCIC) stands ready to begin immediate implementation of the provisions of the "federal crop insurance act of 1980" signed into law by the president, says Everett S. Sharp, acting manager.

"As an agency of the U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) we bring more than 40 years of experience in administering FCIC programs into action and look forward to developing positive working relationships with American farmers, private insurance agents and companies and with other USDA agencies under this new program," Sharp says.

New law will permit rapid expansion of the present FCIC program from 1,670 counties and 28 crops into a nationwide "all-risk" insurance plan covering all farm commodities. Also included is extension for one year of the low-yield disaster program administered by the USDA's agriculture stabilization and conservation service (ASCS).

Basic plan is to expand into an additional 250 counties in each of the next five years with priority consideration given to counties which produce the basic disaster crops of wheat, cotton, corn, grain sorghum, barley and rice, Sharp says.

"We anticipate announcing the initial 250 counties prior to planting of the 1981 spring crops. This will permit farmers to purchase "all-risk" crop insurance on about 94 per cent of all the acreage planted to these six disaster crops this first year," he adds.

A more gradual expansion is planned for 22 other crops presently insured by FCIC and all other crops and commodities will be included as rapidly as funding and actuarial data permit.

"All FCIC regional offices have been instructed to begin completing commission sales agreements with licensed private agents and brokers effective for the 1981 crop year which is now underway," Sharp states.

"This arrangement will provide farmers an opportunity to insure their crops under the 'all-risk' plan through their local participating private insurance agent or directly with the government."

Complete information on the agent system and any of three sales and serving agreements is now available at each of the 18 FCIC regional offices across the country or through the national office in Washington, D.C.

"We anticipate a heavy signup of new policyholders this spring — especially due to the estimated $283,000,000 in crop loss benefits now being paid to some 125,500 insured farmers across the country mainly due to the severe summer drought, Sharp says.

"The 1980 year undoubtedly will be record breaking in terms of indemnities paid by FCIC in the history of its 42 years of assisting farmers through the voluntary insurance plan," he adds.

In Minnesota the estimated insured crop losses to corn, wheat, barley, oats, soybeans, sunflowers and sugarbeets totals $16,523,464, according to W. J. Dufresne, director of the St. Paul regional FCIC office. About 8,344 insured farm units are in the process of receiving indemnity payments.

The most notable program improvement for the 1981 crop year under the new legislation will be the 30 per cent discount in premium for those farmers who choose to insure.

"This is being provided as an added incentive for farmers to participate in the shared-cost insurance program as compared to other types of disaster assistance programs, Sharp says.

In general, farmers will be offered a choice of three levels of insurance coverage based upon average crop yields in their area for the past 10 to 15 years. These coverage levels generally will be 50, 65 and 75 per cent of average production.

"The premium subsidy will be paid only on coverage up to and including the 65 per cent level. Farmers will pay full premium cost for insurance on the increment between 65 per cent and 75 per cent if they select the highest coverage," Sharp adds.

In addition, farmers will be offered three choices of price election to value any production lost under the insurance plan. Top choice will approximate market price for the commodity being insured and will be determined in advance based upon the best information available, he indicates.

While complete program details are not yet fully determined, producers in areas where crop insurance coverage is now available may begin signing up at any time by contacting their nearest FCIC representative. Additional opportunities will be announced as new counties and new programs are made available, Sharp says.

The FCIC regional office in St. Paul is located at Room 222, Federal Building, 316 Robert Street, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101; phone (612) 725-5871.

Tips On Giving Medication To Household Pets

by Robert L. Stear, D.V.M.

Few pets take medication willingly. Most pet owners use either trickery or physical force to send tablets and liquids down a pet's throat.

One popular ruse involves concealing medication within the pet's favorite food. Tablets and capsules are easily hidden in small balls of chopped beef or cooked liver. The distinctive odor of liver can help mask the chemical smell that accompanies some medications.

If you find your pet greedily eats the meat, but leaves the medicine in the food bowl or on the floor, it's time for stronger action.

The technique of "pilling" a cat or dog depends on proper placement of the tablet far back on the tongue so that the pet automatically swallows. The method has four basic steps: positioning your pet, opening its mouth, placing the medicine on the back of the tongue, and encouraging the pet to swallow.

To start, place the pet next to your left side on a smooth, slippery surface — a table top for a small pet, or a bare floor for a larger animal. This gives your pet the least opportunity to pull away. If you're medicating the animal by yourself, hold it firmly under your left arm, with the head facing forward. Otherwise, have a friend hold the pet steady.

Place your left hand over the animal's eyes: fingers on one side, thumb on the other. Gently tilt the head backward, squeezing the corners of the mouth slightly. The pet should open its mouth.

Holding the medicine between the thumb and finger of your right hand, place the dose on the pet's tongue, as far back into the throat as possible, and then close the jaws. Hold them closed with the left hand, and begin to gently stroke the throat with the first fingers of the right hand, to encourage swallowing.

You should be able to see the muscles of the throat ripple slightly as the pet swallows. Until you acquire the knack of placing the tablet far enough back on the tongue, you'll need to watch your pet for a few minutes to guarantee that the medicine isn't ejected onto the floor.

If you must give your cat or dog a bad-tasting liquid, don't try to pour it down the pet's throat. The fluid may enter the lungs and cause pneumonia, or it may be splattered all over the floor.

A dog's facial skin is loose enough so that you can retract the skin at the corner of the mouth to make a small pocket. Pour the liquid from a spoon into this pocket, tip the muzzle up, and hold the dog's mouth closed. The pet will swallow shortly. A cat can also be dosed in this fashion, although the cheek pocket is smaller, and the liquid may need to be given in several increments, with time for swallowing in between.

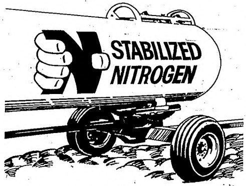
The fall-applied nitrogen that won't leave the soil when things are hot.



A lot of farmers who would like to apply all their nitrogen in the fall, don't. And for one good reason: Nitrogen losses.

Which can run up to 50% in a warm, wet season when conditions are optimal for the bacteria that convert regular nitrogen into the forms easily lost.

But stabilized nitrogen resists those bacteria. Resists them so well, you can apply all your nitrogen in the fall and be sure it'll still be around to nourish your crop next spring.

And when harvest time arrives, you'll have another nice bonus.

Because farmers using stabilized nitrogen average bigger yields.

You see, stabilized nitrogen stays in the soil longer so crops get more nourishment. Therefore, you get more crops.

Come in and see us. We'll show you how stabilized nitrogen lets you apply all your nitrogen in the fall.

Senior Citizens

Thursday, Oct. 2, was the regular weekly meeting of the senior citizens. There were 19 present. Bertha Holmstrom was with us once again and Clara Nelson was also a guest.

It was a busy day. Everyone was busy with something. Some ladies fluffed up stuffing for bed and sofa pillows, some stuffed pillows and sewed up ends. A few ladies laid out pieces for a piece quilt and Mildred started to sew them together. A while ago we had quilts galore — now we have sold them all except for some crib quilts, so we must get busy and make some more. We also have time to visit among ourselves and with our guests.

Elsie Kimbrough gave us some plants to sell. They are healing plants as it often happens while working in the kitchen and elsewhere you cut yourself by accident, all you do is snip off a piece of the leaf and rub it on the wound. It works fast, very good medicine and cheap. Get yourself a plant and be prepared.

Bertha Holmstrom gave the center a $1 donation. Thanks, Bertha.

1. We question the architect's credibility of the projected costs per square foot for new construction in Thief River Falls . . . $81.21 per square foot compared to average of $55 per square foot quoted in University of North Dakota Alumni Review! That's 47% variation between Thief River Falls and Grand Forks. How can he give our administration reliable estimates on remodeling?

Closed Campus Concept Aired By Principal

the non-school population is subject to certain rules and regulations pertaining to conduct and the school property.

A closed campus concept and the uniting of staff and students at the high school level can go hand-in-hand and has to be better for all concerned. The total educational program under one roof means that more time can be spent on education rather than on movement between buildings by either the students or the staff. Having students together for all classes will improve student relationships within the school. Student unity and school spirit is difficult to maintain under the present conditions.

One building will also mean that one set of rules and regulations can pertain to all students. One standardized passing time, tardy regulations and other such rules can be worked out to accommodate students and staff. Having all of the academic and vocational classes together will mean closer cooperation and coordination between the disciplines. The relationships between two subject areas are easier to relate when there is a model to follow within the educational process.

The new building would also correct some obvious program drawbacks such as inadequate laboratories for science, math and social studies classes held in two buildings, and needed space on site for physical education classes. The use of the library, the guidance and counseling program, as well as other pupil services, would be available to all students on the same basis. Because of student movement and the location of these services, this is a very difficult part of our program to administer today.

NOT CARS OR SHOPPING CARTS filled the parking lot of Al & Wally's Country Market off highway 59 in Thief River Falls Saturday. A number of students from St. Bernard's parochial school gathered in the lot that morning to begin their community service and fund raising activities for the day during the annual marathon for non-public education. Pledges taken for each mile of roadside cleaned will be used directly for non-public education. Sponsors of the event was the Our Lady of Lourdes council of the Knights of Columbus. Only St. Bernard's school was involved in the marathon this year.

ANNUAL MARATHON for non-public education got underway at 9:30 a.m. last Saturday with students in kindergarten through sixth grade from St. Bernard's parochial school gathering in the lot of Al & Wally's Country Market off Highway 59. Students began the event that morning to clean litter along 30 miles of roadside ditches. Pictured with some of the students that morning is Mayor Bob Carlson.

the board of directors began planning for additional housing several years ago.

Three years ago the pre-application for this loan was submitted to FmHA. KBM, Inc., design consultants of Grand Forks, N.D., were contracted as architects and the paperwork and final planning was underway. Finally, this spring, FmHA approval was given; the money was allocated and the bids could be let. Peterson Lumber of Thief River Falls submitted the low bid and construction began.

Each of the sixplexes has one apartment with two bedrooms, which must be occupied by at least two people, and five apartments with one bedroom each. There is a central hall from which each apartment is entered and a laundry room in each building which is equipped with a washer and a dryer which are coin-operated.

There is one apartment with one bedroom which is designed for a handicapped person and has wider doorways, lower cupboards and light switches and other accommodations helpful to a person in a wheelchair. Living rooms, bedrooms and halls are all carpeted.

Residents will bring their own furniture for a living room, dining area and bedroom as well as drapes for the windows in the living room and bedroom. A refrigerator and an electric stove with a hood and exhaust fan are provided.

Electric heat in the floors will operate on off-peak hours on one thermostat and electric wall panels will provide additional heat if desired, controlled by another thermostat in each apartment. Windows are triple glazed for additional comfort and energy savings. In each living room in the outside wall is a removable panel for ease in installing tenants' air conditioner if desired in the summer. A television antenna with lead-in to each apartment is provided.

Outside, sidewalks will run from one sixplex to the other and to the parking lot. Each apartment will have a space reserved in the parking lot with a plug-in for a car.

Of great convenience to apartment residents is the senior citizens center just across the street in the former Soo Line depot. Here noon meals are available on week days as are various activities for both men and women. Outside the center is a park which has been developed by the city with picnic tables, barbecue grills and a shelter complete with a stone fireplace. The center has equipped an area for horseshoe pitching.

Some apartments are still available for rent and anyone interested can contact Joyce Magner, treasurer, at the Marshall County state bank in Newfolden (phone 874-7265) for application blanks and information. All income information is kept confidential. A resident caretaker is also needed. Salary will be determined when duties are decided after application for residence is received.

Anyone who is not ready to move into such an apartment yet, but would like to be included on the current waiting list can notify Joyce Magner or Agnes Carlson, secretary, or any of the other board members: Raymond Tunheim, president; Kenneth Moen, vice president; Milford Rokke, Olger Rokke, Verne Green or Magnus Bakke.

The board of directors wants to express its appreciation and thanks to the several Newfolden organizations who have made donations and held special events to raise money for the "start-up" money that would be needed for expenses not covered by the loan and incurred before apartments are occupied and rent payments are made. It was required that two per cent of the amount of the loan be raised locally for this purpose.

Organizations that helped were: American Legion auxiliary, American Legion, senior citizens group, Study club, Lions club and Newfolden elevator. For equipment and supplies the Marshall county board of commissioners voted to give $1,000 from revenue sharing funds and the Hartz foundation of Thief River Falls approved an application for a grant of $1,500.

Further donations can be given to any officer or board member.

Northland Has Strong Defense

If Northland community college wins the coin flip Saturday afternoon to start its Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) football game against unbeaten Northern Division leader Fergus Falls, don't be too surprised if coach John Helley has his Northmen go on defense instead of the customary receiving end of the kickoff. The Northmen, you see, have a defense that can probably play with anyone in the eight-team Northern Division. Northland's offense, however, isn't nearly as well-regarded.

Maybe that's being overly critical of the Northland offense, but that unit has produced just three touchdowns in four games — and all three came in a 21-12 victory over Mesabi. The defense did all the scoring with an interception and a fumble return in a season-opening 19-14 loss to Crookston, and Thief River Falls sophomore Jeff Gobell's field goals represent the only Northland scoring in back-to-back trips to the Iron Range where the Northmen lost to Vermilion 26-3 and played to a 6-6 tie with winless Hibbing.

But through it all the defense, staffed mostly by northwestern Minnesota high school products, has played consistently strong football.

"They've been doing a magnificent job," said Helley of his defensive unit that features three Mahnomen graduates across the front line — sophomore Duane Kjono and freshman Mike Busse at the ends and freshman Mark Stock at nose guard. Sophomores Jeff Reese of Hallock and Kelly Turgeon of Warren are the tackles. The linebackers are sophomores Todd Tangen of Fosston and Jim McCue of Deer Park, N.Y., along with freshman Dave Gorski of Lancaster. The defensive secondary includes sophomores Paul Wilcox (Miami, Fla.), and Blair Spikes (Inkster, Mich.), along with freshman Randy Harrison (Rosemount).

"People have to have a lot of respect for our defense," offered Helley. He only wishes he could say the same about his offense.

TRF Volleyball Tournament

For $2 (adults), you can watch all the volleyball you want Saturday as Thief River Falls hosts its third annual Northern Lights invitational tournament in the Lincoln high school gym.

Play gets underway at 9 a.m. when the host Prowlers face Greenbush. Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss expects her team to still be playing at 8 p.m. in the championship match.

The Prowlers won Northern Lights tournament titles in 1978 and 1979 and will be at least a co-favorite Saturday, along with either Crookston or East Grand Forks, who are grouped in the bottom bracket.

Miscellaneous

+Long-time Bemidji high school football coach and athletic director Kenneth E. "Red" Wilson died Monday at the Bemidji hospital nursing unit after a long illness at the age of 72. A Bemidji native, Wilson coached the Lumberjacks from 1939-72 following four years at Fosston and Little Falls. His Bemidji teams compiled a record of 201-69-7. Nine times Bemidji football teams went undefeated under Wilson, including a remarkable string of four straight unbeaten seasons from 1962-65. Seven other Bemidji teams lost only once while five more bowed just twice during his 34-year Bemidji coaching career. His overall 38-year football coaching record was 212-83-8, one of the very finest marks in Minnesota high school football history. His Bemidji teams were unbeaten in 1951, 1952 and 1954, with one-loss seasons in 1953 and 1955. But for a 6-0 upset at Thief River Falls on a snowy night late in the 1953 season, reports the Bemidji Pioneer, the Lumberjacks might have gone through 40 straight games without losing. Included in the string was the 1952 state championship team, the only state football title ever won by the Lumberjacks. Wilson regarded that unit as the finest of all his teams. He was a leader in the foundation of the Northwest Athletic Conference in 1955 which saw Bemidji, Thief River Falls, Crookston and East Grand Forks merge into a football conference. Wilson became Bemidji athletic director in 1949.

+Bill Colpitts has been named the new head hockey coach at Fergus Falls high school, succeeding Wayne Horgen, who resigned the position shortly before the 1980-81 school year opened. Presently living in Omaha, Neb., Colpitts is a native of Winnipeg who played college hockey at the University of North Dakota and served as an assistant varsity coach at Moorhead high school last year.

Prowers vs. Otters Friday; Northmen vs. Spartans Saturday . . .

Lincoln, Northland Homecoming Games Feature Fergus Falls Teams

Two homecoming games will be played on the Thief River Falls athletic field this weekend as the Lincoln high school and Northland community college football teams once again share the facility after two weeks of road work. And coincidentally, Fergus Falls will provide the opposition for both games. The Prowlers and Fergus Falls high school Otters will tangle in the Lincoln homecoming game Friday night at 7:30, while the Northmen and the Fergus Falls community college Spartans meet in the Northland homecoming contest Saturday afternoon at 1:30.

Friday's Northwest Athletic Conference affair is classified under the "must-win" column for the Prowlers if they want to remain in the NWAC pennant race. Thief River Falls, after rolling up an impressive 4-1 nonconference record, dropped a disappointing 25-12 conference opener at Bemidji last week. A loss Friday would eliminate the Prowlers from title consideration. But home field wins over Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks over the next two weeks could put Thief River Falls into a title showdown at Crookston in the 1980 season finale October 24. The defending conference champion Pirates, 2-0 in the NWAC and 6-0 overall, host St. Peter in a nonconference game Friday before closing the year against NWAC rivals Bemidji and Thief River Falls. The Prowlers can gain a title tie and a post-season Class A state playoff berth by combining wins over Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston with a Crookston victory over Bemidji.

But for a sobering thought, it should be pointed out that the Prowlers haven't beaten the Otters since posting back-to-back 30-19 and 21-12 wins in 1973 and 1974 — Fergus Falls' first two years in the Northwest Athletic Conference. Since then the Otters have rattled off five straight wins in the series, including a 33-14 decision in 1975; 22-6 in 1976; 20-0 in 1977; 35-6 in 1978; and 28-22 in 1979.

Northland, meanwhile, doesn't harbor championship dreams with a 1-2-1 start in the Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) Northern Division, but the Northmen can play the role of spoiler. Fergus Falls is the surprise of the MJCAA this fall with a perfect 4-0 record to date, including a big 41-7 victory over Itasca Saturday night in what was expected to be a close contest between Northern Division contenders.

But while the Prowlers have had trouble with the Otters over the years, the Northmen have had a great deal of success against the Spartans, winning three of four meetings. Northland began its intercollegiate football program in 1976 with a 7-2 upset win over Fergus Falls. The Spartans beat the Northmen 22-6 in 1977, but Northland triumphed 12-7 in 1978 and took a 6-3 win out of Fergus Falls a year ago. Fergus Falls, it can be pointed out, is the only team Northland has beaten more than once during the 4½ years the Northmen have been playing football.

Schedule

Fri., Oct. 10 — Fergus Falls at Thief River Falls, Bemidji at East Grand Forks, St. Peter at Crookston.

After struggling earlier this fall, Fergus Falls appears to have things straightened out; if not turned around, at least headed in the right direction.

The Otters opened the year with a 14-0 shutout of Detroit Lakes, but then hit the skids offensively in losing shutout decisions to Alexandria 10-0, Litchfield 16-0 and Crookston 21-0 before surprising Bemidji 28-12 two weeks ago and then making a solid showing in a 28-12 loss at Moorhead Friday.

"They (Otters) have played good defense all year, an apparently right now they've put it all together; they appear to be at the top of their game," warned Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz.

Part of the Otters' turnaround can be attributed to a switch from the veer to the wishbone offense. The two sets are similar, but instead of using split backs and a flanker in the veer, the Otters have copied the Prowlers in going to three runningbacks as the flanker becomes a fullback. The change prior to the Bemidji game has revitalized Fergus Falls' once-impotent offense.

Eric Erlandson was the Otters' top offensive threat against Moorhead, rushing for 116 yards on 17 carries and scoring on a two-yard touchdown run. Fergus Falls' defense also scored against the Spuds as Tom Mann grabbed a fumble and went 50 yards for a touchdown.

Thief River Falls, meanwhile, will be trying to recover from the shock of Friday's unexpected defeat at Bemidji, where the Lumberjacks built a 14-0 lead on two quick first quarter possessions. It became 26-0 before the Prowlers finally got untracked in the fourth quarter.

"Most of it was just mental mistakes on our part," explained Schmitz. "We just weren't ready to play football."

Schmitz and the Prowlers fully realize the task awaiting them over the final three weeks of the 1980 season. "We know we've got to win. There's no way we can win the conference if we don't win the rest of them. We can't lose."

There is a positive feeling on the team, though. "We surely feel we can come back," reported Schmitz. "We've done it before."

Another NWAC contest is on tap Friday as Bemidji travels to East Grand Forks.

+ Steve Johnson is the NWAC scoring leader with 24 points. Dan Snustad of Fergus Falls has 18 and Pat Erhart of Bemidji has 15. Overall, Johnson is the runaway leader with 84 points, with Erhart a distant second with 45 and Scott Wiebolt of Thief River Falls third with 44.

+ Brent Weiss of Crookston is the NWAC rushing leader with 205 yards. Johnson has 191 and Mark Beer of Bemidji has 162. In all games, Johnson has rushed for 724 yards,

Schedule

Saturday, Oct. 11 — Fergus Falls vs. Northland at Thief River Falls, Crookston vs. Mesabi at Virginia, Itasca at Brainerd, Golden Valley Lutheran vs. Vermilion at Ely.

Dead last in the Northern Division in 1979 with an 0-8 record, Fergus Falls has done an about-face this fall and ranks as the only unbeaten-untied team in the eight-team standings.

The Spartans racked up some 467 yards worth of offense in their 41-7 rout of Itasca Saturday night in Grand Rapids, with a nearly identical one-two punch supplied by Nolan Beverly and Ray Felder. They both carried the ball 22 times, with Beverly rushing for 147 yards and Felder getting 140.

That shows Fergus Falls' offensive strength. A week earlier the Spartans featured defense in a 10-8 victory over Brainerd, limiting the Red Raiders to just 88 yards for the game.

"They're a pretty solid ball club," confirmed Northland coach John Helley. "They've done a lot of recruiting and they've turned things around.

Northland's defense has carried the team so far, but they've received little offensive support. After beating Mesabi 21-12 three weeks ago, the Northland offense has failed to score a touchdown. Jeff Gobell's three field goals represents all the Northland scoring in a 26-3 loss to Vermilion and a 6-6 tie at Hibbing the past two weeks.

And for the third time Helley will be making some changes offensively. Freshman Jeff Westberg (Warren) will quarterback the Northmen Saturday after sharing the duties with sophomore Howard Beito (Hallock) and freshman Jeff Steuck (Fargo Oak Grove) since the opener. Beito, Northland's coach-turned-player, will serve as Westberg's back-up Saturday, with Steuck's playing time limited by a sore elbow.

Freshmen Mike Punton (Baudette) and John Dillon (TRF) will be the starting runningbacks. Dillon, who joined the team late, has been slowed by a shoulder bruise, but is expected to be near full strength Saturday.

Helley said freshmen Dan Cullen (TRF) and Jeff Canivez (Baudette), along

LHS Volleyball Team Tops MCC 2-0 Tuesday

Idle for over a week, the Lincoln high school volleyball team returned to action Tuesday by beating Marshall County Central 18-12, 20-18 in a match played at Newfolden.

Serving by Tara Nicholson highlighted the Prowlers' overtime second game victory as she served seven straight points, plus the tie-breaker 19th and match-winning 20th points.

Up front, LeAnn Paetznick came up with four kill spikes in the second game.

"I was happy to win," noted Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss. "It was close all the way."

The Prowlers were successful on 84 per cent of their first game serves and bettered that to 90 per cent in the second game as they improved their record to 5-6.

Marshall County Central won the preliminary matches, taking the C team competition 18-1, 11-18, 18-13 and winning the junior varsity match 18-7, 13-18, 18-4. Thief River Falls junior varsity is 5-5 for the year. The C team is winless in nine starts.

Swim Team Will Compete At Brainerd

Fourth in a seven-team field at Fergus Falls, the Lincoln high school girls swimming team will try to improve its finish Saturday when the Prowlers compete in the Brainerd invitational. Minneapolis Southwest, Bloomington Lincoln and Stillwater will join Section 3 rivals Thief River Falls and Brainerd for the meet that has a 12 noon start.

Minot won last Saturday's Fergus Falls invitational title with 279 points, followed by Moorhead 186, Fergus Falls 166, Thief River Falls 163, Bismarck 156, Bismarck Century 116 and Montevideo 44.

Senior Brenda Lund supplied the Prowlers with their only victory at Fergus Falls, remaining unbeaten for the year in diving competition. The Prowlers had third place finishes from Betsie Hallstrom in the 50-yard freestyle and their 400-yard freestyle relay team of Shelley McGann, Lund, Hallstrom and Kathy Dillon.

Thief River Falls could have improved its finish considerably, but its 200-yard medley relay team was disqualified, costing the Prowlers 20 possible points.

"We're starting to place people in the consolation races and the finals pretty consistently," mentioned Thief River Falls coach John Hustad, "and I like that."

Thief River Falls won't return to dual meet competition until Fergus Falls visits the Franklin middle school gym here Thursday, Oct. 23, for a 5 p.m. meet.

Detroit Lakes Wins Tennis Title . . .

TRF Falls To Crookston In Tournament Play

Crookston, a 4-1 first round winner over Thief River Falls Monday, fell to Detroit Lakes 5-0 Tuesday in the finals of the 1980 North Half Region 8AA girls high school tennis tournament.

Bemidji edged East Grand Forks 3-2 and Moorhead defeated Fergus Falls 4-1 in other first round matches Monday. Crookston then shaded Bemidji 3-2 and Detroit Lakes, after receiving a first round bye, handled Moorhead 5-0 later that same afternoon to reach Tuesday's finals.

Defending champion Detroit Lakes, 16-1 for the year, will meet the South Half qualifier in the 1980 Region 8AA championship match Monday at the Grand Forks Racquetball and Tennis Center at 4 p.m. The winner will move on to the Class AA state tennis tournament October 22-23 in St. Paul. St. Cloud Apollo was the No. 1 seed going into the South Half playoffs.

Individual portion of the North Half Region 8AA tournament will be played Friday at Fargo where each participating school — Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks, Bemidji, Crookston, Moorhead, Fergus Falls and Detroit Lakes — will enter two singles players and two doubles teams.

Thief River Falls' probable line-up Friday is expected to feature junior Christie LaCoursiere and freshman Kim Lawrenz in singles, with junior Nancy Swanson and eighth grader Michelle Olson together as one doubles pair, while senior Pam Wassink and junior Marsha Erickson form the second doubles combination for the Prowlers.

Top two singles players and top two doubles teams in the North Half event will advance to the 1980 Region 8AA individual competition Tuesday in Grand Forks beginning at 9 a.m.

Thief River Falls finished the fall with a 5-5 dual meet record.

Nine-Man High School Football . . .

Skippers, Scots Meet In North Tri County Feature

A major title confrontation will be staged Friday in the North Tri County Conference when unbeaten McIntosh-Winger hosts once-beaten Middle River in a 7:30 p.m. nine-man high school football game.

Nobody has challenged the state-ranked Scots this fall, with McIntosh-Winger outscoring its opposition 295-34 en route to a perfect 6-0 record. Middle River was expected to be a title contender when things got underway in August, but the Skippers stumbled out of the starting blocks, losing a surprising 20-12 season-opening decision to Clearbrook. But since that time Middle River has lived up to its preseason billing by rattling off five straight wins, during which time the Skippers have out-scored opponents 171-18.

Both teams had easy wins last week as McIntosh-Winger routed Grygla 68-8 and Middle River belted Mentor 41-12. Elsewhere, Oklee gunned down Erskine 34-14, Gonvick shut out Goodridge 54-0 and Clearbrook defeated Plummer 38-0.

While the Scots and Skippers lock horns, Mentor will be at Oklee, Gonvick visits Plummer, Erskine drives to Clearbrook and Grygla will be at Goodridge to renew a keen area rivalry.

Although the winner of the McIntosh-Winger vs. Middle River game will be clearing a major obstacle, unbeaten Oklee still remains on both team's schedules. McIntosh-Winger will be at Oklee Tuesday, Oct. 14, with Middle River hosting the Bobcats and a week later, Tuesday, Oct. 21.

Top three teams in the Top of the State Conference — Hallock, Marshall County Central and Argyle — will be playing the bottom three — Greenbush, Tri-County and Stephen — Friday. The Bears, Nordics and Eagles all share the conference lead with identical 4-1 records after Marshall County Central knocked Hallock from the ranks of the unbeaten Saturday, 20-13. Argyle, meanwhile, drilled Stephen 53-8 and Greenbush took care of Tri-County 46-14.

On Friday, Greenbush will play Marshall County Central at Newfolden, Argyle will face Tri-County at Karlstad and Stephen goes to Hallock.

Scott McKeever of Middle River continues to lead the North Tri County Conference in scoring with 78 points, followed by Rodney Hill of Clearbrook with 54, Steve Rude of McIntosh-Winger 52, Steve Bengston of Middle River 50, Richard Bronken of Oklee 48, Cameron Buralie and Clint Nelson of McIntosh-Winger 44 apiece and Gary Kolb of Mentor 40.

Stephen teammates Gary Reginbal and Doug Schindele share the Top of the State Conference scoring lead with 46 points apiece. Scott Labine of Argyle has 42, Daniel Mooney of Greenbush 40, Scott Norland of Hallock and Jay Labine of Argyle 36 apiece and Bill Johnson of Marshall County Central 34.

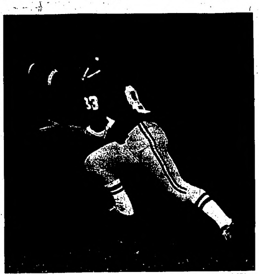
Sports Boosters Pie, Ice Cream Social Is Mon.

Thief River Falls Sports Boosters club annual pie and ice cream social will be held Monday beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the Lincoln high school cafeteria.

Fall sports teams and coaches from Lincoln and Northland community college will be introduced during a short program, with Lincoln football coach John Schmitz scheduled to show game films from Friday's Thief River Falls vs. Fergus Falls Northwest Athletic Conference game.

Open to the public, the event will feature a piece of pie, ice cream and beverage for 50 cents. Additional pies will be sold by the Sports Boosters at the end of the program.

Members of the Sports Boosters club who will be available to help serve pies during the program are asked to report to the Lincoln cafeteria at 6 p.m.



WIDE-OPEN BEMIDJI end Dave Sea caught this 16-yard pass for a first down at the Thief River Falls 10-yard line in the first quarter of Friday's high school football game played at Bemidji State University. The Lumberjacks scored three plays later on a two-yard run by Pat Erhart, whose conversion kick then upped the Lumberjacks' lead to a stunning 14-0 margin with just 9:18 elapsed in the Northwest Athletic Conference contest. Bemidji rolled up a 26-0 lead en route to a 26-12 victory over the Prowlers, who will try to bounce back Friday when they host Fergus Falls in an NWAC game that will serve as the Lincoln homecoming contest on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

Funding Increases For Nongame Wildlife Programs Across U.S.

For most of this century, states that spent money to enhance their wildlife populations spent it on game species — animals that are hunted or trapped for food or fur. As recently as 1973, only three states — California, Oregon and Washington — provided funds for nongame wildlife management.

Now, according to a National Wildlife Federation survey, an ever-increasing number of states are working to improve the lot of nongame wildlife — songbirds and other creatures that are neither hunted nor trapped. As of July, 1980, according to the survey, 27 states are funding nongame programs and another seven states are developing such programs.

The federation obtained its figures by interviewing officials of the fish and game commissions in all 50 states. The findings confirm other indications that there has been a marked growth of interest in nongame wildlife since the beginning of the "environmental revolution" of the 1970s.

"Among our members there has been a steady increase in the esthetic or non-consumptive uses of wildlife — birdwatching, photographing, sketching and just observing animals in the wild," said Thomas L. Kimball, executive vice president of the NWF. "We are encouraged by this survey, which shows that state legislatures are responding to a surge of interest in wildlife on the part of the people."

Kimball also called for quick implementation of the national wildlife conservation act passed by congress this month. This measure, which was supported by NWF, with its 4.6 million members and supporters across the country, authorizes the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to apportion limited federal funds to the states for nongame purposes.

A major objective of both the state and federal programs is the protection of nongame wildlife habitat — areas where animals can find food, water, cover and a place to raise their young.

"We feel," said Kimball, "that the cost of maintaining a healthy and abundant wildlife population — a part of our national heritage — should be borne by all citizens because we all benefit. Loss of habitat is the biggest threat to our wildlife — whether game or nongame — and all of us — hunters and non-hunters alike — should be working to protect what is left of wildlife habitat in this country."

The 27 states that reported having nongame wildlife programs are Arizona, California, Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Washington and Wisconsin.

Among the states with existing programs, most began their efforts to aid nongame species by taking an inventory of native wildlife. Other activities include habitat surveys and acquisition, establishing observation areas, the rehabilitation of injured raptors and the control of problem animals.

Some states have undertaken projects aimed at specific, target species. Missouri, for example, has projects for bluebirds, kingfishers, barn owls and turtles, while California is attempting to reestablish habitat for the tern, a seabird.

Most state wildlife agencies are funded mainly by hunters and fishermen, through license fees and federal excise taxes on hunting and fishing equipment, apportioned to the states. Accordingly, the bulk of their work is directed into activities which affect game species — such as ducks and deer — and their habitats.

Most state officials favor putting the burden of nongame programs on nonconsumptive users — hikers, campers, birdwatchers — rather than hunters, the survey found.

Of the 50 states polled by NWF, only 13 reported using any revenues from license fees directly for nongame purposes, although habitat improvement usually benefits both game and nongame species.

Other sources of money for nongame programs include general funds of the states, a sales tax, voluntary donations, checkoffs by state taxpayers and the sale of personalized auto tags, t-shirts, wildlife stamps and shoulder patches.

Colorado originated the tax checkoff system three years ago, and provided a model used by five other states. Under this plan, there is a place on the state income tax form where the taxpayer can check off the amount he wishes to contribute to the nongame wildlife program. If a refund is due, the indicated amount will be subtracted from the total refund and diverted to the nongame fund. If no refund is due, this amount is added to the taxpayer's bill.

According to John Torres, Colorado's nongame wildlife programs chief, the residents of that state have responded well, contributing more than $600,000 this year. Oregon, in its first year of a similar program, is also experiencing success. One out of every twelve taxpayers has participated, donating more than $330,000.

Missouri, one of the first states to operate a nongame program, passed a constitutional amendment in 1976 which increased its state sales tax by one-eighth of one per cent. The funds go to its wildlife programs including those emphasizing protection of nongame species. In 1979 the tax raised more than $30.3 million, with more than $2 million targeted for nongame wildlife.

Pennsylvania raises money for nongame management from the sale of wildlife stamps and patches, while the sale of personalized vehicle tags generated $409,000 for Washington's nongame program in 1979. Michigan and New Jersey sell t-shirts.

Among the 23 states without nongame programs, some have the authority to work on behalf of nongame species but lack programs because no funds are available. "We would love to have a nongame program, but we just don't have the money," an Oklahoma official told Nicky Lingon, who conducted the NWF survey.

Fish Netting Seasons Set By State DNR

Those who plan to take whitefish, tullibee and herring during the netting season should obtain copies of Commissioner's Order No. 2029 from county auditor or their license agents, the Department of Natural Resources said.

The order lists the 1980 season dates on waters open to netting.

A few northern waters will open Oct. 17, but most lakes will open Nov. 7.

Special seasons are set for Lake Vermilion in St. Louis county where the netting season is Oct. 24 — Nov. 13; Ten Mile Lake in Cass county — Nov. 7 to Jan. 31, 1981; Straight Lake in Becker county — Dec. 5 to Jan. 31, 1981; Oxhide and Reilley lakes in Itasca county — Dec. 12 to Jan. 31, 1981; and Rachel Lake in Douglas county — Dec. 5 to Dec. 31.

Dec. 14 is the close of the season for all other lakes, except Upper Red and Winnibigoshish which close Dec. 7.

"The different netting dates are set for each group of lakes to coincide with whitefish and tullibee spawning and the movement of game fish out of the shallow waters, where these nets are allowed," said Jerry Kuehn.

"Where it is found that game fish are being netted, that lake will be closed or the opening delayed by posting notices at the lake."

A netting license will cost $3 and no more than one net, 100-feet in length, may be used by one person. (Netters must also possess a 1980 Minnesota angling license.) The net may be no more than three feet deep and of mesh size not less than 3½ inches extension (stretch) measure for tullibees and whitefish, and not less than 1¾ inches for herring.

Key Games Affect Football Playoffs

If you're looking for a good high school football game to watch Friday night, you might consider places like Stillwater, Inver Grove Heights, International Falls, Fairmont or Sauk Centre to name a few, reports Larry Larson, director of information and publications of the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL). Prep school teams that will be playing at those sites still are in contention for conference championships and post-season state playoff berths.

With only three weeks remaining on the regular season schedule, 117 teams among the state's 487 remain in contention for conference titles and possible state playoff positions in the five classes — AA, A, B, C and nine-man — of Minnesota State High School League football. Fifty of those teams still hold unbeaten status.

Eight schools in each of the five classes, or a total of 40 teams, will compete in this year's ninth annual state football playoffs, scheduled to be conducted over a three-week period beginning Friday, Oct. 31.

Conference champions in each of the 63 leagues throughout Minnesota will move into post-season play with hopes of garnering one of those 40 playoff spots. This week's games could be very pivotal ones for many schools. Here is a look at key matchups:

Class AA

Perennial Class AA power, Stillwater (6-0) will play host Friday night to White Bear Mariner (6-0) in an outing between the only two undefeated teams in the St. Paul Suburban Conference. One other game Friday evening that will attract a large following will be played at Elk River where Cambridge (4-0, 5-1) will meet Elk River (3-1, 4-2) in a battle which will likely decide the Central Lakes Conference representative in this year's state playoffs.

Two key confrontations in the Big Nine Conference will find Faribault (3-1, 5-1) at Owatonna (3-1, 5-1) and Rochester Mayo (3-1, 5-1) will entertain arch-rival Rochester John Marshall (3-1, 4-2). Both contests are slated for Friday night.

Class A

Rosemount (4-0, 5-1) vs. Simley (4-0, 6-0) encounter in Inver Grove Heights Friday is a pivotal game in Missota Conference action this week. So are games at Fairmont and International Falls. Fairmont (3-0, 5-1) and St. James (3-0, 5-1) will battle for the top spot in the South Central loop, while International Falls (4-1, 5-1) and Hermantown (5-1, 5-1) will try and stay in contention for the title in the Sea Range circuit.

Two other Class A games this week which should draw good figures at the gate include the Montevideo (4-0, 5-1) at Sauk Centre (3-0, 6-0) clash Friday evening and the Saturday afternoon tussle in Fridley where Totino Grace (4-0, 5-1) will play host to Rochester Lourdes (4-0, 4-2). Both are crucial conference games.

Class B

Five Class "B" games this week stand out as games worth watching. One will take place in Babbitt where Babbitt (5-1, 5-1) will entertain unbeaten Ely (5-0, 6-0). Another is in Central Minnesota where undefeated Maple Lake (4-0, 6-0) will host Holdingford (4-0, 5-1). Others include Barnesville (3-1, 4-2) at Dilworth (3-0, 4-2); Ada (4-0, 4-2) at Mahnomen (4-0, 6-0); and Appleton (4-0, 6-0) at Olivia (4-0, 5-1).

Class C

Feature games this week in Class C will take place in Chatfield, Mountain Lake, Verndale, Westbrook and Faribault. Chatfield (3-1, 4-2) will host Harmony (4-0, 6-0); Mountain Lake (3-1, 5-1) will host Trimont (4-0, 6-0); Verndale (3-1, 5-1) will host Battle Lake (4-0, 6-0); Westbrook (4-0, 6-0) will host Storden-Jeffers (3-0, 5-0); and Shattuck (3-0, 6-0) will host Morristown (1-1- 5-1). All of these conference games are scheduled for Friday save the latter game which will be played Saturday in Faribault.

Nine-Man

Big game in the nine-man division this week will take place in Lake Benton where Lake Benton (4-0, 5-1) will play host to undefeated Morton (4-0, 6-0) in a game which will decide which school moves into sole position of first place in the Big Seven Conference. This 113-school class includes 12 unbeaten teams to date. In addition to Morton, other unbeatens are Rothsay, Kiester-Walters, Motley, Hoffman-Kensington, Littlefork-Big Falls, Kennedy, McIntosh-Winger, Oklee, Chokio-Alberta, Toivola-Meadowlands and Chandler-Lake Wilson.

City League Basketball To Be Organized

by Nora Northern

"I have been very interested and disturbed about recent attacks on the friend of our family, the biologist," writes guest columnist Nora Northern "It was he who gave us dignity and respect in Minnesota Some of you may recall back in the thirties when we were referred to as snakes, held in low regard and rarely kept in a game bag.

Then came the biologist in the late thirties with his research. It was he who discovered that our family was an important part of our lake community.

It was the biologist who stressed our importance in keeping a lake in balance. He learned that we reproduce in the early spring when the water temperature is in the vicinity of 50 degrees. He discovered that we spawn in shallow areas of bays and marshes and cast our eggs very freely on the bottom.

I am not ashamed to tell you that I have spawned with one or more males and have many times over the years deposited from 10,000 to more than 100,000 eggs. My eggs are about one-eighth inch in diameter, adhesive in nature, and stick to the bottom of vegetation until they are hatched.

It has been with increasing alarm that we have watched our family decrease in numbers in some areas in Minnesota. And again our friend the biologist came to our rescue with research.

We of the northern pike family are proud of our recently found prestige as a game fish in Minnesota, thanks to the biologist. It is our destiny to provide great sport for you fishermen, and properly prepared, we can provide you with a fine feast, too. And some of us older northerns will look mighty handsome mounted over your fireplace.

The younger members of our family are the important

New Regional FWS Director Is Selected

A native midwesterner and career executive with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, James C. Gritman, will assume deputy regional director duties in October for the agency's North Central Region headquartered in Minneapolis.

Regional director Harvey K. Nelson, in announcing the appointment, said he was pleased to have Gritman's judgment and "know-how" added to the region's management team.

"Jim has proven abilities in the service's top level decision area, and he knows the North Central Region exceptionally well-having spent much of his career working in these states." Nelson said. "He knows the problems and the opportunities in the heavily-populated and intensely-developed midwest, where maintaining the delicate balance between human needs for both wildlife and growth provides particularly challenging situations."

Gritman, who has served as deputy regional director in the Rocky Mountain Missouri Basin Region since 1976, has had broad experience with private industry as well as government. He joined the Fish and Wildlife Service in 1964 as area forester at Necedah national wildlife refuge in Wisconsin.. In 1967, he was assigned as forest ecologist in the division of wildlife refuges in Washington, D.C. In 1971 he became associate regional refuge supervisor, stationed in Minneapolis.

In 1973, Gritman was selected to direct all service operational activities in North Dakota, becoming one of the first five area managers in a national pilot program designed to bring management of the Fish and Wildlife Service closer to the people and to state governments. The new management structure subsequently was adopted nationwide.

North Central Region States are Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Northmen Face 4-0 Spartans

with sophomore Brian Hourigan (Rutherford, N.J.) have been the top offensive linemen for the Northmen.

"Our problem has been at quarterback," he acknowledged. "They just haven't been clicking. They haven't been able to throw the football. They've had pretty good protection — they've had time, but they just haven't hit their receivers."

Other Northern Division games scheduled Saturday will find Crookston playing Mesabi at Virginia, Itasca at Brainerd and Golden Valley Lutheran playing Vermilion at Ely. Last week Golden Valley shut out Mesabi 17-0 and Crookston got by Brainerd 21-16 to remain unbeaten (they played to a 7-7 tie a week earlier), while Vermilion fell to the Bemidji State University junior varsity 43-7.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear brother Henry Tangen, who passed away Oct. 12, 1977.

Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear.
To far away to sight or speak,
But not too far for thought to reach,
Nice to remember him who once was here,
And who though abent is just as dear.

Amur Maples Color Freeways Says Mn/DOT

Those brilliant, orange-red masses of color along the Inter-states are most often amur maples, according to Dale Wreisner, chief landscape architect, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Wreisner said that many motorists ask for the name of the small tree with the big fall display. "They want to know if they can plant them in their yards.

"The amur maple is available at many nurseries throughout the state," he said. "Completely hardy, rugged and requiring little attention, this small tree is ideal for planting along freeways."

Wreisner said the dense plantings of amur maple not only beautify the roads, but also protect the soil from erosion, and provide cover, nesting sites and food for songbirds.

Another reddish-colored freeway planting in the fall is sumac, he added. Sumac is not as dense as the amur maple and has a flatter growth pattern, compared with the round shape of the maple.

Roadside sumac colonies usually develop from wild plants. Amur maple trees have been planted along roadsides by Mn-DOT, Wreisner said.

Doug Martel Attends Pond Operators Meet

Douglas Martel, Thief River Falls, attended a training workshop for stabilization pond operators in Hill City September 23-26.

Seminar, sponsored by the operations-training unit of the Minnesota pollution control agency, was designed for municipal employees involved in the operation and maintenance of stabilization ponds.

Pond treatment, loading and removal efficiencies, good operation and maintenance procedures and laboratory controls were among the topics discussed. The seminar also included a field trip to the pond system in Hill City to provide the participants with hands-on experience in the inspection, discharge and sampling procedures used in pond operation.

April estimates show U.S. farmers will plant 82 million acres of corn this year. That's three per cent more than in 1979.

Experts Offer Dog Obedience Training Hints

Does your dog score a "10" in canine citizenship? Being a "top dog" — or at least coming close — is important for both master and pet, say experts in dog obedience.

"As society becomes increasingly urbanized, it's especially important that pets learn to follow certain rules, just as people do," says James Dearinger, head of obedience at the American Kennel club. "I highly recommend obedience training for all dogs, but especially for those who frequently come in contact with strangers and other canines."

Training can begin when the dog is six or seven weeks old and continue throughout its lifetime. It is never too late to teach an old dog good behavior. Younger puppies are unable to fully understand and react to commands.

"Owners should use the dog's early days to acquaint it with the words it will be hearing — sit, down, stay and the like," says Susan Bluford, whose dog is an obedience trial championship award winner. "An early introduction to your training vocabulary will make later lessons much easier," she adds.

Formal training should run from 15 to 30 minutes a day, depending on your patience and the attentiveness of your pup, experts advise. Every program should revolve around a reward — an edible treat, the owner's praise or both. Whenever the dog performs correctly, it should be showered with attention so it knows what a good dog it is!

Dearinger lists the following commands as "basic training":

—Sit — With the dog at your left side, say "sit" firmly. Pull up on the collar and push his rump down.

—Heel — Teach the dog to keep your pace by walking at your left side. Hold the end of the leash in your right hand, and the middle of the leash in your left hand. When the dog breaks your pace, snap the leash and say "heel."

—Stay — While your dog is sitting, hold out your palm and walk away while giving the command to stay. If he gets up, sit him back down and repeat until he understands.

—Come — With your dog on a long leash, call him to you and gently pull on the leash. When you think he's ready, remove the leash and repeat the order.

—Down — While your dog is sitting, lift his front legs and then set him back on the ground, saying "down." Follow this with "stay," and walk away slowly.

Dearinger recommends that dogs also be taught to "stand and heel" (good for when you're walking on a rainy day and you don't want the dog to roll in the wet grass or sit in the mud); and "stand and stay" (for veterinary examinations or when drying off a dripping dog).

To avoid confusion during the initial training stages, Dearinger recommends that only one member of the family work with the dog. "In interpreting your commands, a dog responds to a number of things: tone of voice, body language and the words themselves. Until the dog is familiar with all these signals, it's best to let one person issue commands. Then other family members can help with obedience practice," he says.

Many dogs, especially the working and sporting varieties, thrive on the trainer-trainee relationship, says Bernie Brown, owner of the dog that is the current obedience trial champion in competition sponsored by a dog food company.

"German Shepherds and Golden Retrievers, for example, were bred to serve man, so the desire to please is a natural instinct," says Brown. "They'll stay with the job until it's done."

The working relationship between owner and dog can have far-reaching, unforeseen benefits. There are many instances where devoted dogs have risked "life and paw" to rescue their masters from dangerous situations. For example, Thumper, 1979 dog hero, stayed doggedly by his three-year-old master's side when the child was lost for 12 hours in rural upstate New York.

Occasionally though, a dog or an owner may have difficulty with obedience training. If so, professional help may be the answer. Generally, such training is performed by the owner under the guidance of an instructor.

Whether your training is of the backyard or professional variety, always remember to "keep it fun," advises Bluford. "If you've had a miserable day, don't take it out on the dog. Do it and yourself a favor and save the training for tomorrow."

spawners because it is easier for them to find their way to the spawning areas. Their eggs are very fertile, too. If the biologist says we older members of the family can provide sport for the winter spearer as well as the summer troller, we are proud we can be of service.

But if we are to continue in our important role, you must listen to the biologist and give us a place to raise our young. And we are very choosy about our spawning areas.

He discovered that our spawning areas were being isolated with highway construction, destroyed by filling in of marsh lands for cottages and agriculture. Remember this, the biologist does not make the laws. He learns the facts. Wise law makers follow his lead."

Farm Estate Planning At Plummer School

Mahoney Will Speak Monday Night In RLF

Patrick Mahoney

"For years, through the disastrous policy of detente, our tax dollars have been used to help strengthen Soviet tyranny. But now that the Soviets have invaded Afghanistan, the propanganda mills are telling us that we should strengthen the equally tyrannical Red Chinese," states Patrick Mahoney, a research analyst and former counter-intelligence expert.

Mahoney will speak in Red Lake Falls at the city auditorium Monday, October 13, at 8 p.m. His speech is titled, "The Ploy To Strengthen Red China." Tickets are $2.50 in advance or $3 at the door. Public is invited to attend.

Mahoney spent 22 years in the U.S. Air Force where he worked as a counter-intelligence expert. He volunteered for duty in Vietnam in 1966 and spent four years there with the Green Berets. He also worked for five years as a pre-trial investigator on court-martial and claims cases with the office of the staff judge advocate of the U.S. air force.

Mahoney has done graduate work in constitutional history at Purdue university. Since retiring from the military in 1970, he has worked as a congressional aid, has written for "The Review Of The News," and has served on the staff of the John Birch society in various capacities. He and his family reside in the Boston area.

According to Mahoney: "Since 1972 alone, the Soviet Union and the Eastern European Communist Block have received nearly $80 billion dollars in credit from the West. This massive aid program," he charges, "has helped the Soviet Union to become a modern military threat." He cites as one example the Kama River truck manufacturing plant, which he describes as "a Soviet 'achievement' made possible by American credit and technology."

Mohoney believes that the invasion of Afghanistan has "made the truth about Soviet Tyranny more widely known." But, he argues that we should not "counter Soviet aggression by strengthening the Communist Chinese."

MEA To Hold Hearings On Spending Cuts

Minnesota Education association (MEA) will conduct a series of public hearings throughout the state to provide a forum for those affected by the spending cuts ordered by Gov. Al Quie, according to president Donald C. Hill.

"The reason we're doing this," Hill explains, "is because there has been no opportunity for those most affected to be heard. The cuts were ordered unilaterally and without consulting persons and agencies that would be affected — least of all, those in public education. We're trying to remedy that situation."

Hill says efforts to have such hearings conducted by appropriate state agencies were turned down.

The first hearing is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Oct. 11 in the MEA Headquarters, 41 Sherburne Ave., St. Paul. Focus will be on three school districts: St. Paul, North St. Paul-Maplewood-Oakdale, White Bear Lake. No other hearing dates or places were announced.

In addition to the general public, invitations to participate are being extended to, among others, school boards and administrators, teacher leaders, student leaders, representatives of higher education, parent-teacher organizations, the business community and political leaders.

Convenors for the first hearing are William L. Wilson, former state human rights commissioner and now a member of the St. Paul city council; James Rosasco, counselor in the Red Wing public schools; and Wendy Robinson, director, Minnesota Working Women (MWW).

Hearing proceedings will be recorded and transcriptions will be made available to the governor and other appropriate state agencies, participants, news media and other interested parties.

Amendment To Limit Funding Of Abortions

Pro-life movement won a substantial victory with the passage of the new Hyde amendment for fiscal year 1981, Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life (MCCL) press secretary Lisa Schultz said.

Recently Congress approved a Hyde amendment which would limit medicaid funding of abortions to those done when the mother's life is endangered, in cases of rape reported within 72 hours, or in cases of incest, with no reporting limit.

Hyde amendment, named after its sponsor, Rep. Henry Hyde of Illinois, is an amendment to the appropriations bill for the department of labor and health and human services and must be voted on yearly.

Fiscal year 1980 Hyde amendment also allowed abortion-funding in cases where the mother's life was threatened or in cases of rape or incest, but the reporting limit for rape extended to 60 days after the rape occurred.

New Hyde amendment is similar to a 1978 Minnesota law now in effect. Law states that rape cases must be reported within 48 hours and incest must be reported before an abortion is performed. Abortions done when the mother's life is threatened are permitted.

In addition to the Hyde amendment, which affects only the federal medicaid program, Congress also passed an amendment to the child health assurance program directed at state medicaid programs. The amendment, introduced by Rep. Robert Bauman, allows each state to determine for itself the extent to which the state medicaid program will fund abortions.

Bauman's amendment permanently resolves the only substantive issue not addressed in the supreme court's June 30 decision upholding the constitutionality of the Hyde amendment. The court did not determine if states could enact more restrictive guidelines for medicaid funding of abortions than the federal government enacts.

But under the Bauman amendment, states are now free not to fund any abortions, regardless of what abortions the federal government has chosen to fund, Schultz said.

Precaution Can Prevent Parvo Virus Disease

by George E. Jordan
'U' M News Service

A disease that is often fatal to dogs is spreading in some areas of the state, and University of Minnesota Veterinarians say proper precautionary measures could save many animals.

The disease, canine parvo virus, is characterized by vomiting, diarrhea and depression and is fatal to dogs if not treated soon after the symptoms first appear.

"The general public believes that every dog that has parvo dies, but that's not the case. Parvo virus is not a 100 per cent fatal disease," said Dr. Harold Kurtz, acting director of the University of Minnesota veterinary diagnostic laboratories.

"In the last two months, there appears to have been an increase in the reported incidence of parvo in the Twin Cities and across the state," Kurtz said. A survey by the Hennepin county animal humane society found that between 1,500 and 2,000 dog deaths in the last two months alone can be attributed to parvo virus.

Kurtz said, however, that many deaths could have been avoided if pet owners had known the symptoms of the disease and what steps to take.

Veterinarians tend to agree that one way to protect dogs from the disease, which is transmitted through fecal material, is to avoid areas frequented by dogs. They cite parks, animal hospitals, kennels and dog shows as breeding grounds for parvo.

One of the first reported outbreaks of the disease in Minnesota was at the Hennepin county animal humane society kennels in 1978. And this year the state 4-H club canceled its upcoming dog show to avoid possibility of spreading the disease.

Several years ago researchers in the United States and abroad found that strains of parvo virus inflict cows, rodents, horses and even humans, but canine parvo was discovered only two years ago by veterinarians in Australia and at Cornell university. Parvo virus has been found to be fatal only to cats and dogs.

The disease is "species specific" because, for example, rodents cannot infect cows or horses. So dog owners need not fear their families might become infected with parvo if they suspect their dog has contracted the disease.

There are two vaccines available to protect healthy dogs from canine parvo virus. Both are made from the cells of cats infected with feline parvo. Each vaccine has advantages, and drawbacks as well, but veterinarians agree vaccination is the best protection against the disease.

The first, called "dead cell," is federally approved. Dogs are injected with dead parvo virus material from cats and develop immunity to canine parvo for about three months. A drawback to this type of vaccine is that the immunity lasts for only three months — two or three booster shots may be necessary to protect a dog. A second problem is that the drug, produced only by Dellem Laboratory in Omaha, Neb., is in high demand, making it almost impossible to get.

The second type of vaccine, called "semi-live," is not federally approved and remains somewhat controversial. Dogs are injected with live cells from cats infected with parvo virus, and immunity lasts for about five months or more. The key problem with this vaccine is that vaccinated dogs may become infected with parvo instead of developing immunity. However the drug is produced by Oxford laboratory in Worthington and is readily available. This vaccine is used by many veterinarians in rural areas.

Kurtz says that if a dog owner suspects his pet has parvo, a veterinarian should be consulted immediately. If the disease has not progressed too far, he said, the dog can be treated with large doses of salt water.

Highlights In October Sky Include Venus

The following information is from a twice monthly guide to the night sky in the Upper Midwest (Starwatch). Information is provided by the University of Minnesota astronomy department. Twice each month the department also offers a taped Starwatch message, highlighting the night sky, which may be obtained by calling (612) 376-5587. Each tape is available for two weeks.

Highlights of the night sky in the first half of October include Venus and the two strongest sources of radio waves in the sky, apart from our nearby sun.

Venus, an early morning star at this time of the year, is rising in the southeast about three and one half hours before the sun appears. Astronomers analyzing the data from the Pioneer Venus orbiter discovered recently that this cloud-wrapped planet has a wide belt of flat, rolling plains and relatively flat highlands.

Venus' major features have been named for women in mythology and for famous women. The radio source Cassiopeia A is what's left of a dying star, in this case the remnants of a supernova explosion about 10,000 light years away (about six quadrillion miles, or the distance light travels in 10,000 years). Cassiopeia A emits intense radio waves. This radio source cannot be seen without a radio telescope because our eyes are sensitive to light and not to radio waves.

Having exhausted its thermonuclear fuel when it reached the age of about 5 billion years, this massive star first exploded with the light of an entire galaxy, flinging its matter into space at about the rate of 20 million miles per hour. Some 50 to 100 years later, in about 1780, it began to emit the radio waves.

Cassiopeia A is located closer to the zenith (the point in the sky directly overhead) than is the constellation Cassiopeia, which looks like a wobbly "W". At sunset, the constellation Cassiopeia is about halfway between the zenith and the eastern horizon.

Cygnus A is the second strong radio source in the early October sky. If we could see it, it would be close to the crossed center of the constellation Cygnus, or the "Northern Cross". Cygnus will be directly overhead shortly after sunset.

This radio source is not the result of a supernova explosion, but is an entire radio galaxy, about half a billion light years away from our galaxy, emitting 1,000 times the energy coming now from Cassiopeia A.

Weather Wisdom

The lowest temperature ever recorded on Earth was -126.9°F (-88. 26°C), at Vostok, Antarctica, on August 24, 1960.

The thermometer was invented in 1593 by Galileo. The more accurate mercury thermometer like those used today was developed by Gabriel Fahrenheit in 1714.

A barometer helps us predict the weather by measuring air pressure on the earth's surface. A rapidly falling barometer signals a coming storm while a rising barometer indicates fair weather.

According to A-T-O Inc.'s Thermometer Corporation of America, the temperature at the center of the sun is believed to be 27 million degrees Fahrenheit (15 million degrees Celsius).

Diabetes Center Helps Patients Manage Illness

Development of diabetes is a traumatic event in a person's life. He or she may face dramatic changes in lifestyle. There will be a daily routine of insulin injections, urine testing, exercise and a controlled diet. Diabetes is the most common metabolic disease and often, the most difficult to care for properly.

Diabetes is a disease in which the body does not make proper use of glucose, a form of sugar which the body uses or stores for energy. For proper use of glucose, insulin, a hormone produced by the pancreas, must be present. Diabetes results when the pancreas is either not producing enough insulin or is producing an insulin which does not work effectively.

Mount Sinai's Diabetes-Metabolic Care Center offers a program designed to help people with diabetes learn how to successfully manage their illness. Classroom learning is followed by opportunities to gain practical experience through a "learning by doing" method. In order to better meet each individual's needs, all participants are involved in planning their own programs.

Daytime classes are offered to both hospitalized and non-hospitalized patients and family members. There is also a six-week series of classes conducted consecutive Thursday evenings from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the hospital, 2215 Park Avenue, Mpls. Free testing for diabetes is available in Mount Sinai's laboratory every Thursday from 9 a.m. to noon.

For more information about the Mount Sinai Hospital Diabetes-Metabolic Care Center, call (612) 871-3700, extension 1758 or 1872.

Diabetic Retinopathy: A Leading Cause Of Blindness

Few Americans are aware that if you have diabetes you run the risk of developing an eye disease that is a leading cause of new cases of blindness.

According to the National Society to Prevent Blindness, those most at risk are persons who have been diabetic for many years. However, it's a possible threat to all diabetics, old and young.

Fortunately, new methods such as the use of lasers are helping in the management of diabetic retinopathy.

Early diagnosis increases the chances of control. The Society urges every diabetic to undergo a regular eye examination.

For more information, contact your state Society to Prevent Blindness or the National Society to Prevent Blindness, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016.

In Remembrance Of Me

For almost two thousand years the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper has been celebrated by Christians everywhere. Though variously interpreted by the churches, though administered with different ritual, it has always remained our unifying bond . . . the Communion of the Church with her Lord. . .

On World Wide Communion Sunday Christian congregations all over the globe will assemble to celebrate this Communion. Each will follow its own accustomed usage, exercising the right of religious freedom that the free peoples of the world treasure so highly. And as millions receive the Sacrament they will be conscious of the joyous faith that unites them with one another and with Christ.

This is a century of crisis in which those who treasure their spiritual heritage must stand together . . . must face with courage the alarming growth and ruthless power of an atheism dedicated to the overthrow of both freedom and religion.

Join your fellow Christians at The Lord's Table!

by Ken Froschheiser
Chief of Police
Thief River Falls, MN.

I have been asked to make a statement in regard to the proposed bond issued presently facing the citizens of School District 564. Within this statement I will attempt to speculate about police problems on a comparative basis between our present high school and the proposed new one.

When we sit down and look at our present school, there are several police problems that are inherent. Six areas of concern for our department at the present time are:

(1) Traffic and pedestrian safety;
(2) Drug abuse and traffic;
(3) Inadequate parking;
(4) Traffic congestion;
(5) Illegal use of tobacco by children; and
(6) opportunities to commit crime.

The proposed issue calls for a "closed campus" system. This means that generally students shall not be allowed to leave the school property without proper authority. At the present time, students move from one building to another for their assigned classes. When they leave one building to proceed to the other, they are off school property and the school officials do not have control. This is where the six identified police problems begin to surface.

(1) Students move back and forth in one of two ways: they either walk or drive. When they walk, students are like any of the rest of us; they will use the shortest route between two points. The police department has received many complaints and has spent many man hours in trying to make sure that private property is not used for the route. Besides going through private property and wearing a path into the lawn, litter is left behind to make a very unsightly area not only for the property owners but also for the city of Thief River Falls.

One of our major concerns here is the safe movement of students across a major highway. A crossing guard has been hired for the past four years to help us insure this safety. When the students elect the other means, we have immediate traffic flow and safety problems. With 50 to 75 students walking and 15 to 20 vehicles moving in the same direction, the safety of students, other pedestrians, and other vehicular traffic is minimized.

(2) We have heard over and over again about the drug abuse and related problems. The present facilities and free movement of students are very conducive to drug traffic. If a student made the decision to use drugs while attending school, the most logical time is when moving from point A to point B. The easiest way would be to do it in a motor vehicle out of sight of school officials and police officers.

Drug pushers find this type of setting to their liking. The transaction is made very easily when you can do it in the privacy of your motor vehicle while taking the buyer to his or her destination. Police officers have been very frustrated in the past and we continue to be frustrated as we see known pushers stop by the school, pick up some students and leave. Although we believe we know what is going on inside the automobile, van or pickup, constitutional law forbids us from taking action without probable cause to do so.

This year restraints have been taken by our school officials to shorten the time allowed for movement between buildings. This has indeed helped, but the opportunity is still present, the dealer and buyer just have a smaller amount of time to accomplish their transactions.

The proposed new facility would take away the advantage for the dealer. School officials have the right and responsibility to control of the property. Persons without official business would not be allowed access to the property. Furthermore, with a closed system, the students would not be off school property and would not have authority to do so.

The concern has been raised about the site being so close to the AVTI and junior college. Careful study of the site and proposed location of the high school shows a distance of about a half mile apart. With a closed system, students will not be allowed to leave the building until school hours are over. At that time it would not make any difference if the school complexes are 10 miles apart. If the students want to see each other they are going to do it regardless.

Once the students leave our schools it becomes our responsibility as parents to determine if our children are associating with others of wholm we approve or disapprove. The officers of this department all agree that drug abuse can best be dealt with in a controlled setting rather than a free uncontrolled environment.

(3) The proposed system has very adequate parking for administration, teachers, students and visitors. In the present setting parking is strung out in a four block area. Residents complain of vehicles blocking private driveways, parking on sidewalks and on private property. Out-of-town shoppers yield a large parking lot located at Knight avenue to school parking. There is no question that parking would certainly be relieved under the proposed issue.

(4) Traffic congestion at 3:30 p.m. is apparent to everyone in the downtown area. Although the proposed issue will not cause any less traffic, it will give the traffic time to even out prior to getting to heavy traffic flow areas. At the present time, buses, cars and pedestraians are all starting at the same point, one block away from major highways and downtown business.

(5) Over the last two years this department has assigned officers to the school area to enforce the law in regard to use of tobacco by children. We all agree that the scene is deplorable; students smoking while standing in the street, sitting on vehicles, leaning against buildings. People are quick to condemn school officials for not doing something they cannot do.

All of, these activities are occurring on public property or private property. Since the proposed issue has a closed system there will be no reason for students to be ouutside the building during class breaks. This would eliminate this problem and free officers of this department to do other police activities. School officials would have control of the problem on their own property.

(6) The opportunity to commit crime occurs whenever there is time to do it. At present, with the time allowed to walk some distance to another building or leave for dinner, there is ample opportunity for thefts, vandalism and other types of crimes. We have investigated many shoplifting and vandalism cases that occurred during normal school hours. Again, a closed system would be a very preventive measure on crime.

I am not proposing by any means that the proposed issue before us will do away with the problems discussed here. What I am saying is that with adequate facilities under one roof and strengthened controls, the school officials, the court systems and law enforcement will have a much better handle on controlling the problems that we have been so frustrated with over the past years.

BBB Warns Consumers Of Fruit Fraud

During recent weeks door to door salesmen claiming to be representatives of Sunkist products have been selling grapefruits and oranges throughout Minnesota. They reportedly tell potential customers that, with the return of two proof of purchase labels to Sunkist, they will receive a $10 rebate.

The better business bureau (BBB) of Minnesota has been advised by representatives of Sunkist Growers Inc., California, that they are not presently involved in this door to door promotion and are not offering any rebate. They describe this as a scheme involving the sale of fruit at inflated prices while using the Sunkist name to imply quality.

One resident, who was approached, tells that the salesman said he could sell a half carton of fruit for $29.50. He offered to sell all oranges, all grapefruit, or a mixed order.

The salesman claimed that the fruit was less than seven days old, from the grove, and inspected by the local health department. The customer was offered a fresh cut of the fruit, shown the Sunkist label, and told that the fruit could be kept fresh in the basement by putting the box two inches off the floor. The customer was also shown a roll of checks reportedly written by neighbors, who made similar purchases.

The BBB suggests residents use caution when approached by door-to-door salespeople selling fruit, and reminds persons that they may check unknown solicitations with the BBB by writing 1745 University Ave, St. Paul, Mn. 55104 or calling 612-646-4633.

Circuit Rider Program Is "Successful"

"Circuit Rider" program started this summer by the Minnesota office of consumer services (OCS) and department of economic security (DES) has been "very successful" according to OCS director Kris Sanda, and will continue through June of 1981.

The federally funded program sends an OCS representative to 31 Minnesota communities once every four weeks to act on consumer complaints, problems, and questions. It started in early June and was initially scheduled to continue through this September. The program will be expanded to include 33 cities.

"The response has been terrific," Sanda said. "There is no doubt we should continue the program and we're pleased to be able to do so in cooperation with commissioner Rolf Middleton and the department of Economic Security."

Sanda said figures through August show a total of 627 consumers in the 31 cities utilized the circuit rider program by either telephoning or visiting personally with the circuit riders to lodge complaints, ask question or pick up consumer education information.

"Many people in outstate Minnesota didn't even know OCS existed," Sanda said. "They heard about the program, contacted the circuit riders, and in most cases, we were able to solve their problems for them."

Sanda said one person who contacted a circuit rider ended up with a refund of $11,200. Many others received refunds after OCS mediated consumer complaints initiated through the circuit rider program.

DES will continue to provide funding for the program through federal grants earmarked for outreach and program evaluation, and is particularly interested in reaching consumers with energy-related problems. The two agencies budgeted $65,000 for this summer's effort.

"I expect by the time September figures are in, our circuit riders will have assisted nearly 1,000 people," Sanda said. "I think the program is cost-effective, especially when you consider that we're providing a needed face-to-face service for mostly low-income people in rural areas."

She said about 50 per cent of persons visiting circuit riders from June through August make less than $13,300 annually, with about 10 per cent making less than $5,100 annually.

"With the economy as difficult as it is now, it is particularly important for low-income consumers to receive full value for every dollar spent. We're pleased the circuit rider program has helped achieve that result," Sanda said.

In addition to individual meetings with consumers, circuit riders have participated in seminars, given speeches and appeared on various "consumer watch" radio and television shows.

Among the 31 cities visited, Rochester led with 53 circuit rider contacts through August, followed by Virginia with 41, Hibbing with 37, St. Cloud with 36, Mankato and Willmar with 33 and Winona with 31.

Sanda said Two Harbors and Silver Bay will be dropped from the northern circuit because only one person in those two cities utilized the program. In central Minnesota, the office will be moved from Mora to Cambridge and in southern Minnesota, Austin, Fairbault, Owatonna and Red Wing will be added.

The 33 cities are: Albert Lea, Alexandria, Austin, Bemidji, Brainerd, Crookston, Cambridge, Detroit Lakes, Ely, Fairmont, Fairbault, Fergus Falls, Grand Rapids, Hibbing, Hutchinson, International Falls, Little Falls, Mankato, Marshall, Montevideo, Moorhead, Morris, New Ulm, Owatonna, Pipestone, Red Wing, Rochester, St. Cloud, Thief River Falls, Virginia, Willmar, Winona and Worthington.

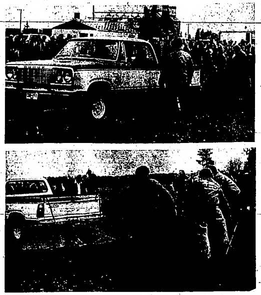
Buckle Up For Safety, Warns Safety Council

Last year almost 8,000 people died because they thought they had found a good excuse for not wearing safety belts — people who the Minnesota safety council estimates would have lived if they had taken just six seconds to buckle up.

A national safety council study of the factors contributing to the decrease in motor vehicle fatalities from 1973 to 1977 found that while most automobiles on the road today are equipped with safety belts, less than 12 per cent of the nation's drivers and passengers take advantage of the protection they afford.

In the next 10 years of normal driving, according to the Minnesota safety council, it is likely that each of us will be involved in a motor vehicle accident serious enough to injure or kill someone. By taking the simple and effective precaution of wearing safety belts, drivers and passengers can reduce the chance of injury or death in the event of an auto accident.

Principle behind the protection that safety belts provide is that a passenger slows down with the car on impact rather than continuing to travel at the same speed the car was travelling before the collision. Because the passenger is held in place by the belts, he or she substantially reduces the odds of being involved in a serious second collision, a person-to-person collision or ejection from the automobile.



FOUR-WHEEL drive pick-up pull attracted many spectators Saturday during the Middle River goose festival. A muddy track was the route used by four-wheelers (pictured driving is Rick Rantanen) who pulled weight behind them in an effort to make their way as far as possible down the slippery wet course.

New Standards Set For School Lunch Programs

A comprehensive management system for finding and correcting problems in local school programs will take effect January 1, according to assistant secretary, Carol Tucker Foreman.

Under the system there will be new requirements for state reviews of lunch programs, actions to remedy problems found by reviews and plans for recovering federal funds misspent in the program, Foreman said.

"This new system is designed both to improve the administration of the program and make certain that all the necessary components of school meals are being served to children," Foreman said.

In recent years, audits conducted by USDA and the General Accounting Office revealed weaknesses in state and local management of the school lunch programs.

Some of the deficiencies included inadequate procedures for reviewing student applications for free and reduced price meals; errors in counting, claiming, and costing for meals served; and lack of compliance with federal standards regarding meal components.

To correct these problems, the new regulations require states to monitor school lunch programs by conducting on-site reviews to determine complaiance with national standards.

According to the regulations, states may select one of three systems for monitoring the lunch program. The three options include an audit system, a review system, or a combination of audits and reviews. Each system requires on-site evaluations of school programs. However, requirements vary with each system regarding frequency of visits and actions taken regarding deficiencies. A complete description of each is included in the regulations.

This flexibility is provided to states as a result of comments on proposed regulations issued October 30, 1979. Commentors, representing local and state officials, school administrators, school food service workers and parents, emphasized differences in problems and resources from state to state.

"In providing three options for states we are attempting to provide them the flexibility to do the best possible job," said Foreman.

Additional federal funds are being provides to states to offset expenses for monitoring responsibilities. Approximately $4 million is allocated to states for this purpose.

Currently, 27 million children receive meals in 95,000 schools through the national school lunch program at a federal cost of $3 billion a year. Schools and states file claims for federal money based on the number of free, reduced price and paid meals they serve. In turn, they must serve meals that meet federal standards.

The new regulations were published in the September 26 Federal Register, available at local libraries.

VIP Plan Saves MN Taxpayers $3.7 Million

Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) "Value Improvement Program" (VIP) saved Minnesota taxpayers $3.7 million during the fiscal year ending June 30, according to commissioner Richard P. Braun.

The program provides cost reduction, product or process improvement, and alternative methods or materials for highway construction and maintenance.

For instance, a value engineering team study concerning a Duluth concrete arch culvert installation on U.S 2-I-35 saved Mn-DOT $140,000 — a saving of more than half the project's estimated cost, Leo Ryan, Mn-DOT value engineer, said. The job was done without comprising construction quality through the study team's creative efforts.

VIP, now in its eighth year, Ryan noted, has saved taxpayers $30.7 million since its November 1972 implementation. Mn-DOT uses the funds saved to increase the number of road and bridge improvement projects that can be completed yearly.

Two 40-hour workshops on value engineering were recently conducted as part of Mn-DOT's ongoing program, Ryan said. Ten planned projects totaling $28 million were studied and potential savings of $4 million have been recommended. Some of these savings will be delayed because many of the projects have since been cut from the present highway and bridge improvement program due to a lack of funds, he said.

An estimated 45 per cent of vision impairments due to injury occur in the home.

MSSA Annual Conference Set At Crookston

Annual Minnesota Social Services association (MSSA) regional conference (Region III) will be conducted in Crookston at the University of Minnesota agriculture science building auditorium October 24. Registration will begin at 9 a.m.

The MSSA was founded in 1893 and is one of the oldest and largest membership public interest groups in Minnesota. MSSA is dedicated to social justice and equal opportunity and seeks to provide public information on social welfare and issues; to promote cooperation among individuals and other human service agencies. Members include individuals from social services, health and corrections agencies, county board members, clients, students, educators and others from private and public organizations.

Broad participation on a state and regional level provides an opportunity for organizations and individuals to combine their efforts toward humane social policies and legislation.

Theme for the Crookston conference will be "Working with Families." Keynote speaker will be Dr. Roland Martinson, a professor at Luther Seminary in St. Paul, whose presentation will begin at 10 a.m. Region III business meeting will follow Martinson's address. Lunch will be served in the new University Food Services Building and the luncheon cost will be included in the $6 registration fee.

Afternoon portion of the conference will include several workshops for social workers and well planned family counseling sessions presented by a number of regional organizations identified as religious, private, and public resources.

Alfon Hanson, Polk county commissioner, will serve as chairman of the conference.

A 3 p.m. adjournment is scheduled.

For further information contact Marian Olson or Emil Bagley at the Polk county social service center.

Pilot Effort Begun To Aid Small Business

A pilot effort to develop joint programs to better assist small business throughout outstate Minnesota has been announced by the U.S. Small Business administration and the agricultural extension service of the University of Minnesota.

Plans for the pilot programming were announced by Paul W. Jansen, SBA's Minnesota district director, and Dr. Norman A. Brown, director of the agricultural extension service.

"The foundation behind this effort", said Jansen, "is the old premise that two heads can work better than one. There are problems outstate with which SBA has been attempting to deal in its way and the extension service has been attacking in its way. Now, by drawing our resources together, we feel we can operate in a far more effective manner to bring about thorough solutions."

Jansen and Brown said the programming will be piloted initially as two efforts. The two agencies will work with existing small business in rural communities in southeast Minnesota to cope with problems resulting from changes occuring in that area. Second effort will be concerned with developing programs specifically for women currently engaged in business and for those considering entering into business. Also being considered are problems specifically related to the economy of northern Minnesota.

In these efforts, SBA personnel will be joining with extension workers and local business leaders to design and deliver program packages to meet the needs of small business. SBA currently maintains one office in Minnesota — in downtown Minneapolis. It also works through chapters of the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE) in six communities, small business institute programming at 12 colleges and universities, and the Small Business Development Centers at nine schools.

Agricultural Extension Service staff are located throughout the state to facilitate the assessment of local needs and delivery of educational programs. These programs are accessible through 92 offices in Minnesota's 87 counties and at the Red Lake Indian Reservation. In addition, 44 area agents are located strategically around the state to offer a variety of expertise to people within specific regions. A state staff of 143 extension specialists located in collegiate departments of the University of Minnesota provide support to the field staff network.

"We at SBA are excited about this programming," Jansen said, "particularly because it will further help us to meet the needs of the small communities of Minnesota. I believe we already have made significant efforts in these areas, but, in the minds of many Minnesotans, we still are "a big city agency" — one which deals basically in the Twin Cities. Now, drawing on the expertise of extension agents who are deeply involved in the problems and opportunities of outstate Minnesota, we feel we will be better able to meet them with effective programming. The result, we hope will be a strengthened economy throughout the entirety of Minnesota."

The SBA offers a wide variety of programming, centering on three broad areas — financial assistance, management counsel, and aid to small businesses seeking federal contracts. The Agricultural Extension Service offers its programming through four broad areas — agriculture and related industries; home economics and family living; 4-H and youth; and community development, natural resources and public policy.

Jansen and Brown said plans call for evaluation of these pilot efforts in terms of developing more comprehensive programming.

Weather Causes Variable Crop Of Sunflowers

Sunflower harvest has begun in the Red River valley. The sunflowers are producing a variable yield this year as the area was plagued by a severe drought early in the season followed by widespread hail damage. These weather conditions, combined with the late excess moisture experienced in some areas, are generally resulting in below normal yields.

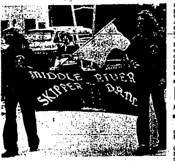
Yields are varying from highs in excess of 2,000 pounds per acre to disappointing lows under 1,000. Stress and premature ripening, a disease plaguing many growers, have cut yields severely in some areas of the Red River Valley.

In one company's preliminary strip tests, some hybrids are showing excellent tolerance to premature ripening and could thus eliminate an age old problem. Harvest at test plots is showing yields of 1,200 to 2,500 pounds, according to Paul Holmen, research agronomist at Crookston, where the earliest harvest is completed.

"Hybrids tolerant to premature ripening are producing yields 100 to 300 pounds per acre higher than other hybrids," he said.

According to Sam Heikes, Fort Pierre, S.D., the southern areas of the state are producing widely varied yields with highs in irrigated acres of 2,300 pounds down to under 1,000 pounds per acre in dry areas (Wagner, SD). Since the Armour area has not experienced a frost, there is also wide variation in maturity. Many fields in Fort Pierre area were planted late, are done flowering and now safe from frost, and look excellent.

Harvesting is still several days off in many areas of North Dakota. What few plots have been combined so far are producing yields down a bit from last year, reports Jerry Spellerberg, Lidgerwood, ND.



MIDDLE RIVER SKIPPER band provided music for viewers at the parade Saturday in Middle River during the second day of the annual goose festival.

"Drought conditions are the major reason for the poor yields," he said, "but the beginning of a complete harvest for the state is still another five to 10 days off."

Sunflower exports are bringing a low price right now, according to Dick Kalgren, president of the Sunflower Growers association of America, although the price is still higher than last year at this time. Kalgren explained, "This pricing is based on a backlog of oils overseas in countries that are crushing other kinds of oil seed. I look for the situation to clear up late in the current shipping season or early in the spring."

What's The Reason?

In a series of three editorials run earlier this year, publisher and editor William N. Kremer of the Wheaton Gazette has expounded on his belief that the National Farmers organization (NFO) program is the only hope which family farmers have to stay in business. He has invited anyone who can give valid reasons to believe otherwise to send those reasons to him and has received little response.

"I'm not quite certain how to take that," he writes in the third of the three editorials. "Maybe the editorial comment wasn't read; maybe those who can offer good reasons for not joining the organization don't feel the matter is worthy of the time and effort it would take to respond — or maybe there just aren't any reasons . . . at least not good reasons."

The purpose of today's editorial is not to promote the National Farmers organization as a savior for agriculture; farming and farm marketing are too complex for us to fully believe the NFO is a cure-all. But we agree with publisher Kremer that the NFO program of commodity control for sale at cost of production plus a reasonable profit is a basic premise in any successful business enterprise. It is a logical place to start.

When the NFO first came into prominence here it arrived on a note of militancy that alarmed a lot of people, including a goodly number of farmers. Demonstrations of milk dumping, dairy calf slaughter, elevator boycotts and picketing were a "turn-off" for many potential members.

We would like to think that those days and those experiences are behind, and that they were only the impetuous activities of a juvenile organization in the process of growing up. Perhaps with maturity since acquired, the NFO can concentrate on making farm producers aware that its program is the only one being offered to allow the farmer to determine his own fate in the marketplace.

There are two parts to any business enterprise — producing and selling. Farmers, aided by land grant colleges and corporations developing products to sell, have done a tremendous job of producing. They have adopted new technologies, used new varieties, applied fertilizers and pesticides and herbicides and injected antibiotics and hormones and medicines. And they have almost succeeded in producing themselves right out of business.

Farmers will have to admit, if they will examine their operations honestly, that while they have been doing a great job of producing they have been doing a lousy job of marketing. Oh sure, they watch the day-to-day market trends and the futures and they try to catch the peaks if they can when they can, but they haven't done anything on an organized basis to price their own product.

Instead, while prices for products they purchase have been rising by leaps and bounds, farmers have been trying to keep pace by producing and selling more product for about the same price. And as long as buyers of the farm produce can buy it for that price, can anyone expect them to pay more?

In the process, farmers have attempted to cut costs by mechanizing and using labor-saving equipment, allowing one person to farm more land so he can raise more product to sell for the same low price. And in so doing he has driven up the price of land to the extent that its cost exceeds its ability to produce, yet its inflated value commands high taxation.

Speculators and corporations are often blamed for the land price spiral, but their influence has been overstated. It has been the neighbor who wants to expand his base and maximize his mechanized equipment who has been at the core of escalating land prices.

While all of these factors have beset the farmer and contributed to his woes, he has for the most part been content to bring the fruits of his labors to the market and ask "what will you give me?" And if he gets 10 cents a bushel or a dollar a hundredweight more than his neighbor he is considered a good businessman.

"So why," Kremer asked in his first editorial, "doesn't each and every single farmer say to himself that he's going to get together with other farmers and form a block of his production so that he can get a guaranteed reasonable return on his investment and his labor? Why, oh why, doesn't he do that? I don't know. I just can't figure it out.

". . . It seems to me that it's just a matter of farmers putting aside their bullheaded prejudices and starting to think about their own well-being and that of their fellowman. Why must a farmer be a rugged individual who goes out and whips the world all by himself? That doesn't make sense — not anymore. He can't do it alone. There's no way he can."

We will admit to initial reservations about the NFO program of collective bargaining. It seemed to us somehow dangerous to put something as vital as food — the sustenance of life — under virtually exclusive control. The potential for extortion, it seemed to us, would be high.

It is now becoming more and more apparent that if the family farm fails — which appears inevitable if the spread between what the farmer buys and what he sells continues — that control is likely to rest with fewer people who could more easily and more profitably manipulate what others must pay for food. I guess we would rather take our chances with our farm neighbors than a New York or Chicago or Los Angeles syndicate.

Yes, it hurts to pay food prices which seem high compared to years ago. But if we're honest, we'll admit that food is really a pretty good deal in this country, and it is a bargain at the expense of those who produce it for us. They deserve a better lot, and if they will only realize it and act accordingly, it is theirs for the asking.

Erosion—Everyone's Problem

Following editorial is from the Northwood (Iowa) Anchor:

If you don't think soil erosion is a problem on land you farm, or in this country, this column is for you. Many think there are still many farmers who question whether the soil loss figures they see and hear are accurate. There are many who believe soil erosion is a problem in another part of Iowa, but not in their neighborhood, or especially on their own farms.

On one hand, it's understandable. A soil loss of 10 tons an acre (the Iowa average on cropland) is only 1-14 of an inch across the acre. That's very difficult to notice, especially if you'd rather not see it. Of course, there are years soil loss is less than that, too.

On the other hand, there are years when soil loss is much greater. The erosion that occurred this year over much of the state was all too easy to see. Or think about how your land looked 10 years ago, and how it looks today. Anyone with any sloping land at all has probably seen lighter colored soil in spots and a build-up of soil at fencelines — sure signs of erosion.

Look at soil surveys, where topsoil depths are described. Then compare that to original topsoil estimates, and you find the soil loss figures being quoted fit the historical picture.

Figures like two bushels of topsoil loss for a bushel of corn produced, an inch of soil lost every 14 years are attempted to help visually explain soil losses.

Most who work with the land know if we're losing soil. The question then is whether we care enough to do something about it.

Master Campaigner

Following editorial is from the Murray County Herald at Slayton:

Jimmy Carter's track record as president of the United States has been something less than impressive, but his record as a political campaigner will not be questioned in these columns. He is a rare commodity.

As governor of Georgia he was one of the least respected governors in the nation — but he won. In his four years as president of the United States he has accomplished a national recession, major unemployment, significant decrease in the gross national product and international unrest.

In spite of these turns in the nation's interest, he managed to turn back the threat of being unseated at the Democratic convention by Sen. Edward Kennedy and is coming back strongly in the nation's popularly polls.

Carter is probably one of the least effective presidents in the history of our country. But he is also probably the best politician we have seen in a long time.

Obviously, it takes more than wisdom, eloquence and accomplishment to win the votes of the American public. Carter has the ability to win votes without these characteristics and we hope that the American people realize this before November.

As he told Kennedy four years ago, "your turn will come in eight years." He's a superb politician — but a very poor practitioner after the election.

Interesting Opinions:

New Rules To Tighten Food Stamp Program

People applying for food stamps could be asked to provide more proof of information on their applications under a rule proposed by the department of agriculture.

Currently, all persons applying for food stamps must document their income, social security number, and certain medical and utility expenses. Persons who are not U.S. citizens must prove that they are legal aliens who have been admitted to this country for permanent residence.

States are also permitted to require all applicants to provide proof of their liquid assets. In addition, states must require proof of a number of other eligibility factors, such as rent or household composition, whenever the information provided by an applicant is questionable.

The proposed rule would give states authority to conduct additional verification by allowing states to require proof from every applicant of all shelter expenses, all child care expenses, and household size. Proposed rule would allow states to require documentation of these factors, whether or not the information supplied by the applicant appeared questionable.

In addition, the regulation would put into effect a provision of food stamp legislation enacted in May that allows states to develop a profile of the types of food stamp cases and eligibility factors that are most subject to error. States would then be able to require verification of all information and food stamp cases that fit into these categories shown to be "error prone."

"The error-prone profile can be an important management tool," Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said. "States should be able to use it to target their verfication efforts on the information and cases most likely to cause errors. This can help to promote administrative efficiency while reducing errors at the same time."

Other changes in the new regulations would expand the authority of states to conduct home visits and contact persons who may have information about applicants, require verification of household identity and residency in every case, and permit more verification of information provided by destitute households seeking emergency food stamps.

Proposed rule is the latest in a series of Departmental and Congressional efforts to tighten food stamp management. Starting June 1, the department required states to obtain social security numbers from applicants to facilitate cross-checks of information about applicants. Other rules put into effect at that time required persons disqualified for food stamp fraud to arrange to pay back the value of the stamps they received before being allowed to rejoin the program. These changes were authorized by legislation proposed by Congress last summer.

While the new proposal should help reduce food stamp errors, Assistant Secretary Foreman expressed concern that the rules could have limited impact in those states that lack the staff to conduct sufficient vertification. "We are worried that some states do not have enough staff to check out information on food stamp applications with sufficient thoroughness," she said. "No matter what the verfication rules are, the job cannot be done properly if states are short on staff."

New rules appeared in the Federal Register August 12. Comments on the proposal must be received by October 13 and should be addressed to: Alberta Frost, Deputy Administrator for Family Nutrition Programs, Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Adult Lutheran Fellowship Set At Grand Forks

At the Grand Forks adult Lutheran fellowship gathering, November 1-2, there will be opportunity for adults from North Dakota, northern Minnesota and southern Manitoba to explore together the theme, "Facing the Future" with nationally recognized speakers and teachers.

The gathering has been planned by an intersynodical steering committee made up of Lutheran laypersons and clergy from the Grand Forks area. ALC member of Our Savior's Lutheran church in East Grand Forks, Vodi Medd, is chairman.

"The theme will help focus on how we as Christians will relate to the future," Medd said. "What makes our perspective of the future different from non-believing persons? How do we see the family in light of Scripture, ethics and morality, the church, evangelism, social needs? How do we face the future?"

Speakers to be present at the gathering include: Rev. Conrad Thompson, the radio voice of Lutheran Vespers and former director of Evangelism for the ALC; Dr. Erwin Kolb, executive director for the board of evangelism for the Lutheran church-Missouri synod; Ann Kiemel, speaker and author; Dr. Jim Berwuist, director of the division for service and mission in America for the American Lutheran church; and Ruth Youngdahl Nelson, 1973 mother of the year and speaker and teacher throughout the U.S. and Europe.

Music leadership will come from Dave and Barb Anderson, full-time Lutheran concert Gospel singers from Anoka.

Twenty-seven elective workshops will be offered to the participants in the two-day program. They will be led by qualified area pastors and laypersons. Electives include: "Parenting-What It Takes"; "Stress in the Christian Family"; "It's About Those Youth"; "The Single Adult"; "Cult Movements Examined"; "How to Study the Bible" and many more.

Registration and hotel accomodation Saturday evening at the Ramada Inn in Grand Forks is $39.75. Registration only is $23.75. Registration and program information is available by contacting: Grand Forks Lutheran Fellowship Gathering, c-o University Lutheran Church, 2116 University Avenue, Grand Forks, North Dakota 58201.

Wheat Growers Concerned By USDA Direction

Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers has expressed concern over the United States Department of Agriculture's (USDA) reported shift toward consumerism and has urged Secretary Bergland to begin "standing up for the farmer."

In a letter to Bergland, Wheat Grower president Jorgen Knutson of Red Lake Falls stated that, "it has become more and more apparent that the emphasis has been shifting away from the interests of the farmer to those of the consumer. The crowning blow to us as wheat producers," he wrote, "has to be the recent presidential commendation given to Howard Hjort, your director of economics, policy analysis and budget for successfully making the shift in USDA policy from being producer-oriented to being consumer-orientated."

"If Mr. Hjort was indeed responsible for this shift, then he should not have received a cash award," Knutson claimed, "he should have been asked to resign. The fact that he received the presidential citation only fuels our greatest fear that the administration's actions of the past four years appears to be following a well planned and orchestrated track that is heading toward total government control of agriculture, when the farmer has only a small voice in how that government operates."

Knutson told Bergland that it appeared that the USDA and the American farmer have become more subservient to other interests in government. Citing examples of this, Knutson reported that the administration has openly stated its intention to continue using farm products for its international political purposes. The USDA is also attempting to promote additional bilateral agreements, so that the U.S. government can not only control who can purchase grain, but also how much they can buy.

Knutson also said that greater intervention by the USDA's commodity credit corporation in marketing grains is surpressing the U.S. marketing system that has worked so well in the past. He said that even the farmer-held reserve, which was originally implemented to isolate excess production from the market, has now been redirected toward encouraging excess production and building greater carryover stocks so that through the manipulation of the release and call mechanisms, the government can control the price the farmer receives for his product.

"The administration has to realize that the best thing the United States could have going for it is a productive and economically viable agriculture," Knutson stated. He also warned Bergland that "you are witnessing what could very well be the beginning of a reduction in its vitality."

Knutson concluded by telling Bergland, "the consumers are already well represented in Washington, but the U.S. department of agriculture is the last voice for the farmer within the government. Consumers do not need any additional assistance from the agriculture department," he said, "but the farmers do."

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

A few weeks ago, I was invited, along with Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, to appear on the Friday edition of ABC's "Good Morning America" television program. The purpose was to discuss the long-awaited tax proposals the Administration had just presented. Naturally, I accepted this invitation. You can imagine my surprise then, when I was contacted by ABC shortly before its broadcast and informed, with regret, that I had been disinvited. Mr. Miller, it seems, had made it known that he did not want to be interviewed with me.

Quite frankly, I consider his attitude disturbing. Manipulating the media and depriving people of their rights of free speech are alien to America's oldest democratic traditions. What's more, the Administration really had no cause to complain, for it had already monopolized most media coverage the preceding day when it unveiled its tax plan. So by what standard of fairness did it have a right to return and demand exclusivity the following morning? And if its tax policy was truly as good as the President had claimed, why was Mr. Miller so unwilling to defend it before the American public?

As I pondered these questions, I turned on my television to watch the Treasury Secretary. Lo and behold, there was the same person who had refused to appear with me, now attacking me by name, and claiming my recent criticisms had been politically motivated rather than based upon sound economics. Then, Mr. Miller went even further. Indulging in a quick rewrite of history, he told the ABC viewing audience that Mr. Carter came into office in January 1977, in the midst of "the deepest recession since the Great Depression." Let the record show that the last recession bottomed out in early 1975, two years before President Carter took over.

Mr. Miller also erred in stating that my criticisms of Administration policies were politically motivated. The fact is, as President of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, I do not speak for myself, but for an organization that comprises more than 100,000 large and small businesses, state and local chambers and trade and professional associations. Without intending to cover ourselves with bouquets, I might note that Time magazine has referred to the U.S. Chamber as ". . . the most broadly respected business lobby" in Washington. We achieved that recognition by carefully preserving the integrity of our policy-making process, which is one of the strictest of any organization in America today.

Chamber policy is made by our governing body — a 65-member Board of Directors comprising a cross section of business leaders from small and large companies. Even this body cannot make decisions itself until it has received recommendations from 28 policy committees, subcommittees and panels composed of more than 1,000 men and women representing the broadest possible business viewpoint.

So for me to change, or worse, simply disregard the Chamber policies resulting from this process, would be to betray our entire membership. That is why I could not, as the Administration requested, put my signature on a document supporting the Panama Canal Treaties. And that is why I have strongly opposed: The so-called Consumer Protection Agency and Labor Law Reform bills; the many energy initiatives based on punitive taxation rather than incentives to stimulate production; the Council on Wage and Price Stability, which is a toothless substitute for the tough program needed to control spending and monetary growth, and, finally, the Administration's persistent refusal to support regulatory reform and genuine tax rate reductions for all Americans.

I wish the Administration would understand that my criticisms stem from convictions that I would defend just as vigorously during a Republican Administration as a Democratic one. If I didn't, I wouldn't be doing my job. Finally, let's never forget that controversy itself is vital to the well-being of America.

The essayist E. B. White once called ours "a country that was born of controversy — a country that wrote controversy into its Constitution, and set up its legislative bodies on the theory of controversy, that established its free press in the belief that controversy is vital to information, and that created a system of justice of which controversy is the heart and soul."

Bake Someone Happy

Bravo For Brownies

The rich chocolate goodness of brownies has long been an American favorite. Whether tucked in a lunch box as a special treat or part of a tailgate picnic, brownies bring out the smiles every time.

This all-time favorite can be dressed up as a fancy dessert for company, too. It's easy when you start with Betty Crocker® brownie mixes. Choose between traditional, chewy fudge brownie mix or rich, moist supreme fudge brownie mix that comes with a can of chocolate syrup in the box.

Try this special "company's coming" recipe that teams supreme fudge brownie mix with juicy, sweet crushed pineapple.

PINEAPPLE BROWNIE BARS

- 1 package Betty Crocker® supreme fudge brownie mix
- 1/4 cup water
- 1 egg
- 1 can (15 1/2 ounces) crushed pineapple, drained (reserve syrup)
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts
- Pineapple Frosting (below)

Heat oven to 350°. Grease bottom only of rectangular pan, 13x9x2 inches. Mix Brownie Mix, chocolate syrup, water, egg, pineapple and nuts thoroughly with spoon; spread in pan. Bake 30 to 35 minutes; cool. Frost with Pineapple Frosting. Cut into bars, about 2x1 inch. Refrigerate any remaining frosted bars. 4 dozen bars.

Pineapple Frosting

- 1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
- 1/4 cup margarine or butter, softened
- 3 cups powdered sugar
- 2 tablespoons reserved pineapple syrup

Beat all ingredients until frosting is fluffy and of spreading consistency. If necessary, stir in additional pineapple syrup, 1 teaspoon at a time.

Ask American parents what they want most for their children and invariably they will reply — a good education. The reason seems clear. Throughout our history, the nation's classrooms have served both as a melting pot for newly-arriving groups eager to be assimilated into our culture, and as an important source of self-improvement, and thus, new opportunity, for anyone anxious to climb the ladder of upward mobility in hopes of ultimately realizing the great American dream.

Lately, however, parents have come to realize that money and personal sacrifices do not necessarily guarantee better learning. During the past decade, they've seen the federal government dictating more and more about what, where, and how their children will be educated. But even as government's involvement grows and its expenditures on education soar to new highs each year, they've also seen pupil achievement test scores declining all over the country. In fact, at the rate things are going, it won't be long before B.A. stands not for a Bachelor of Arts, but for Barely Able.

Parents are reacting to this problem in a way that testifies to their own good judgement. They want more autonomy returned to their local school districts, and they want to see greater emphasis placed on teaching basic skills again, as well as respect for authority and discipline. Predictably, Washington resists this idea with a vengeance. Here, as always, the attitude seems to be: "We have failed. Let us continue."

For example, last year many warned that creation of the giant $14.5 billion, 16,000-employee Department of Education would be a disastrous mistake. Why? Because it would finalize the shift in emphasis from supporting local school districts to establishing and implementing a national educational policy directed by Big Brother. The bureaucrats pooh-poohed these protests, but look what's happening now.

The Department of Education recently issued a 25-page set of regulations that tells local school districts what they must do — or else — to instruct the some 800,000 children of foreign extraction who lack fluency in English. The regulations would require that schools with 25 or more limited English proficient students teach basic courses in their native languages as well as English. Any school district refusing to comply could be punished by a cut-off in federal funds.

The impact of this proposal would be absolutely devastating to local schools. In terms of dollars and cents, it could dump at least $400 million in new costs on already over-burdened municipalities. But even that number doesn't tell the story. Just imagine, for instance, the difficulty local school districts will have trying to locate and pay all the new instructors to teach algebra and history courses not just in French, German or Spanish, but in lesser spoken Asian and African languages as well. In some school districts around the country, more than 60 languages are spoken by foreign students.

Mon Dieu . . . Quel cauchemar!

What's worse, the proposal would inflict further harm on the quality of education at the very time parents are urging schools to improve their instruction by reemphasizing the teaching of basic scholastic skills. Since society's resources are limited, and the proposed regulations are mandatory, something would have to give. That something would probably be the traditional courses offered in English to all students.

The Department of Education claims that in fashioning its regulations, it relied heavily on the advice of educational experts. To date, however, it has refused to publicize either names or evidence supporting its position. Little wonder then that Emlyn Griffith, president of the National Association of State Boards of Education, has warned:

"Our overriding concern is that (the proposal) seeks for the first time in American history, to create a federal requirement telling schools everywhere how they must teach students. We can scarcely imagine a more profound threat to our richly diverse education system than a federal attempt to order the nation's 16,000 school districts to adopt a particular way of teaching, to mandate conformity in place of the plurality which has been the mainstay of American education."

Finally, think of the potentially tragic consequences the proposal could have for our entire society. What was it, after all, that made America so great, so unique? Was it not precisely the desire by millions of people from different backgrounds to join together in communities linked by a common culture and shared values? Yet, here suddenly is the federal government, barging in, and practically mandating every splinter group to ignore the community, stay apart and do its own thing. In reinforcing this native language dependency then, the government could actually give us the worst of both worlds: By denying access to common language it will limit opportunities for and delay assimilation of foreign students; and, by fostering the fragmentation of America, it will weaken the links of our common culture.

Maybe, just once, the public will get mad enough to let its representatives in Washington know this is one "reform" it would rather do without.

Weight Control News

HOW TO TAKE IT OFF AND KEEP IT OFF

If they put their minds to it, most people on diets can manage sooner or later to get close to that "perfect weight." But staying perfect is the hardest part of all. Here are four basic ways the "perfect" stay that way.

VARIETY IS A KEY TO WEIGHT CONTROL. To stay healthy you need about 40 different nutrients. And healthy means staying at the correct weight for your own special body. No single food source supplies all of those nutrients. So put some spice in your diet and eat and enjoy a variety of foods such as fruits, vegetables, grain and dairy products plus meat, poultry and fish.

ELIMINATE THE NEGATIVE FROM YOUR DIET. Too much of a good thing, even food, isn't good for you. Too many fatty foods, too many heaping spoonfuls of sugar and pinches of salt cannot only add extra calories, but could be really dangerous to your health. Become a label reader and look—for—sugar,—salt—and other nutrition information before you buy.

TONE-UP AND KEEP YOUR SHAPE. Even after you've reached your perfect weight it is still important to exercise, to be active. You have to burn up calories and you won't do it by sitting and watching TV. So get out there and walk, run, jump rope, play and have some fun. Did you realize that physical activity can actually help keep your weight down, relieve tension and help to keep your appetite where it should be?

Another way to keep your appetite from taking you over and adding back those pounds is with a safe and effective appetite suppressant such as Dietac. If a few pounds sneak back on, Dietac with a healthy diet program will help you return to your "perfect weight."

PLAN TO KEEP THE POUNDS DOWN AND YOU WILL. Become aware of the foods you eat. Plan each of your meals carefully. Avoid unconsciously snacking while on the phone or reading the newspaper.

These are a few examples of ways of maintaining the new you. If you would like a few more good examples, send for Dietac's free booklet on Behavior Modification as the key to weight control. Write: Dietac, P.O. Box 174, Clifton Heights, Pa. 19018.

You're Impossible!
Impossible. The politicians say it's impossible for a "non-politician" to be elected to public office. He doesn't know the "right" people, they say.
Baloney!
LeRoy Stumpf is not a politician. He's a young man who knows the problems of daily life.
LeRoy Stumpf is a new voice, a fresh outlook, a family man who has the old-fashioned idea that a representative should listen to his constituents, and serve them.

First Float Completed for 1981 Rose Parade Features Spectacular Explosion of Colors

The beauty of these birds will be seen in their full floral glory at the 1981 Rose Parade this New Year's Day. Called "Autumn Splendor," this float entry is the earliest approved and built in the 92-year history of the parade.

Tens of thousands of roses, Birds of Paradise, red, gold and tangerine carnations, orange and gold glads, bronze, rust and butterscotch pom-poms, orange marigolds, brown magnolia foliage, and a myriad variety of other fall flora. That's the "Autumn Splendor" float of Avon Products' third consecutive entry into the famed Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena, Cal. It was the first registered and approved by the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Assn. for the parade, to be held New Year's Day.

Designed by Raul Rodriguez to complement the official theme of "The Great Outdoors," the entry features a spectacular explosion of autumn colors framing two giant ring-necked pheasants taking a proud stroll through a fantasy field of wheat and wild flower gardens. Only the final fresh flowers are needed on the float entry and these cannot be applied until 48 hours prior to parade time.

The float's designer and its builder, Fiesta Floats, captured both the Sweepstakes and Grand Prize awards with their floats last year.

Rodriguez, along with former Rose Princess Sue Cary who is Avon's beauty consultant to the 1981 Rose Queen, and her Court, will ride the float.

To The Editor:

To start on a positive note, I would like to give credit to the many persons who have been involved in the planning and promotion of a new senior high school for School District 564. The design, location and promotion have all been excellent. I know there is a real need for improved facilities and feel that this plan meets the immediate need.

The real question is, can we afford such an excellent plan? $15,000,000 is a lot of money even with today's inflation. If the issue would have remained in the $10,000,000 area I could have supported this question.

Taking figures directly from the brochure show that total energy costs for the old high school are $93,968. Interest costs for a new auditorium alone would run about $80,000 plus heat and lights. I feel that the auditorium definitely should be dropped from consideration.

Again, using figures from the brochure, the new school cost of $11,964,720 divided by 172,375 sq. ft. equals $69.44 per sq. ft. — nearly twice the national one for high school construction in 1979.

To put the $15,000,000 in prospective, if the total bond was to be paid by the people of the city of Thief River Falls it would require about 60 mills increase or about a three-fold increase in city taxes. No, the city is not paying the total bill; the farmers realized that when they read the brochure.

If we can't afford this plan, what do we do? I suggest that an architect specializing in remodeling and restoring be engaged to do a plan on 1938 and 1956 Lincoln buildings to accommodate all necessary class rooms, etc., for grades 10, 11 and 12. Then build an addition on to Mark Twain and Franklin junior high school to accommodate the ninth grade and any deficiency in the present grade schools.

I think we should phase out our grade schools which are much older before we bulldoze Lincoln high school. Students in the 10-12 grades are better able to cope with stairways in an emergency than are the grade school students.

I was hoping to see someone else question this $15,000,000 building. When we can't find $40,000 to settle our teachers' contracts, where are we going to find $1,400,000 per year to build a new school?

Thank you.

Cut storage losses in pit and bunker silos
Corn silage stored in pit and bunker silos can lose 20% of the dry matter because of mold, run-off, and excessive heating. Laboratory data has proven that Crop Cure can dramatically reduce this feed value loss. Farm trials in pit and bunker type silos have shown that Crop Cure can cut up to 10 inches of spoilage off the top, reduce spoilage on the sides and front as silage is fed out, and cut down on run-off. So when you're putting up corn silage this year, use Crop Cure. The Number 1 silage preservative for pit and bunker silos.

ENTERTAINING IDEAS

DELIGHT YOUR FRIENDS WITH A HEAVENLY TREAT

The White Goddess of Irish lore served beverages and desserts to the Gods from the Divine Well of Inspiration. These can easily be made for your own idols. The O'Darby Cream Nut Roll will make you feel like you're in heaven. The fine nut roll is filled with the distinctive flavor of O'Darby, blended into clouds of lightly whipped cream. The chocolate leaves are easy to prepare, but will surprise even the most experienced cooks. Let the elegance of O'Darby Fruited Nog lift your spirits even higher. Its rich flavor deserves to be shared by caring friends.

O'DARBY CREAM NUT ROLL

7 eggs, separated
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
Dash salt
1 1/2 cups ground almonds or pecans
2 cups heavy cream
1/3 cup O'Darby Irish Cream Liqueur
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
Chocolate leaves (recipe below)

Grease bottom and sides of jelly roll pan (11 1/2 x 17 1/2 inches). Place sheet of waxed paper in pan overlapping several inches at each end. Press paper into sides of pan. Grease paper. Beat egg yolks lightly. Beat in sugar until mixture is thick and light. Beat in baking powder and salt. Stir in nuts. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold in yolk mixture. Spread batter in prepared pan. Bake at 350° F. for 18 minutes or until cake springs back when lightly touched in center. Immediately invert pan onto clean kitchen towel sprinkled with confectioners' sugar. Remove waxed paper carefully. Roll up cake in towel. Cook on wire rack.

Combine heavy cream, liqueur, and vanilla. Whip to stiff peaks. Unroll cake; remove towel. Spread half whipped cream mixture in cake. Reroll onto serving platter. Frost with remaining cream. Chill until ready to serve. Just before serving, decorate with chocolate leaves. Makes one cake.

CHOCOLATE LEAVES

Melt sweet chocolate over hot, not boiling water. Wash and dry small lemon leaves. Brush backs of leaves with melted chocolate. Allow to chill on baking sheet, chocolate side up. When ready to use, carefully peel leaf from chocolate. Place on cake.

O'DARBY FRUITED NOG

2 cups chilled, unsweetened pineapple juice
2/3 cup O'Darby Irish Cream Liqueur
1 tablespoon honey
2 eggs
1/2 cup light cream
Sweetened whipped cream
Pineapple slices

In blender container, combine juice, O'Darby liqueur, honey, eggs and cream. Whip until well blended. Pour into stemmed, chilled glasses. Garnish with whipped cream and pineapple slice. Makes 4 servings.

Mail-A-Book Service Begun By NW Library

Northwest regional library will begin a new free book lending by mail service for rural boxholders in Pennington, Red Lake and Roseau counties and will continue that service for residents of Kittson and Marshall counties.

The service is called "Mail-a-Book." Rural boxholders will be receiving a bright red catalog of paperback books which will list titles of books available for check out by mail. The service may be used by all persons residing in the households that receive the catalogs, and a library card is not required.

Individuals who do not receive catalogs in the mail but who would like to use the service may pick up a catalog at any Northwest regional library bookmobile, or branch or request one from the Northwest Regional Library, 101 East First, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

When using the service, individuals request books by mailing the order card attached to the catalog to the Northwest regional library, and the books requested are shipped back and forth by mail between the library and the person requesting the books. All costs of mailing books are paid by the library.

Service is designed to supplement services already provided through the Northwest regional library branches and bookmobile.

Area Sheep Producers Meet At Courthouse

Area sheep producers will conduct their first meeting of the season Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room, Thief River Falls.

A planning session will determine what topics are to be covered at future meetings. Howard Person, Pennington county extension agent, will give a short presentation on using limited forage and crop residues for winter feeding of the owe flock.

NEARLY 250 PEOPLE attended the public forum on the proposed $15 million school bond issue Wednesday evening at the Thief River Falls city auditorium. A number of the people chose to comment or ask questions at the session, sponsored by the legislative committee of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce. The bond election will be held Tuesday.

School Bond Election Tues. May Set New Record Vote

With interest running extremely high in the School District 564 bond election scheduled for Tuesday, a new record number of votes may be cast. At issue is $15 million in general obligation bonds for construction of a new high school and remodeling of elementary schools.

Record vote in the district is the 2,170 votes cast in the 1971 school board election. The record was nearly matched in 1978 when 2,150 voters went to the polls. This spring, when 11 candidates were seeking election to the board of education, there were 1,699 votes cast.

Question to be voted on Tuesday is as follows:

"Shall the school board of Independent School District No. 564, Minnesota, be authorized to issue general obligation bonds of the district in an amount not exceeding $15,000,000 to finance the acquisition and betterment of school facilities, including constructing, furnishing and equipping of a new senior high school in Thief River Falls?"

Voters in favor of the bond issue will mark their ballots with a "Yes" vote. Those opposed to the issue will vote "No".

Four polling places will be used by the school district for the election. Residents of the area south and east of the Red Lake river will vote at Franklin middle school. Those living west of the Red Lake river will vote at Lincoln high school. Voters in the area north of the Red Lake river and east of the Thief River will cast their ballots at the area vocational-technical institute. Voters in the former St. Hilaire school district will vote at St. Hilaire school.

Polls will be open at all polling places from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Absentee ballots for people unable to be present for voting in person Tuesday may obtain ballots at the superintendent's office until 5 p.m. today.

Anyone 18 years of age or older who is a citizen of the United States, a resident of the school district and who has resided in Minnesota for 20 days or longer is eligible to vote in the election.

Public forum on the bond election was held Wednesday evening at the city auditorium in Thief River Falls under sponsorship of the legislative affairs committee of the chamber of commerce. Nearly 250 people were in attendance at the forum with many of them speaking in favor or opposed to the issue or asking questions about it.

Comprising the panel to respond to questions were Ken Wiebolt, school board chairman; Gerard DeHaan, county assessor; Charles W. Rodekuhr, county auditor; Frank Hamerlinck, senior high school principal; and Ken Skold, architect. Chris Twomey, chairman of the legislative affairs committee, served as moderator.

A number of the questions and comments at the forum concerned potential for remodeling and adding to existing building rather than building a new high school. Architect Skold reviewed condition of buildings and his method of computing construction and remodeling costs. Remodeling and addition to the existing Lincoln building has been projected at $11,628,000.

Several people commented on condition of existing buildings and were critical of maintenance because buildings have deteriorated. It was noted that the district is restricted by law to the amount of money it can levy for maintenance purposes and that the district capital outlay fund now has a large deficit balance.

One proponent of the bond issue noted that tax increases for the building project should not be considered a net expenditure because those taxes can be used as a credit against income tax. Another suggested that the plan is affordable if the taxpaying public places its priorities on education.

Commenting on the suggested increase in cost of construction for future years, one speaker noted that if the interest rate and inflation rate remained about the same, "it really wouldn't cost anything to wait, would it?"

Most speakers admitted that existing facilities are inadequate and agreed that some sort of correction is necessary. One woman speaker seemed to strike the mood of the majority of the people attending when she asked, "Isn't there something we can do that doesn't cost 15 million dollars?"

Cheadles Enjoying Concert Tour Despite Difficulty

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

William and Louise Cheadle, exhausted from a grueling travel schedule but still flushed with the excitement of their piano performance, unwound in the Lincoln high school band room Tuesday following their opening production for the Thief River Falls concert association series.

Several concert-goers dropped in to thank them for their performance and tell the pianists how much they had enjoyed it. The compliments were received appreciatively and with characteristic modesty. The Cheadles are good and they know it, but they don't let their artistry stand in the way of being very personable people.

"People are very lucky to have the way of life they have here," they said about the midwestern United States. "Midwest people are friendly and relaxed and know how to enjoy themselves. People back East keep more to themselves. It's not that they don't want to be friendly, it's just that it's not safe to be friendly with someone you don't know."

The Cheadles duo piano tour began September 30 in Blue Earth and ends tonight at a town they didn't recall offhand. The 10-concert tour covered a 2,000 mile span with several jaunts of 400 to 500 miles included. It isn't the easiest way in the world to make a living.

"And it isn't the money," Louise Cheadles said. "I think most touring musicians will tell you that by the time they cover the expenses of their travel there is very little left of what they earn. But it is fun to get away for a change. We love to travel, to play, to perform. It's really a wonderful way to reach people with music, and we believe it is most important that music be heard."

They expressed the opinion that no matter the excellence of the composition, it has little value if it is not performed where many people can hear it.

Which of the two is the better pianist?

LOUISE AND WILLIAM CHEADLE, first performers in the Thief River Falls concert association series, smiled during an interview following their performance Tuesday night in the Lincoln high school auditorium. William compared the piano duo technique to an orchestra where every instrument is necessary, but Louise insisted that her husband is the better pianist.

William smiled. "We are a team," he said. "Each contributes to the total sound. It's like a symphony orchestra that needs every instrument to produce the sound which the music is meant to produce."

"But Bill's the better pianist," Louise insisted.

"In duo piano playing the effort is more than doubly difficult," William noted. "I suppose you could say it is three times as difficult as solo work because it involves Louise and me and us."

They said that duo piano playing was popular in the 1950's, faded for awhile and is now beginning a resurgence. It's a wonderful medium for teachers of piano to use, they said, and they should know, because both are teachers of piano at Westminster college.

William is originally from Michigan and Louise is a native of western Pennsylvania, hailing from the same town that produced baseball greats Stan Musial and Ken Griffey. "How about that?" Louise chuckled. "Stan the Man, Ken Griffey and Louise Cheadle."

The Cheadles' two children share a mutual disinterest in the piano, other than their parents' making a living with it. William Robert is a sports enthusiast and a senior at Rutgers university. Daughter Amy played flute in high school and is a sophomore at Douglas college.

"They say that parents can't teach their own children piano," Louise said. "We had a teacher come to the house to give Amy lessons."

"But parents can teach their children piano," William disagreed. "We just didn't do it right."

The Cheadles have built-in practice time with their teaching at the college and practice every morning Monday through Friday as well as many weekends. Most of their performing has been in the East, generally within a two-hour drive of the college. That includes a number of New York City concerts.

To Dedicate 1st County-Owned Park October 21

Pennington county board of commissioners will dedicate the first county-owned park on Tuesday, October 21 at 4 p.m. The park, to be named "Oakland Park Picnic Grounds", is located on a parcel of land approximately 10 acres in size adjacent to and just east of Oakland Park nursing home.

Fifty per cent of the funds for the $21,500 development were provided by federal LAWCON (Land and Water Conservation fund), 25 per cent by state park and recreation development fund and 25 per cent by Pennington county. The state and federal share were received as a grant through the state planning agency.

The grant application was prepared by county extension director Terry Courneya and submitted by the Pennington county board of commissioners. Construction supervision was under the direction of county engineer Arvid Olson. Most of the county contribution was in the form of labor and equipment provided by the county highway department.

County board chairman Glenn Tasa stated, "We are proud to announce the formal opening of our first county park. We feel that the picnic shelters, softball diamond, horseshoe pits, volleyball court and bicycle-pedestrian trail will be a welcome addition to the community park facilities."

The park facilities also include a hard surfaced parking area, river access and sanitary toilets. Grounds maintenance is provided by the Thief River Falls park department with any capital improvements or maintenance costs to be provided by Pennington county.

Representatives of the state planning agency, regional development commission, city park department, county board and city government and will be present for the dedication ceremony.

Roxanne Olberg Marries Craig Dunrud At Holt

Miss Roxanne Olberg of Holt and Craig Dunrud of Viking exchanged marriage vows on August 30 at 3:00 p.m., at an ecumenical double-ring ceremony at Nazareth Lutheran church in Holt.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Myron Olberg of Holt and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dunrud, former Viking residents who are now living at Lowell, Ind.

Officiating at the ceremony were Rev. Nancy Lund and Rev. Edward Nistler. Ann Hanson, a friend of the couple, was organist. She played the traditional wedding march as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Wendy Swenson sang "Evergreen," as the bridesmaids approached the altar, and "The Rose," during the ceremony Mark Halvorson sang "God, A Woman and A Man," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Bouquets of yellow and white daisies graced the altar and surrounded the white unity candle, flanked by yellow candles. An arrangement of gladioli complemented the piano. The pews reserved for the immediate families were marked with yellow bows.

The bride wore a gown of organza and Chantilly lace styled with a fitted bodice with a high lace collar, long, full sleeves, trimmed with lace, and a lace edged sheer yoke enhanced with English embroidery and pearls. Her bouffant skirt, topped with a crystal pleated, lace edged skirt, flowed into a chapel-length train. Complementing the neckline was a solid gold cross, an heirloom in the groom's family. A lace headpiece held her bouffant waist-length veil of bridal illusion. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, stephanotis and babies' breath.

Rachelle Foster of Chisholm, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Other attendants were Valerie Olberg, Holt, another sister of the bride, and Sharlott Olberg, Thief River Falls, a sister-in-law. They wore yellow spaghetti strapped gowns featuring a sheer overdress of yellow dotted Swiss accented with yellow satin ties at the waistline and around the wrists. They carried wicker fans topped by a solitary yellow rose surrounded by white daisies and babies' breath.

Best man was Jeff Anderson, Viking, a friend of the groom. Groomsmen were the groom's brothers: Steve Dunrud, Lowell, Ind., and Mike Dunrud of Thief River Falls. Serving as ushers were Jeff Olberg, Thief River Falls, a brother of the bride; Donnie Foster, Chisholm, a brother-in-law of the bride, and Joel Olson, Viking, a friend of the groom. The groom wore an all-white tuxedo and his attendants wore brown tuxedos with yellow ruffled shirts and yellow rose boutonnieres. Similar attire was worn by the fathers.

The mother of the bride wore a cream, flecked with brown, street-length dress with an accordion pleated skirt. Brown velvet piping and belt accented the dress. Her corsage was of rust roses, beige forget-me-nots and babies' breath. The mother of the groom wore a beige floral street-length dress topped by a tunic with cape sleeves. Her corsage was of cream roses, tipped in peach, and accented with peach forget-me-nots and babies' breath.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Roger Kilen, grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Berard Kasprick, grandparents of the groom; and Kathy Sundstedt, the bride's personal attendant.

Approximately 260 relatives and friends attended the reception that was catered in the church parlors by Mrs. Duane Olson. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Christofferson. Pam Yutrezenka, a friend of the bride, was at the guest book as Julie Landree, a cousin, and Lisa Johnson, a friend, served the punch.

At the coffee service were Jerry Gilland, aunt of the bride, and Karen Krantz, sister of the groom. The pillared, four-tiered wedding cake with a gold Christogram was decorated with cascading yellow roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom. The cake was cut and served by the godmothers: Sharon Kilen and Audrey Kasprick.

Waitresses were Jeanette Landree and Jenny Wegge, cousins of the bride, and Debbie and Cindy Janssen, cousins of the groom. In charge of the gifts were Debbie Voytilla, Lisa Sundstedt and Nicki Christofferson. Norma Dahle, Mary Swan and Jeanette Reierson served as kitchen helpers.

Following a wedding trip to Kenora, Canada, the couple is now at home in Viking at the Lilac Ridge trailer court, lot 19. The bride is employed at Northwestern hospital and the groom by Kagg Brothers Turkey farm. Both are graduates of Marshall County Central high school, Newfolden. Photo, Lund Photography, Roseau

At the party, those having birthdays received birthday cards and a monetary gift from the home as well as a birthday card from the Catholic Daughters.

Also of special interest during the month was the 9:30 a.m., kitchen shower held in the activities room. Songs were sung, games played, and lunch, featuring punch, doughnuts and coffee, was served. The shower concluded with everyone opening an item to be used in the residents' kitchenette.

Several residents, together with members of the staff, participated in activities away from the home. Included were a busload of residents who toured the Regional airport and a group who attended the Oakland Park Nursing home 25th anniversary celebration with Lester Brekke and Mrs. Robert Robarge providing rides. Five residents attended funeral services for George Paulson at the Big Woods Lutheran church at Oslo, and several residents, together with Lester Brekke, Gloria Cleven and Tammy Rude attended the Clara Overum funeral-services held at Our Savior's Lutheran church in this city.

Members of the Hannah circle of Trinity Lutheran church visited the home, presented a program and served sweet breads, as did the members of the Joy circle of Zion Lutheran church, Viking. The Viking group was accompanied by Rev. David Gabrielson, who played the guitar and sang for the residents.

Also speaking to the group were the dental hygienist from the Goodrich and Nelson office, who gave tips on care of the teeth; Mrs. Margaret Race, R.N., who gave information on health care; and Frank Armstrong, who showed slides of his trip to Alaska this past summer.

Several of the residents also attended the Scandinavian services held at the Pioneer Village church with Rev. and Mrs. J.A. Riveness and the radio singers in charge.

Val Knutson Is Homecoming Queen At LHS

Activities centering around coronation that day included a performance by the Prowlins, skits performed by each grade, and the introduction of boys and girls cross-country teams; girls volleyball team; girls tennis team, and the Prowler football team. Prowlers won the game that evening with the Fergus Falls Otters with a final score of 21 to 6.

Sophomores won first place for their skit ("Old Thief River," sung to the melody of "Old MacDonald."), freshmen placed second and juniors came in third place.

Calvin Lindberg, social studies teacher at the school, was selected "favorite teacher" for receiving the most apples from students during Apple Day at the school. Larry Engelman, a student at the school, however, received his prize for him, which included a special cream pie "surprise."

Pop was sold for 10 cents following coronation ceremonies at the school, donated by the Pepsi-Cola Bottling company, and 24 T-shirts were given away in a drawing.

Freshmen won first place for their float decorated to carry the 1980 queen and senior candidates Andrea Lia and Kim Koropatnicki, through downtown Thief River Falls following coronation. Sophomores took second place and junior and seniors tied for third.

Correction In Parvo Virus Story Issued

University of Minnesota news service release on canine parvo virus spreading incorrectly stated that Oxford laboratory in Worthington produces a vaccine that may infect dogs instead of protecting them against canine parvo virus.

Oxford laboratory produces a dead-cell type parvo vaccine, not a semi-live vaccine as reported in the release. With the Oxford laboratory's vaccine, there is no chance of a dog's becoming infected with the disease as a result of vaccination, the university news service reports.

Although the semi-live vaccine produced elsewhere and used extensively in Minnesota could infect dogs, no incidents of healthy dog's contracting parvo virus from the vaccine has been reported in Minnesota, the service added.

Piano Concert Termed Delight By Reviewer

by Paul Mortenson

Seldom is a season opener more of a delight than the one experienced by Thief River Falls Concert association members Tuesday, October 7, when dynamic and entertaining pianists Louise and William Cheadle breezed through a pleasing admixture of old and new offerings that left an audience sweltering in unseasonably warm weather calling for two encores.

The Cheadles, a husband and wife teaching team from Westminster Choir college in Princeton, N.J., opened the program with some rather business-like interpretations of Schubert's "Marche Militaire" and "Rondo Alla Turca" by Mozart. Changing gears in short order, the pair rendered one of William Cheadle's arrangements, "Jamaican Rumba," by Arthur Benjamin, "Pavanne," by Morton Gould, and the more traditional "Polonaise Militaire," by Frederick Chopin.

The highlight, though, of the first half was Camille Saint-Saens "Carnival of the Animals (grande Fantasie Zoologique)," with accompanying verses by humorist Ogden Nash. An unanticipated and pleasant surprise was the addition of Roger Vaughan, theatre instructor at Northland community college, who read and interpreted the tongue-in-cheek verses with a certain degree of panache, augmenting the Cheadles' interpretive pianistic skills in such varied elements as the sharpy marcato "Royal March of the Lion;" "Hens and Roosters," with Mr. Vaughan lending a hint of Groucho Marx to the rooster; the percussive "Wild Mares" followed by a ponderous "Elephants," an appropriately jumpy "Kangaroos;" "Aquarium," light and airy and reminiscent in places of a Tchaikowsky "Nutcracker Suite" theme; "Pianists," included in the menagerie by virtue of their simian nature, illustrated by a series of interminable finger drills; "Fossils," cheerfully repetitious; "The Swan," the most familiar, with a lyrical melody against a sparkling, light, treble arpeggio.

After the intermission, the Cheadles settled into some old favorites, Brahm's "Waltzes" from Opus 39, and his "Hungarian Dances," Numbers 18 and 15, in which the duo demonstrated just how well they play together, executing lyrical, rubato passages difficult to synchronize without ever a wipe of the brow.

Perhaps the most adventurous moments musically, in the program came when the performers executed a composition of William Cheadle's, "Eight Picture Postcards (1978-79)." Again, as in "Carnival of the Animals," each short section was devoted to elaboration on a specific theme: "Cathedrale," characterized by big, dissonant chords; "Snow Flurry," sporadic, driving and syncopated; "Space Walk," utilizing the avante garde technique of strumming the piano strings with the hand directly, creating an eerie backdrop for a rather atonal melodic line; "Mosquito," reminscent of Rimsky-Korsakov's "The Flight of the Bumble Bee," with a relieving, quashing demise of the little pest at the end when two hands are clapped together; "Desert at Dusk," with heavy reliance on melodic repetition of single notes against the lonely dissonant quality of the piece; "Times Square," with some harmonies resembling traffic noise pitted against some "Gershwin-esque" jazz; a quiescent "Scene at Evening;" and finally, "The Old Fiddler," with familiar themes woven together.

Polishing off the program was the athletic "Hungarian Rhapsody Number 2," by Franz Liszt and arranged by Cheadle, performed with the requisite dramatic bravura and exquisite workmanship, and underscoring what had been apparent early on, that the Cheadles not only are good musicians, but splendid team players as well.

When the audience requested encores, two more offerings from "Diet Duet," another original composition from Mr. Cheadle (a light work, pardon the pun) entitled "Raspberry Yogurt," and "Checking the Scale," appeased the audience. The Cheadles clearly demonstrated that music and concert-going do not have to be pretentious to be art; that indeed, music is, and can be, for everyone.

Jaycee Women Sponsor Yellow Ribbon Project

Thief River Falls Jaycee Women are joining with other chapters across the country to show concern for and support of the hostages held captive in Iran and their families by sponsoring a "Tie a Yellow Ribbon" project.

The yellow ribbon project was inspired by a song in which a man who has been in prison asks his girl friend at home to tie a yellow ribbon around an old oak tree to show that she still cares about him.

Everyone in the Thief River Falls community is urged to tie a yellow ribbon around a tree in their yards this week. Ribbon donated by Hanson Floral will be available in boxes placed at Dwight's Hartz supermarket and Northland Foods by Wednesday of this week.

"Let the world see support for the hostages and show that patriotism is alive in America today," stated Karen Lehrer, local Jaycee Women president. "Tie a yellow ribbon around your freedom tree and leave it there until the hostages are returned."

Payments For Low Yields Are Now Available

Chairman Harold Kalsnes of the Pennington county agricultural stabilization and conservation committee (ASCS) reminds all farmers of the low yield provision in the 1980 USDA disaster program.

"If a farmer harvests less than 60 per cent of the established yield of wheat, barley or corn for his farm, he may be entitled to a low yield payment from the ASCS office," Kalsnes stated. "The only eligibility requirement is that the producer must have certified his planted acreage at the county office prior to July 15, 1980," Kalsnes added.

Any farmer who feels he is eligible for this payment should call at the county office within 15 days after the harvest has been completed. "If the low yield grain is stored on the farm, the ASCS staff will measure it at no cost to the producer, and the loss will be computed," Kalsnes said. He also added that if the grain has been sold, the elevator scale tickets will be used as evidence of production.

It is very important that production from each farm be kept separate. If the grain from different farms or from different years is not kept separate, no measurement can be made and no loss can be determined, he added.

If any farmer has a question regarding low yield payments, he is invited to call Kathy at 681-1612 or to visit the county office on Dale street in Thief River Falls.

Cheadles Enjoy Concert Tour Thru Midwest

"You can never relax during a concert," they said, "especially on numbers that people know. And the only way to keep audiences coming to concerts is to play familiar music. People enjoy what is familiar and they should expect to enjoy themselves at a concert."

As for the Cheadles themselves, they like playing "Carnival of the Animals" about the best of any of their numbers. They were complimentary of Roger Vaughan's narration which was part of the concert here.

"We have done this a number of times with generally good results," William said. "Each narrator does it a little differently, but they all usually do it well and it has been a popular concert number."

This was the first midwest tour for the Cheadles who had never been in this part of the country before. They seemed sincere when they said, "We like it. Really, we'd love to come back again."

Propose Change In Sale Of State Timber

A committee comprised of two representatives of large Minnesota forest industries and two independent loggers has recommended some significant changes in the laws regulating the sale of state-owned timber.

The committee made its recommendations in a letter to commissioner of natural resources Joseph Alexander dated Sept. 2 and signed by committee chairman A. R. Hallgren of the University of Minnesota's forest research center at Cloquet.

Among the committee's recommendations are:

+An increase in the dollar limits placed on timber sales — raising the limit on "informal" or over-the-counter sales from the current $1,500 to $2,500, and on the larger auction sales from the present $7,500 to $50,000.

+Establishment of a new "intermediate sale" with a limit of $7,500 that would be sold either by oral auction or sealed bid, and a restriction that no more than 25 per cent of the tracts offered at a sale on the first offering can be purchased by any one person.

+Changes in the need for surety bonds so as to make it easier for small operators to fulfill the present legal requirements demanded to protect the state against nonpayment and other violations of the sale permit.

The committee's report explains that the rising value of timber, together with the decreasing value of the dollar due to inflation is constantly reducing the volume of timber that can be sold at a single sale under the present limits. This in turn raises the cost per cord to the state of administering the sale.

The committee also noted that the current dollar restrictions on sales frequently means that a single timber stand that should be managed and harvested as a unit must be divided up into two or more separate sales, increasing administrative costs and preventing employment of scientific forest management principals.

Another reason for increasing the legal limit on the dollar size of sales is that the average timber producer today is no longer the small, independent part-time logger that typified the industry immediately following World War II. Today, logging is highly mechanized and it is common for a one man operation to have $100,000 or more tied up in equipment, and a four or five man crew employing equipment worth more than one million dollars.

Mechanized equipment has increased production capability but also means the operator must have an adequate supply of stumpage in order to keep the equipment operating and to pay for it.

The small informal sale is no longer adequate to meet the needs of full-time mechanized loggers, said the committee, but it is believed the new intermediate sale, if adopted, would satisfy their requirements.

State forestry officials said, however, that there will always be a need for the small sales to answer the requirements of many smaller operators.

The present demand for a surety bond equal to the value of the timber purchased at auction sales makes it difficult for many qualified loggers to bid at such timber sales. Several agencies which handle surety bonds said they are reluctant to cover timber operators because of low financial returns on such business. They will, however, handle such bonds for customers who transact other more profitable business with them.

"As a rule," said the committee, "it is the bigger operators who can acquire surety bonds. As a result, the auction sale favors the larger operators."

Documentation Needed For Name Change

Starting Wednesday, October 15 Minnesota residents applying for a certificate of motor vehicle title or driver's license must provide some documentation for name change because of marriage, according to public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic.

Also, anyone applying for a new motor vehicle title must provide a driver's license or some other form of identification which he or she would be asked to provide when applying for a driver's license.

New procedure, said Marlene Swanson, director of the DPS division of driver and vehicle services, is being implemented to provide uniformity between driver license and motor vehicle records.

About four years ago the motor vehicle and driver's license divisions were combined into one division to better serve the public. New procedure will allow the division to eventually integrate motor vehicle and driver's license records.

New Campaign Begun Against Drunk Drivers

A fall campaign to crack down on drunk driving throughout the state has yielded some worthwhile results, according to Minnesota public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic.

State patrol instituted the saturation during the first weekend in September.

Working in teams, regular Patrol members are concentrating in areas where there is likely to be heavy weekend driving. The saturation is conducted Friday and Saturday nights.

According to Col. D. Roger Ledding, state patrol chief, the first three weekends of the project yielded a total of 138 arrests for driving-while-intoxicated. This effort is in addition to the usual drunk driving enforcement program of the Patrol.

On top of the DWI results, the project has uncovered a number of other violations including drug use, open bottle, driving-after-suspension of license and apprehension of persons wanted on open warrants. Troopers have issued 1,400 tickets in addition to the DWI arrests.

Project is a continuing one in cooperation with county and local law enforcement agencies.

Zapping The Zip

Thief River Falls, Minnesota 123456789.

How about Thief River Falls, Minnesota 078654352?

Something similar is now the latest suggestion by the U.S. postal service — a nine-digit zip code. It has taken us 17 years to get accustomed to the five-digit number, and that is only because the numerical sequence of 567 is easy to remember and the added 01 designates Thief River Falls as a sectional center.

Remembering numbers isn't a strong point with us. Dialing a phone number when out of town means checking the book twice in mid-dial — once for the three-digit prefix and once for the four-digit number. Calling long distance when a three-digit area code precedes the prefix which precedes the four-digit number requires writing it down and following along with a finger.

Our driver's license number has eight fives in it . . . eight fives out of 12 numbers neatly arranged in three-digit multiples preceded by an L and separated by hyphens. Don't ask what the other four numbers are — and next week don't ask how many fives there are in our driver's license number.

Don't blame our problem on mental deterioration due to advancing age. We couldn't remember the number back there when it was first assigned to us — and that gives rise to a question about mental condition initially. But we are not the only one with a dislike for suggestions of a change in the zip code. Sen. Dave Durenberger doesn't like it either, and that's what he's telling senators on a Senate subcommittee studying the proposal.

According to Durenberger, the new code wouldn't make the mail service any faster, nor would it reduce the cost. The postal service has said it would not speed delivery or make it cheaper..

What it would do is make it necessary for the postal service to purchase a billion dollars worth of scanning equipment to read all those numbers.

In fact, the postal service doesn't expect the public to remember the nine-digit numbers. The 97 per cent of all letters that now contain zip codes could be expected to substantially decrease.

"I am pleased that the postal service is constantly looking for ways to operate more efficiently," Sen. Durenberger says, "but efficiency is meaningless unless the public can benefit from it. Before millions of dollars are invested in an idea that affects us all, let's take a closer look at the proposal."

Well said, Dave. If you can succeed in zapping that zip, you get another plus mark on your report card.

I and R Explained

Following editorial is from the Bloomington Sun:

Such opposition as does exist to Amendment 4, Initiative and Referendum, which will be voted on Nov. 4, centers around the initiative process. There is a concern that it will be too easy for irresponsible people to put issues on the ballot. This concern can be dissipated by knowing exactly how initiative will work in Minnesota when the amendment is adopted.

It will take a group of 50 people to organize the initiative action. An application fee of $200 will be paid and then it will be necessary to circulate petitions and get signatures from 5 per cent of the voters in each congressional district. Based on 1976 votes, a statewide total of 95,000 signatures will be required which is a considerable "election" in itself. But that is only the beginning.

The petitions must be completed in the odd numbered year so the legislature could consider the proposal in its even numbered year session. If the legislature passes a bill on the same subject, the group organizing the initiative could withdraw its proposal if satisfied with the legislative action. If there is not acceptance of the legislative action, both proposals would be on the ballot in the fall of that even numbered year and the one receiving the greater vote, and a majority, would become law.

To call this procedure "direct initiative" is a misnomer. At least it is "modified direct initiative" and in practical terms one would expect that if the legislature acted, there would be negotiation to assure that the legislative proposal would be satisfactory to the initiative group. If a proposal survived the entire procedure and went on the ballot and was considered to be a "kooky" idea by some, then it would be up to the voters to decide if they wanted it to be law.

In supporting initiative and referendum, Gov. Al Quie has repeatedly expressed his confidence in the people's judgment and this tends to be supported by the results in the 20 states with initiative and referendum.

California passed Proposition 13 when the state had huge surpluses and inordinately high property taxes, but when the surpluses were gone and a proposal to reduce income tax was on the ballot, it was defeated. Likewise, despite the emotional feelings against oil companies, a proposal to place a surtax on energy was defeated.

A major benefit of initiative and referendum would be psychological. People would know that if the legislature fails to act on an important matter, or passes bills that do not reflect the people's desire, there is something they could do. In the 20 states with initiative and referendum, voter participation is significantly higher than in the states without it. Legislators would be aware of the "people's alternative" and be more responsive and responsible. It is no wonder polls show that 60 to 80 per cent of the voters want initiative and referendum and in many cases those with doubts about it are not fully informed on the provisions.

Power Line Protest Got Out Of Hand

Following editorial is from the St. Paul Pioneer Press:

"GASP (General Assembly to Stop the Powerline) does not officially take down (power line) towers," Mrs. Alice Tripp, a spokesperson for the group, told a Pioneer Press reporter the other day.

Nonetheless, groups opposed to the controversial power line, which stretches through West Central Minnesota, are "shocked and angry" because the two cooperatives that built the line are transferring ownership to the Rural Electrification Administration (REA). The transfer affects nothing except jurisdiction: while the line is under REA ownership, vandals damaging it will be subject to both the FBI and federal court system.

As for the FBI, "They don't scare us," Mrs. Tripp added. That's an interesting sentence, especially when coupled with her statement about not officially taking down towers.

In any case, vandals have toppled 14 towers, shot out thousands of insulators, and ripped up power lines with rifle fire since the line was completed in August 1978. Repairs and down time have cost the owners, United Power Association and Cooperative Power Association, millions of dollars. In turn, these increased costs have been passed on to customers, the majority of whom live in rural Minnesota.

At some point, the protest movement began slipping out of the hands of affected farmers and landowners such as Mrs. Tripp and into the hands of "urban activists" left over from the golden years of Vietnam War protests. It's surprising that farmers, traditionally proud and protective of their independence, have permitted this element to orchestrate, in the guise of helping farmers, a violent protest against "the system" that will do nothing but damage farmers' credibility.

One can only hope that the federal takeover awakens farmers to the seriousness of the crimes being committed in the name of protest and they invite the urban cowboys to git.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"I should have married Charles," the angry wife complained. "You'll never amount to anything and now he's a wealthy mortician."

"Big deal," retorted the husband. "He was probably only interested in your body."

Talk about an economic downturn. One businessman complained that even the customers who never pay their bills have quit buying.

Interesting Opinions:

"No great thing is created suddenly, any more than a bunch of grapes or a fig. If you tell me that you desire a fig, I answer you that there must be time. Let it first bloom, then brear fruit, then ripen."

—Epicetus

"When there is much desire to learn, there of necessity will be much arguing, much writing, many opinions; for opinion in good man (and women) is but knowledge in the making."

—John Milton

Hibbing Is Site Of Public Comment Meet

Minnesota Energy agency, St. Paul, has chosen Hibbing as the only site in northern Minnesota to conduct one of its four public comment meetings designed to solicit public reaction to its biennial report.

Hibbing meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m., Thursday (October 23) in the Hibbing Community College (HCC) library auditorium. Meeting is co-sponsored by HCC, and will be cablecast live over HCCV Cable Channel 2, and taped for replay. Public is urged to attend.

The report, when completed, will be used by the state legislature as a base for reaching major state energy decisions, according to Evans Grigsby, Minnesota Energy Agency public information officer.

Public's reaction to the report will alter it. Choices between energy policies that could either bring prosperity or unemployment will be discussed. What people see, hear, say and do will have an impact on the executive summary, Grigsby said.

Following panel discussion, the meeting will be open for audience participation, phone-in questions and rebuttals.

Panel members include Duane Kuss, member of the Arrowhead Regional Energy Awareness Committee, Virginia; Warren Hudelson, public relations representative, Minnesota Power and Light Company, Duluth; Mark Berg, owner of Wood Heat Company, Bovey; Lyman Patee, general manager of Northern Electric Cooperative Association, Virginia; and Donald Penn, HCC physics instructor, Hibbing.

The report, a detailed description of past, current and future energy usage, includes measures suggested for conservation, alternate energy resources, and potential energy strategies.

It covers supply and demand of traditional fuels; and potential targets for alternate development, as well as the impact of alternatives.

Alternate sources of energy are explored; wind, solar, hydro, biomass (including wood and peat), and energy storage.

Following the four public comment meetings, the final 1980 Energy Policy and Conservation Report will contain the recommended Minnesota Energy Goals and Strategies for consideration by the governor and state legislature.

Copies of the report may be seen at the Chisholm Public Library, and the libraries at Hibbing Community College and Mesabi Community College, Virginia.

Public comment meetings will also be conducted at Hennepin County Government Center Auditorium, Minneapolis, at 7 p.m. October 22; Moorhead city hall, Moorhead, at 7 p.m., October 29; and the community center, Blooming Prairie, at 7 p.m. November 7.

Citizens are invited to read the report, and comment on it, either at the meetings or in writing. Written comments should go to Mark Spurr, Minnesota Energy Agency, 980 American Center Building, 150 East Kellogg Boulevard, St. Paul, MN 55101.

Otter Tail's Rate Hearing At RL Falls

Customers of Otter Tail Power company (OTP) will have opportunity to express views regarding their electric rates and service during a series of public hearings scheduled in four localities in the OTP service area during October.

Hearings are being conducted in conjunction with the company's application to the Minnesota public utilities commission for a 29.1 per cent increase in rates to generate $13 million in additional annual revenues.

Richard L. Auld, director of the department of public service which represents public interests in utility rate matters for the state of Minnesota, urges OTP customers to attend the hearings and express their views for the record and to hear the views of others.

During the public hearings, individuals speaking for themselves or representing an organization, may present statements for the case record on adequacy of service, level of rates, rate design or other relevant matters. Representatives of Otter Tail Power Company will also be present to respond to questions from customers regarding the proposed rates or service matters.

Area public hearing on the Otter Tail Power rate proposal will be at Red Lake Falls: October 20, at 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., Lower Level, city hall.

Following the public hearings, the company and intervening parties will present testimony during evidentiary hearings to be conducted November 3 through 7 at the U.S. Post Office and Court House, 118 South Mill Street in Fergus Falls. Evidentiary proceedings start at 9:30 a.m.

As part of its statutory responsibility, the Department of Public Service has undertaken an investigation of the books and records of Otter Tail Power Company and has recommended that the rate increase to Otter Tail Power Company and has recommended that the rate increase to Otter Tail Power be denied. Department will present testimony in support of its position during evidentiary proceedings. Come and share your concerns and problems, solutions, and ideas with others concerned about their children's fighting. What is the real reason behind every child's fight? What is your child's need and how can you respond to that need effectively? What useful purposes does some bickering accomplish? What is "fair"? What can parents do to diminish fighting in a family?

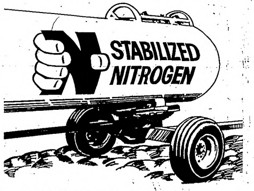
The fall-applied nitrogen that won't leave the soil when things are hot.



A lot of farmers who would like to apply all their nitrogen in the fall, don't. And for one good reason. Nitrogen losses.
Which can run up to 50% in a warm, wet season when conditions are optimal for the bacteria that convert regular nitrogen into the forms easily lost.
But stabilized nitrogen resists those bacteria. Resists them so well, you can apply all your nitrogen in the fall and be sure it'll still be around to nourish your crop next spring.
And when harvest time arrives, you'll have another nice bonus.
Because farmers using stabilized nitrogen average bigger yields.
You see, stabilized nitrogen stays in the soil longer so crops get more nourishment. Therefore, you get more crops.
Come in and see us. We'll show you how stabilized nitrogen lets you apply all your nitrogen in the fall.

Search Continues For Nuclear Waste Sites

by Jeanne Hanson
"U" M News Service

Federal government's scrutiny of parts of northern Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan as possible granite-based nuclear waste storage sites does not mean the sites will necessarily be chosen, according to two University of Minnesota researchers who feel other sites are just as likely.

"I think (Wisconsin Gov. Lee) Dreyfus heard about the Lake Superior area nuclear storage possibilities second hand and overreacted," said William Seyfried, assistant professor of geology. Seyfried said other areas of basalt rock, sea-floor sediments, salt layers and volcanic sediment are also being investigated.

When Dreyfus heard that the Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan areas were recommended for study in an energy department report, he sent a letter to Colin Heath, acting director of the energy department's office of waste isolation, criticizing the federal government for withholding information from state officials.

"No one's rushing the decision," said Seyfried, who is studying another site for the energy department as part of the same project. The "Waste Isolation Project" is collecting data on possible sites before reaching conclusions, and is showing "very impressive environmental concern," he said.

Adequate disposal sites must meet several criteria, Seyfried said. They must be relatively impermeable, with no fault lines or other evidence of seismic activity; they must be near little or no moving water, and they must be able to tolerate the heat emitted by decaying radioactive material.

Energy department is tudying the Pre-Cambrian Shield area in Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Michigan, where the grantie has never been fractured and is quite impermeable. "In fact, Canada's nuclear waste storage plans now favor their section of the Shield," Seyfried said.

Criteria may also be met by the Columbia River basalt, a sheet of rock covering much of Utah, Washington, and Oregon. Rockwell-Hanford Labs, a private company in the state of Washington, is avtively lobbying for that area as a nuclear waste storage site.

Other likely areas are sites far from population centers, including the remote sea-floor area now under study by Seyfried. The site is in the north central Pacific, about 1,000 miles north-northeast of Hawaii.

Under 5,000 meters of water and 30 meters of ocean sediment, the site has been "incredibly quiescent" for 70 million years, he said. Core samples indicate that the 70 meters of sediment lying over hard oceanic crust have not been disturbed in that time by any seismic activity or by ocean currents. No edible fish or mineable minerals lie in the red clay-like much, Seyfried said.

In his analysis of the site, Seyfried has discovered that even if a meteorite or damaged submarine were to pentrate the precise storage area and carck a canister of nuclear materials, the sediment would absorb most of the radioactivity.

Methods of processing the wastes before they are bureid are also being researched now, Seyfried said. Those most favored so far are heating the wastes with a silicate mixture and then freezing them into a glass-like substance which would be enclosed in a titanium canister; converting the wastes into a synthetic rock-like titanite; or storing them in ceramic casings.

Stored wastes will likely be dug up at some point in the future when "we'll have learned how to use the materials," said Barry Brady, professor of civil and mineral engineering at the University of Minnesota.

Brady is studing other storage possibilities such as layering the wastes in underground salt formations in the Southwest and elsewhere, or burying them in the basalt of the far Northwest. Evidence shows that underground storage can be quite secure, Brady said, adding that all of the unmined radioactive uranium is still safely in place. He stressed that engineers are confident of an eventual solution to the nuclear waste problem.

"Rational discussion is difficult," he said. "People can create terrible images. Nuclear wastes are actually easier to handle than is acid rain."

Voter Decision To Influence Highway Work

Future funding of Minnesota's highways will be influenced by voters at this fall's election when they make their choice of amendment 3 according to Bob Wolfe, MnDOT district engineer, in Bemidji. Wolfe said that voters will be decising whether or not bonds may be used as part of the funding for road construction.

The mechanics of the bill are fairly simple. Article XIV of the state constitution currently permits the sale of highway bonds for the purpose of constructing, improving and maintaining state highways. That article also places a maximum interest of 5 per cent on these bonds and places a limit of $150 million on the total amount of bonds sold. Amendment number 3 addresses only these two restrictions. A yes vote would remove the two restrictions and once again allow bond sales. A no vote would leave the existing restrictions and would prevent the borrowing of money for highway projects under Article XIV.

The immediate effect of the passage of the amendment would be to allow the sale of $19 million in bridge replacement bonds. These were approved by the Legislature in 1977 but have remained unsold due to the five per cent interest restriction. Just the sale of these bonds would potentially generate up to $95 million statewide through the use of matching federal bridge replacement funds.

According to Wolfe, passage of the amendment would also allow the legislature and the governor to consider additional bonding for whatever purpose they choose. An appropriate choice would be to extend the program to replace obsolete and deficient bridges. In District 2, 40 bridges have been identified as needing replacement at a total cost of $34 million.

"During the 1981 legislative session, the legislature will consider many variations of funding for highways. It is highly desirable that Amendment 3 be approved so that bonding can be one of the elements available to them. A yes vote would provide that option," said Wolfe.

Bridges in the area which have been identified as needing replacement and whose future will be affected by the outcome of this referendum include the following:

+ Bridge No. 4162 on Trunk Highway 171 over the Red River of the North at St. Vincent;

+ Bridge No. 6651 on Trunk Highway 175 over the Middle Branch of Two Rivers in Hallock;

+ Bridge No. 4812 on Trunk Highway 75 over the Tamarac River south of Stephen;

+ Bridge No. 5179 on Trunk Highway 75 over the Middle River North of Argyle;

+ Bridge No. 6781 on Trunk Highway 89 over the Roseau River at Rose; and

+ Bridge No. 5279 on Trunk Highway 220 over Grand Marais Creek north of East Grand Forks.

All of these bridges have been considered for replacement and are at various stages in the planning process. Current funding shortage threatens all of these projects, Wolfe said.

Others on the opening program are Gov. Al Quie, Minneapolis Mayor Don Fraser and MEA president Donald C. Hill.

Opening session will be followed by the sixth annual MEA human relations awards luncheon in the Holiday Inn Downtown, Minneapolis, during which three awards will be presented.

Main speaker will be Andrew Young, former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations.

MEA human relations awards will be presented to Carol Hunter Johnson, elementary school librarian, Becker (who will receive the teacher award); Maria Moran, a member of St. Paul's Chicano community (who will receive the community award); and Kathy Zeinstra, student in the supermarket merchandising program in the Pipestone area vocational technical institute (who will receive the student award).

The luncheon also is open to the public.

Thursday afternoon and Friday will be filled with hundreds of sessions in the Minneapolis auditorium and in commercial facilities and schools throughout the Twin Cities metropolitan area. These sessions — most of which will be open the public — will provide pertinent information on educational issues and techniques, ranging from music and mathematics to males as victims in sexism.

Also featured at the convention will be numerous special performances in the auditorium exhibit hall, including musical and theatrical presentations, designed to please persons of all ages.

Convention-goers also will be able to visit one of the nation's largest education exhibits with more than 300 exhibitors in the auditorium exhibit hall.

For the first time in MEA's 119-year history, the MEA representative assembly — the legislative body of the teacher union — will be held in conjunction with the convention.

Opening session of the 58th MEA representative assembly at 7 p.m. October 16 in the Minneapolis auditorium arena will be addressed by NEA president Willard McGuire, former North St. Paul high school teacher.

The assembly will run through October 18.

U of M Regent Left Alone At Student Meet

David Lebedoff, a University of Minnesota regent, is accustomed to poor attendance at his monthly meetings with students. But his first session of the 1980-81 school year left him feeling like the Maytag repairman.

Despite posters at various campus locations advertising the session, Lebedoff spent a lonely two hours Monday waiting for concerned students, none of whom showed up. "If nothing else, solitude is good for the soul;" he said as he left.

"I must say that today it's 70 degrees and people would be crazy to come in and talk to a regent," he said. "(But) I find it extremely interesting that at the first meeting after the announcement of the proposed 10 per cent tuition surcharge there's no one here to argue against it."

Lebedoff was referring to a proposal to help the university recoup losses caused by Gov. Al Quie's order cutting the institution's budget by $14.1 million.

Lebedoff said he would continue to conduct meetings the first Monday of every month. "The important thing is that the students know that I'm here," he said.

A northern regional conference is also being conducted at the Eveleth Holiday Inn.

The MFT is also supporting a number of other groups which are conducting workshops and seminars throughout the state during the two-day conference period.

Media representatives are invited to attend any or all of the union sponsored events.

Kays In Cast Of Moorhead SU Musical

Joey Patton, a professional singer-actor from New York City, will portray the leading role in the Moorhead state university theatre's forthcoming production of the musical comedy classic, "Where's Charley?"

A large cast of singers and dancers complement the major performers as university students and faculty who become involved in Charley's attempt to keep his disguise a secret. Included in this cast is Chris Kays, Thief River Falls.

Patton will be seen in the title role of an impish university student who masquerades as his own aunt in order to provide a chaperone for two lovely young women who come to visit him and his rommate. The zany musical will be staged for four performances October 29, 30, November 1 and 2. First three performances are evening performances beginning at 8:15 p.m. while the final performance (November 2) is a Sunday matinee beginning at 2:15 p.m. There is no performance October 31. Two of the five Northwest Athletic Conference members were eliminated from the 1980 NWAC football race Friday when Bemidji ousted East Grand Forks 27-14 and Thief River Falls sidelined Fergus Falls 21-6. Crookston, meanwhile, remained unbeaten with a 30-0 nonconference shutout of St. Peter.

A Northwest Athletic Conference title confrontation is set for Friday night when Crookston, 7-0 overall and 2-0 in the NWAC, travels to Bemidji for a 7:30 p.m. game with the Lumberjacks, who are 5-2 overall and 2-1 in the NWAC. The winner will be assured of at least a title tie.

Thief River Falls can remain in the pennant race Friday with a win over East Grand Forks. The Prowlers and Green Wave will meet at 7:30 that night in the final Thief River Falls home game of the 1980 season.

While a three-way Northwest Athletic Conference title tie is a possibility, the contending Pirates, Lumberjacks and Prowlers are really after bigger and better things — a post-season berth in the 1980 Minnesota State High School League Class A state football playoffs. The NWAC winner will get that spot in a qualifying game against the Iron Range Seaway Conference winner.

There are several possibilities within the NWAC for that sought-after playoff berth:

+ Bemidji, despite its earlier 20-13 upset loss at the hands of Fergus Falls, can gain at least a title tie and guarantee itself a playoff berth by beating Crookston Friday. The Lumberjacks would be eliminated from both possibilities with a loss to the Pirates. Bemidji ends the 1980 season the following week at home against Hermantown.

+ Crookston, the defending champion, can win the NWAC title outright by beating Bemidji Friday, then taking care of Thief River Falls in the 1980 regular season finale the following week. The Pirates could still come back from a loss to the Lumberjacks to gain a title tie with a victory over the Prowlers, but that would be little consolation to the Crookston followers who watched their Pirates reach the Class A state playoff semifinals a year ago with a predominantely junior team.

+ Thief River Falls needs help to gain a title tie and a playoff berth. The Prowlers, who were stung by Bemidji 26-12 two weeks ago, are 1-1 in the NWAC, 5-2 overall. They will have to combine wins over East Grand Forks and Crookston with a Bemidji loss to Crookston for a share of the conference crown with the Pirates. And if that happens, Thief River Falls would move on to the playoffs based upon its head-to-head meeting with the Pirates. Thief River Falls wins over East Grand Forks and Crookston, but a Bemidji victory over Crookston, would gain the Prowlers a title tie, but would enable the Lumberjacks to advance to the playoffs based on the same head-to-head formula. A Thief River Falls loss to either East Grand Forks or Crookston would eliminate the Prowlers from either possibility.

Whatever the outcome over the next two weeks, coach John Schmitz and his Thief River Falls ball club should be complimented on a fine season. Three weeks ago the Prowlers beat Moorhead for the first time since 1940 and Friday night they defeated Fergus Falls for the first time since 1974. That was a disappointing loss to Bemidji sandwiched between those two wins, but by snapping a five-game losing streak at the hands of the Otters the Prowlers have assured themselves of their first winning season since 1974.

In fact, 1980 will be only the second time in eight years Thief River Falls will finish above .500.

Thief River Falls' so-called glory years on the gridiron lasted from 1967 to 1972 when the Prowlers won 44 of 53 games, a .830 winning percentage. They were 6-2 in 1967; 7-2 in 1968; 6-3 in 1969; 8-1 in 1970; 9-0 in 1971; and 8-1 in 1972. The Prowlers won or shared the Northwest Athletic Conference title every year from 1968 to 1972.

But then the well ran dry. Over the next seven years Thief River Falls mustered just 24 wins in 62 starts, a .387 winning percentage. The Prowlers fell to 4-5 in 1973; 5-4 in 1974; 3-5 in 1975; 4-5 in 1976; 1-8 in 1977; 4-5 in 1978 and 3-6 in 1979.

Miscellaneous

+Del Mollberg, activities director for the Detroit Lakes public schools, has asked for better behavior by students at athletic contests after several incidents during the Detroit Lakes-Park Rapids football game September 26. "For several years the Minnesota State High School League has sponsored a sportsmanship program for schools in Minnesota," Mollberg said. "The Detroit Lakes public schools have made a commitment to this program. School-sponsored activities are for your entertainment — to be watched and enjoyed. For many of our younger students, school events are places to socialize and engage in other physical activities. Unfortunately, some students are so busy socializing that they never watch the event and are soon involved in erratic behavior."

Prowlers Beat Weather, Otters To Retain NWAC Title Hopes

A gusty bone-chilling wind mixed with rain made playing conditions miserable for both teams during Friday's Thief River Falls vs. Fergus Falls Northwest Athletic Conference high school football game, but a 21-6 homecoming victory warmed the spirits of the title-contending Prowlers, while the Otters shivered in the NWAC basement.

Two Thief River Falls touchdowns in the final 3:09 of the fourth quarter snapped a 6-6 stalemate and kept the Prowlers' conference championship hopes alive. Thief River Falls, 5-2 overall and 1-1 in the NWAC, will host East Grand Forks Friday before ending the 1980 season at Crookston the following week. Fergus Falls returned home with a 2-5 record, 1-2 in the NWAC.

"Lousy weather. It was pretty obvious the wind had a lot to do with it; you couldn't punt," remarked Fergus Falls coach Don Stueve.

He was right; you couldn't punt — not into the wind, anyway. And that was reflected in a remarkable set of statistics that showed both teams trying to convert seven fourth downs into first downs during the course of the game. Five of the seven Thief River Falls fourth down attempts would have been punts under normal conditions, and four of the Fergus Falls fourth down plays would have been punts — like the fourth-and-one at their own 13-yard line with 6:33 remaining in a 6-6 ball game.

But the wind forced Steuve into deciding to send Tony Dosen straight ahead on a dive play for the first down. He didn't get a thing, and the Prowlers covered those 13 yards to the Fergus Falls end zone in eight plays — overcoming a 15-yard holding penalty in the process.

Halfback Dan Odegaard made up 12 of those penalty yards with a pitch around the left side that carried to the Fergus Falls eight-yard line. Quarterback Scott Wiebolt went to the short side on the option and reached the four. Fullback Jim Dillion put it inside the one, but was stopped for no gain the next try before Wiebolt's strong second effort on a quarterback sneak put him in the end zone with the game-winner. Odegaard reached the left corner of the end zone for the two-point conversion and a 14-6 Thief River Falls lead with just 3:09 left in the game.

Four plays later there was Fergus Falls trying to convert a desperation fourth-and-15 from its own 12-yard line. Quarterback Dan Snustad had his arm hit as he tried to pass and the ball fell incomplete, sealing the decision.

Adding frosting to the cake, Thief River Falls fullback Scott Kezar, the game's leading rusher with 83 yards on a busy 24-carry night, burst off left tackle for a 12-yard touchdown run on the Prowlers' first snap. Jeff Spencer's conversion kick completed with scoring with 55 seconds remaining.

"That 6-6 score was probably pretty close to how we match up against each other," admitted Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz. "Our defense played well," he said in quickly analyzing the game en route to shelter after the game.

Fergus Falls netted just 85 yards worth of offense against the strong Thief River Falls defense and Mother Nature. The Prowlers hit 218-yards.

Thief River Falls, after reaching the Fergus Falls two-yard line and not scoring minutes earlier, put the first points on the board in the second quarter when Wiebolt used the quarterback sneak to score from the two with 2:49 left in the first half. The touchdown came just three plays after the Otters messed up a Statute of Liberty play that lost them 19 yards on a fourth-and-two into the wind from their 25.

Fergus Falls' game-tying touchdown drive in the second half — some of it into the wind — was the best bit of offense of the night for either team. Holding Thief River Falls on downs at midfield, the Otters marched 56 yards in 15 plays — taking up nearly six minutes of the third and fourth quarters. Erick Erlandson, listed as a guard in the program but used as one of the Otters' three wishbone runningbacks, scored on a straight-ahead fourth down dive from the one-yard line with 10:41 remaining. Sophomore Tom Lundeen, not even listed on the program, was stopped short of the goal line on the conversion try by Thief River Falls linebacker Mark Harder, who came up to make the tackle on the option.

That set the stage for the 15-point Thief River Falls finish that actually began when punter Dean Dokkin benefited from a wind-aided roll that sent his kick 51 yards to the Fergus Falls five-yard line.

Four plays later the Otters were trying desperately to convert that fourth-and-one from their own 13.

OPERATING OUT OF the shotgun formation backfired for the Northland community college football team Saturday as the ball sailed over the head of freshman quarterback Jeff Steuck. The play lost eight yards and sent the Northmen back to their own eight-yard line in the first quarter of the MJCAA game against unbeaten Northern Division leader Fergus Falls. The Spartans shut out the Northmen 28-0, spoiling Northland's 1980 homecoming celebration.

'80 NWAC Cross Country Meet Scheduled Tuesday

Bemidji boys and East Grand Forks girls are the pre-meet favorites, but Thief River Falls runners are expected to challenge the Lumberjacks and Green Wave for team honors Tuesday in the 1980 Northwest Athletic Conference cross country meet, scheduled to be held at East Grand Forks beginning at 4 p.m.

"It's going to be between the Bemidji and Thief River Falls boys and between the East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls girls," predicted Lynn Dyer, coach of the Prowlers. "They're going to have to run the best race of their lives, but I think they can win," he said of his entries.

Bemidji boys will be shooting for their fourth straight NWAC title. This is the first year the girls will be featured in the meet.

In addition to team domination in recent years, the Lumberjacks have also come up with three straight individual winners, including back-to-back titles by Ron Wolfe in 1978 and 1979. Wolfe has since graduated, but Brian Kraft, who ran second to Wolfe the past two years after a fourth place finish as a sophomore in 1977 behind 1-2 teammates Tom Lortie and Wolfe, is back this fall and is expected to be the runaway winner Tuesday.

And the Lumberjacks' Stacy Slapnicher is expected to be the front-runner in the girls race.

Thief River Falls' top runners are juniors Bruce Johnson and Susie Hanna. Johnson placed third behind Wolfe and Kraft a year ago, and may move up a notch to second tomorrow. Hanna is looking for a third place finish behind Slapnicher and Erin Driscoll of East Grand Forks.

But it's a strong team finish that mostly concerns Dyer. "We have to have our first three runners in the top ten, and our number four and five runners have to be in the top 16 if we're going to be close," he predicted, using the same formula for both the boys and girls races. "If we place like that I think we can win it."

Line-up for the Thief River Falls boys Tuesday will include juniors Matt Grabanski, Terry Johnson and Bruce Johnson; sophomores Steve Kruta, Lon Aune and Chuck Lowell; and freshman Kevin Kezar.

Thief River Falls girls running in the NWAC meet will be senior Karen Kloety; juniors Margaret White, Mary Beth Dondelinger, Kristi Forsberg and Hanna; freshman Sherry Sabo; and eighth graders Trisha Armstrong, Jina Mules, Jackie Thune and Delaine Johnson.

In head-to-head competition this fall, Thief River Falls and Bemidji boys saw each other twice in multiple team events, with the Lumberjacks bettering the Prowlers at Grand Forks back on Sept. 11, but the Prowlers finishing ahead of the rival Bemidji runners at Bagley Sept. 23. Thief River Falls girls finished ahead of East Grand Forks in two of three meetings this fall.

Pie, Ice Cream Social Is Set Tonight, 6:30

Annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters club pie and ice cream social will be held tonight (Monday) beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the Lincoln high school cafeteria.

Pie, ice cream and beverage will be offered by the Sports Boosters for 50 cents, followed by a short program featuring fall sports teams and coaches from Lincoln and Northland community college and game films of the Thief River Falls vs. Fergus Falls Northwest Athletic Conference high school football game played Friday.

THIEF RIVER FALLS teammates Marlys Huot (right) and Sheryl Stimac celebrated the final point Saturday night that clinched the Prowlers' 18-7, 18-11 championship match victory over Crookston in the third annual Thief River Falls Northern Lights invitational high school volleyball tournament. The Prowlers, who earlier in the day defeated Greenbush and Roseau, won the tournament for the third straight year.

Brainerd Wins Swim Crown

Bloomington Lincoln won seven of the 11 events, but it was the host Warriors who emerged as the team champion Saturday in the Brainerd high school invitational girls swimming meet.

Brainerd's depth produced 274 points, followed by Bloomington Lincoln with 255, Thief River Falls 245, Stillwater 232 and Minneapolis Southwest 163.

Brainerd sophomore Anne Monda and Bloomington Lincoln junior Lori Cornell were the meet's only double event winners. Monda won the 50-yard freestyle in 26:21 and took the 100-yard freestyle in 58.59. Cornell captured the 200-yard freestyle in 2:05.88 and swam the 500-yard freestyle in 5:36.43, while also swimming the anchor leg on the Bears' 400-yard freestyle relay team that was a winner in 4:00.69.

Only event not won by a Brainerd or Bloomington Lincoln competitor was the diving competition where Thief River Falls senior Brenda Lund remained unbeaten for the year with a first place 273.4-point performance.

Northmen Shut Out By Division Leaders 28-0

A match-up featuring a strong Fergus Falls defense against a weak Northland offense had predictable results Saturday as the Spartans posted a chilly 28-0 community college football win over the Northmen on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

Offensively the Spartans couldn't brag, either, but Fergus Falls' defense limited Northland to a mere 72 yards worth of offense, came up with four fumbles, five interceptions, scored a touchdown and allowed the Northmen to cross the midfield stripe just once all afternoon.

"Our defense is our strength," confirmed second year Fergus Falls coach Steve LeGrand, who has turned the Spartans from an 0-8 club in 1979 to a 5-0 record and first place status in the Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) Northern Division this fall. "We didn't look too great offensively," admitted LeGrand, "but our defense played well and we won."

Northland's publicized defense limited Fergus Falls to just 143 yards, but did break down occasionally, allowing the Spartans' struggling offense to score.

"Our defense did not play as well as they could have," acknowledged Northland coach John Helley. "I didn't think the offense played all that bad; we played them even in the first half. But they got a couple of breaks and scored. Penalties and untimely mistakes led to the big score."

A fumble recovery by defensive end Kip Gauldin at the Northland 13 set up Fergus Falls' first touchdown as the Spartans hit the arm of Northland quarterback Jeff Westberg before he could start the forward motion on a second quarter pass attempt.

But it required a bit of trickery and an outstanding effort by Randy Bell to put the points on the scoreboard. It was a fake field goal attempt, with holder David Daniels throwing a short swing pass to Bell on the left side. Bell should have gone down at the 20, but instead he bounced off three or four solid hits to reach the end zone with 9:39 remaining in the first half.

Two spectacular pass receptions by Daniels, a freshman from Cincinnati, set up Fergus Falls' second touchdown. Daniels made a diving catch and pulled Grady Lindbom's pass off the grass for a first down at the Northland 13, then made a one-handed catch on the sidelines for a first down inside the one. Northland defenders argued that both catches were illegal — the first a trap and the second out of bounds. But they stood up, and Nolan Beverly went off tackle for the touchdown with 1:37 left in the first half.

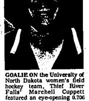
A pass interception and return to the Northland 27 by Bell, a freshman from Cold Spring, in the third quarter wound up producing a 21-0 cushion on a one-yard straight-ahead dive by Raymond Felder with 1:55 on the clock.

Fittingly, Fergus Falls' defense closed out the scoring as Bell intercepted a Jeff Steuck pass and did another super-human job in stumbling 26 yards for a touchdown four minutes into the fourth quarter. He balanced himself with one hand and somehow managed to stay upright after taking the ball away from the intended receiver.

Combination of Fergus Falls' strong defense, the hand-numbing cold and their own offensive ineptness, saw the Northmen turn the ball over in their own territory on 16 of their 17 offensive possessions. Northland's offense never did cross the 50-yard line on its own. An interception near midfield and a recovered punt that was partially blocked at the line of scrimmage finally put Northland on Fergus Falls turf midway through the third quarter. But after recovering their own punt at the Fergus Falls 22, the Northmen wound up trying a 34-yard field goal. Jeff Gobell's kick on fourth-and-four from the 16 into the wind floated off to the right.

Still, Helley wasn't discouraged. "Overall, I thought we played well against a strong team," he offered.

Northland, 1-3-1, plays Itasca Saturday in Grand Rapids.



GOALIE ON the University of North Dakota women's field hockey team, Thief River Falls' Marchell Cuppett featured an eye-opening 0.706 goals-against average after 17 games this fall. The Sioux junior won 14 or her first 17 starts, including eight shutout performances.

FERGUS FALLS linebacker Delwin Davis (52) had good penetration on the play, but Northland quarterback Jeff Westberg (12) threw the ball by the defender and completed a swing pass to runningback John Dillon (36) during the second quarter of Saturday's MJCAA Northern Division community college football game played in Thief River Falls. The play picked up six yards to the Northland 26, but a Northland fumble on the very next snap was recovered by Fergus Falls and led to the Spartans' first touchdown in a 28-0 victory over the Northmen.

Waterfowl Stamp Sales Funds Used

Department of Natural Resources this week reported on the projects that were financed this year by receipts from sale of the Minnesota migratory waterfowl stamp.

This stamp, as well as the federal migratory bird hunting and conservation stamp (duck stamp), is required in order to hunt ducks, geese and other migratory waterfowl in Minnesota.

A total of $350,000 was appropriated by the legislature from funds produced by sale of the state stamp. The DNR's section of wildlife used the money to finance 12 new waterfowl impoundments.

Largest project is a 190 acre wetland on Hanson Creek in Lake of the Woods county. Other projects included 120 acres in two pools in the Lac qui Parle wildlife management area; the Salo Marsh WMA, Aitkin county; Irrupption WMA, Murray county; and several small wetlands in Stevens and Freeborn counties.

Two dams were built — at Lower Twin lake in Freeborn county and Goose lake in Waseca county — so that water levels could be controlled to improve habitat for waterfowl.

In addition, more than 140 dugouts to provide nesting sites for waterfowl were created in 13 wildlife management areas.

Tues., Oct. 14 — McIntosh-Winger at Oklee, Plummer at Goodridge, Grygla at Middle River, Clearbrook at Mentor, Gonvick at Erskine.

North Tri County Conference unbeatens Oklee and McIntosh-Winger will tangle Tuesday in a pennant-deciding nine-man high school football game at Oklee.

Winner of the 7:30 p.m. game will be assured of at least a conference title tie and will represent the North Tri County Conference in the post-season Minnesota State High School League state football playoffs.

Oklee ran its winning streak to seven Friday with a 12-0 shutout of Mentor while McIntosh-Winger turned back the challenge of Middle River 34-6.

Elsewhere Friday, Goodridge got by Grygla 6-0, Gonvick shelled Plummer 53-6 and Clearbrook defeated Erskine 20-14.

Rest of Tuesday's North Tri County Conference schedule will find Plummer at Goodridge, Grygla at Middle River, Clearbrook at Mentor and Gonvick at Erskine.

Mentor 0

"It wasn't pretty, but it was effective," noted Oklee coach Dale Svaren after watching his Bobcats battle the wind and rain en route to a 12-0 victory over Mentor.

Brad and Paul Gunderson scored the game's only points. Brad Gunderson hauled in a 39-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Richard Bronken in the second quarter and Paul Gunderson, who rushed for 88 yards on 16 carries, scored on a 15-yard run in the third quarter.

Mentor threatened to close the gap when the Trojans reached the Oklee five-yard line at the start of the fourth quarter, but the Bobcats turned back the visitors and gained their third shutout of the season.

Joel Stolaas, John Cyr and Brad Gunderson were the leaders on the Bobcats' defensive point charts with 19, 17 and 16, respectively.

Oklee's offensive struggled at the start, losing the ball on two fumbles and an interception in the first half.

McIntosh-Winger . . 34
Middle River 6

Injuries took away the top two Middle River offensive backs and the Skippers, without the services of speedy Scott McKeever and power-running Steve Bengston, fell victim to McIntosh-Winger 34-6 in a key North Tri-County Conference showdown at McIntosh.

Middle River problems began almost immediately. After falling behind 6-0, the Skippers reached the McIntosh-Winger one-yard line, but fumbled the ball away at the goal line. And worse yet, they lost McKeever on the drive. The leading scorer in the North Tri County Conference with 78 points coming into the game, McKeever went down with a knee injury that will sideline him indefinitely.

Trying once again for a matching first quarter touchdown, Middle River reached the McIntosh-Winger six-yard line but failed to produce points, and this time Bengston, the fourth leading scorer in the North Tri County Conference with 50 points, was taken out of the game after he took a helmet shot on his hip joint.

It was no contest after that. "After the injuries the kids let up," acknowledged Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "It was just the case of our back-up people not being able to compete with McIntosh-Winger's starters."

The state-ranked Scots ran up a 20-0 halftime lead and built it to 34-0 before surrendering a fourth quarter touchdown.

"They were impressive," said Sparby of the Scots. "They were really coming off the ball. I don't see anybody around here beating them."

Eugene Kami came up with 15 tackles for the Skippers, who fell to 5-2 with the loss, ending a five-game winning streak.

Goodridge 6
Grygla 0

Goodridge gained its first win ever over area rival Grygla Friday when the Huskies edged the visiting Eagles 6-0.

The game's only score came on a five-yard second quarter touchdown run by Carroll Bishop.

It was the second win in seven starts for the Huskies, while the Eagles remained winless.

The outcome also snapped a Grygla win streak over Goodridge that began when the first-year Eagles beat the Huskies 21-0 in 1974. Grygla also won 20-12 in 1975; 54-14 in 1977; 46-8 in 1978; and 24-0 in 1979. Goodridge did not field a football team in 1976.

"The kids are pretty happy with the win," noted Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "In fact, it was a sweet victory for the whole community."

It was a steady, if slow, Goodridge drive that set up Bishop's touchdown as the Huskies marched 49 yards over a seven-minute span.

Grygla threatened at the end, getting a first down at the Goodridge 18 early in the fourth quarter. But the Huskies stopped the Eagles at the 10, and Rory Haugen then took the hosts out of trouble by breaking a 36-yard run.

"That was a big play," acknowledged Nelson. "There's no way we would have punted into the wind down there." Haugen rushed for 72 yards on 12 carries and played a strong defensive game as well to receive praise from Nelson. "Rory did a super job; he did a lot of things for us," he said of the 5-7, 145-pound senior.

Gonvick 53

Boyd Ness scored four touchdowns Friday to lead Gonvick to a 53-6 wind-blown victory over Plummer.

Ness rushed for 115 yards on his scoring plays alone as he scored on runs of 23, 33, 7 and 52 yards.

The Bulldogs, who led 39-0 at halftime, won their fourth straight game after dropping three season-opening toughies to North Tri County contenders McIntosh-Winger, Middle River and Oklee.

"It's hard to believe they lost those three games," said Plummer coach Gary Brantl, who was obviously impressed by the visitors' play.

Plummer remained winless in seven starts, but the Cardinals did manage to snap a string of four straight shutout losses when freshman quarterback Tim Gagner hit Brad Rosten with an 18-yard third quarter touchdown pass.

The Cardinals were limited to 141 yards on offense, 102 on the ground where Rosten gained 69 yards on 18 tries and Dean Sletten had 43 on 13 carries. Gagner, making his second start at quarterback, completed three of five passes for 29 yards.

A STRONG performer after coming off the bench in the championship match, Thief River Falls junior Tara Nicholson went to her knees and came up with a save on a Crookston serve during Saturday's third annual Northern Lights invitational volleyball tournament played in the Lincoln high school gym. The Prowlers defeated the Pirates 18-7, 18-11 in the finals of the day-long, eight-team tournament.

Northern Lights Invitational . . .

Volleyball Title Stays With Host TRF Squad

Thief River Falls, after surviving a first round scare that required a 20-point third game to get by upset-minded Greenbush, rolled to its third straight Northern Lights invitational volleyball tournament title Saturday in the Lincoln high school gym.

The Prowlers struggled past the Tigers 18-4, 11-18, 20-18 in the 9 a.m. opener of the eight-team tournament; handled Roseau 18-14, 18-11 in the afternoon semifinals; and turned back Crookston 18-7, 18-11 in the 8 p.m. championship match.

"Greenbush was a really good team," explained Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss when asked about the unexpected tough opener for the Prowlers, who have emerged as champion in each of the Northern Lights tournaments they've hosted. "We hadn't seen them before, and we didn't know what to expect. They played really well."

It would have been an upset, of course, but Stauss said a Greenbush victory over Thief River Falls wouldn't have been all that much of a surprise.

"Everybody's skills are improving and everybody is pretty even right now," she pointed out.

Greenbush came ever so close to getting that upset when the Tigers went ahead 17-14 in the third game. But the Prowlers battled back, with Stacy Ehrenstrom serving points 16, 17 and 18 to force overtime, and LeAnn Paetznick doing the serving for points 19 and 20.

It went a lot smoother against Roseau in the semifinals.

"The girls started playing well as a team," said Stauss of the match against Roseau. "It was pass-set-spike on everything."

Crookston presented Thief River Falls with a familiar foe in the championship match, with the Prowlers and Pirates meeting for fifth time this fall. Thief River Falls beat Crookston two out of three matches to win a round-robin tournament at Roseau Sept. 20, with the Pirates beating the Prowlers 2-1 in a regularly scheduled match just three days later.

The first game was a breeze, with Sheryl Slimac quickly serving the Prowlers to a 5-0 lead they never relinquished.

Karmon Espe had three kill spikes in the championship opener, including the game-winning 18th point.

"They played a pretty good first game," agreed Stauss in describing the Prowlers' championship game performance. She cited Espe's play, saying, "She had a really bad morning, but she more than made up for it tonight."

It was more of a struggle in the second game as Crookston built a 3-0 lead that lasted until Paetznick serves brought Thief River Falls from a 6-4 deficit to a 10-6 lead — thanks to three Crookston errors as the Pirates messed up bumps, sets and spikes.

That underlined Stauss' comments before the final when she said, "We're pretty evenly matched. The team that makes the least mistakes — mental errors like hitters hitting into the net, setters juggling the ball and serves not going over — will win."

A key block at the net by senior co-captain Jana Bornhoft helped teammate Judy Weiler serve the Pirates back into contention, 13-11.

But once again the Crookston mistakes started to reappear and Espe served the final five points as the Pirates hit the net with two shots, misplayed a set and finally failed to receive the final serve of the night.

Paetznick and Ehrenstrom, along with Espe, received credit, but Stauss gave most of the praise to senior co-captain Marlys Huot. "Marlys worked so hard all day," she pointed out. "She's our only setter and she probably worked harder than anybody on the team in getting to the ball every series. And she's an excellent setter."

It wasn't a flawless performance, but as Stauss noted, "It's hard to play mistake-free ball."

The tournament victory, worth a win in the Prowlers' won-lost record, supplies them with a 6-6 mark heading into a Tuesday match at Moorhead.

FIVE NORTHLAND BLOCKERS headed to their left to set up a wall, but the play never developed as quarterback Jeff Westberg fumbled the snap and had to grop for the ball in the second quarter of Saturday's community college football game against Fergus Falls on the Thief River Falls athletic field. The play lost three yards. The identifiable blockers included Rick Olson (47), Jeff Canivez (60) and Bob Benson (55). Fergus Falls won the game 28-0.

Swanson, Olson Reach Region 8AA Tournament

Junior Nancy Swanson and eighth grader Michelle Olson will represent Thief River Falls as a doubles entry Tuesday in the individual portion of the 1980 Region 8AA girls high school tennis tournament at the Grand Forks Tennis Centre. Matches get underway at 9 a.m.

They reached the Region 8AA tournament with a fourth place finish Friday in the North Half Region 8AA competition at the Southgate Racquet club in Fargo.

Seeded No. 2, Swanson and Olson received a first round bye before beating Chris Kelly and Sharon Jones of Bemidji 6-2, 6-4 to assure themselves of a Region 8AA berth.

But third-seeded Joan Thomforde and Gina Vorachek of Crookston defeated Swanson and Olson 6-1, 6-0 in the semifinals, and No. 1-seeded Sue Solheim and Chris Kunz of Detroit Lakes, upset by Crookston's Kristy Myrold and Babe Sullivan in the semifinals, handled the Thief River Falls pair 6-0, 6-3 in the third place match.

In an all-Crookston final, Myrold and Sullivan outlasted Thomforde and Vorachek 6-4, 5-7, 6-4.

No. 1-seeded Bonnie Berenz of Detroit Lakes won the North Half Region 8AA singles title, beating No. 2-seeded Shennon McKenzie of Fergus Falls 6-0, 6-1 in the finals.

Thief River Falls singles players Christie LaCoursiere and Kim Lawrenz, along with a second doubles team of Pam Wassink and Marsha Erickson, were eliminated in Friday's competition.

North Half champion Detroit Lakes will meet South Half winner Brainerd today (Monday) in the 4 p.m. Region 8AA team championship match in Grand Forks. The Lakers are the defending Region 8AA champions.

Nordics Run Over Tigers

Marshall County Central ground game racked up 319 yards Friday as the Nordics ran over Greenbush 30-8 in a Top of the State Conference nine-man high school football game played at Newfolden.

Gordy Collin led the ground-gobbling Marshall County Central attack with 120 yards on 11 carries. Bill Johnson added 77 yards on 16 tries and Rick VanCamp, who scored twice, contributed 54 yards on just nine trips.

A scoreless first quarter turned into an 18-0 Marshall County Central halftime lead when Scott Lindquist scored from 16 yards out and Van Camp reached the end zone from the 15.

It became 30-0 before Greenbush scored on a 70-yard Brad Williamson breakaway in the fourth quarter. That run helped Williamson rush for 95 yards for the night, representing most of the Tigers' 133 yards worth of offense.

Defensively, Bill Johnson and Jeff Dahl had interceptions for the Nordics, while linebacker Steve Boe came up with 20 tackles and a fumble recovery. Defensive end Nate Stokke and nose guard Dan Maki had 14 and 13 tackles, respectively, for the winners.

Marshall County Central, now 5-2 overall and 5-1 in conference play, remains deadlocked for the Top of the State lead with Argyle and Hallock. The Eagles routed Tri-County 55-0 while Hallock took care of Stephen 35-6 Friday.

The Nordics close out the 1980 season with a pair of Tuesday night games, playing at Stephen tomorrow and hosting Tri-County the following week. Argyle will be at Greenbush Wednesday and Hallock hosts Tri-County Friday before those two finish up against each other.

Proposed Amendments to the Minnesota Constitution

Statement of Purpose and Effect of Amendments

September, 1980

TO: The Voters of Minnesota

The following proposed amendments to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota will be submitted to the voters for their approval or rejection at the November 4, 1980 general election. Each amendment requires a separate vote. If a majority of all who vote in the November 4 election vote "YES", an amendment is adopted. A voter at the election who does not vote on an amendment is in effect voting "NO". Printed here are the proposed amendments as they will appear on the ballot. Following each question is a statement, prepared pursuant to M.S. §3.21 by Attorney General Warren Spannaus, of the purpose and effect of the proposed amendment.

Sincerely,
Joan Anderson Growe
Secretary of State

AMENDMENT NO. 1 — REAPPORTIONMENT: TRANSFER TO A BIPARTISAN COMMISSION

YES ☐
NO ☐

"Shall the Minnesota Constitution be amended to transfer from the legislature to a bipartisan commission the power to draw the boundaries of legislative and congressional districts?"

The purpose and effect of the amendment proposed in Minnesota Laws 1980 Chapter 588 Section 1 is:

1. The amendment would transfer the power to draw the boundaries of congressional and legislative districts from the Minnesota Legislature to a bipartisan reapportionment commission.

2. A reapportionment commission would be appointed once a decade in each year ending in "1" and whenever else a court so required. Every commission would consist of nine members with no more than two selected by legislators of any one political party. The four legislative appointees would appoint the remaining five members by unanimous agreement.

3. The proposed amendment includes standards for reapportionment plans. Equality of population would be the controlling factor in drawing district boundaries. Contiguous and compact districts would be mandated. District boundaries would have to follow local government boundaries and, wherever practicable, natural and manmade physical boundaries. Personal or political favoritism in reapportionment plans would be prohibited.

4. Approval of a reapportionment plan would require the votes of at least six commission members. Deadlines would be imposed on the reapportionment process. The Minnesota Supreme Court could adopt a reapportionment plan if a commission failed to do so within applicable time limits.

5. The Legislature could enact laws to implement the reapportionment provisions of the Minnesota Constitution.

In Chapter 588 the Legislature also approved the 1980 Reapportionment Implementation Act, which will go into effect only if voters approve the reapportionment commission amendment to the Minnesota Constitution at the 1980 general election. The Act contains a definition of "political party," qualifications for commission members, deadlines and procedures for creation of commissions and commencement of duties, a provision for removal of commission members, deadlines for development of reapportionment plans, mechanical requirements for plans and other details of the reapportionment process. The Act provides that the Minnesota Supreme Court shall adopt a reapportionment plan if the Supreme Court or a federal court invalidates a reapportionment plan.

Article IV Section 2 of the Minnesota Constitution now reads:

"The number of members who compose the senate and house of representatives shall be prescribed by law. The representation in both houses shall be apportioned equally throughout the different sections of the state in proportion to the population thereof."

If the amendment is adopted, Article IV Section 2 will read (deletions indicated by ~~strikeouts~~ and additions by italics) as follows:

"The number of members who compose the senate and house of representatives shall be prescribed by law. ~~The representation in both houses shall be apportioned equally throughout the different sections of the state in proportion to the population thereof.~~ A law changing the number of senators or representatives shall be effective on January 1 of the next year ending in the number one following enactment of the law and shall govern general elections held under an apportionment plan that becomes effective after that date."

Article IV Section 3 of the Minnesota Constitution now reads:

"At its first session after each enumeration of the inhabitants of this state made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of congressional and legislative districts. Senators shall be chosen by single districts of convenient contiguous territory. No representative district shall be divided in the formation of a senate district. The senate districts shall be numbered in a regular series."

If the amendment is adopted, Article IV Section 3 will read (deletions indicated by ~~strikeouts~~ and additions by italics):

"~~At its first session after each enumeration of the inhabitants of this state made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of congressional and legislative districts. Senators shall be chosen by single districts of convenient contiguous territory. No representative district shall be divided in the formation of a senate district. The senate districts shall be numbered in a regular series.~~ The legislature shall not prescribe the boundaries for the districts of senators and representatives or for the districts of representatives in the congress of the United States."

If the amendment is adopted, the following Article XV will be added to the Minnesota Constitution:

ARTICLE XV
REAPPORTIONMENT COMMISSION

"Section 1. (REAPPORTIONMENT COMMISSION.) In each year ending in the number one, or when required by court order, a reapportionment commission shall be established to draw the boundaries of legislative and congressional districts.

The commission shall consist of nine members who are eligible voters of the state. One member shall be appointed by the speaker of the house and one by the members of the house representing political parties other than the party represented by the speaker. One member shall be appointed by the president of the senate and one by the members of the senate representing political parties other than the party represented by the president. Article IV, section 5 shall not apply to the appointment of these four members of the reapportionment commission. The term "political party" as used in this section shall have the meaning provided by law.

The remaining five members shall be appointed by unanimous agreement of the legislative appointees. The qualifications of these members shall be provided by law.

Members of the commission shall be appointed within the time provided by law but not later than March 15 when the commission is established in a year ending in the number one. The supreme court shall fill any vacancy caused by failure to appoint a member within the time required by law.

Sec. 2. (APPORTIONMENT STANDARDS.) The commission shall draw the boundaries of legislative and congressional districts in accordance with the requirements of this section. There shall be one district for each representative, senator and representative in congress. No state representative district shall be divided in the formation of a senate district.

All districts of the same kind shall be as equal in population as practicable. Population shall be the controlling factor in drawing the district boundaries.

The districts shall be composed of compact and contiguous territory. To the extent consistent with other standards, the boundaries of the districts shall follow the boundaries of local governmental units and, wherever practicable, natural and man-made physical boundaries. No apportionment plan shall be drawn for the purpose of favoring any person or political party.

Sec. 3. (APPORTIONMENT PLAN.) The commission shall adopt an apportionment plan within the time provided by law but not later than December 1 when the commission is established in a year ending in the number one. The plan shall set forth all of the new legislative and congressional districts. An apportionment plan is adopted by the commission when it is approved by a vote of at least six of its members.

Sec. 4. (EFFECTIVE DATE; ELECTIONS GOVERNED BY NEW DISTRICTS.) An apportionment plan is effective when it is adopted and any judicial proceedings under section 5 have been completed. The districts set forth in an apportionment plan shall govern elections of state senators, state representatives and representatives in congress beginning with the first general election after the plan is effective.

Sec. 5. (JUDICIAL REVIEW; COURT DRAWN PLAN.) The supreme court shall exercise original jurisdiction in any matter relating to apportionment in the manner provided by law. If the commission fails to adopt an apportionment plan within the time provided by law the supreme court shall adopt its own plan in accordance with the requirements of section 2 of this article. If an apportionment plan for legislative districts is adopted by the supreme court later than April 1 of a general election year, the time for establishing residency for legislative candidates as set forth in article IV, section 6, is extended to either 45 days after the effective date of the plan or to the last day provided by law for filing for office at the general election, whichever is earlier.

Sec. 6. (IMPLEMENTATION.) The legislature may enact the laws necessary to implement this article provided that reapportionment shall be governed by the law in effect on January 1 of the year in which a reapportionment commission is established."

AMENDMENT NO. 2 — CAMPAIGN SPENDING: LIMITS AND DISCLOSURE

YES ☐
NO ☐

"Shall the Minnesota Constitution be amended to require campaign spending limits for candidates for executive and legislative offices and public disclosure of campaign spending for all state candidates?"

The purpose and effect of the amendment proposed in Minnesota Laws 1980 Chapter 587 Article III Section 1 is:

1. The amendment would require the Minnesota Legislature to limit by law the amount of campaign spending for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor, Treasurer, Attorney General and the Legislature.

2. The amendment would require the Legislature to provide by law for public disclosure of contributions and expenditures to support or oppose candidates for state offices.

In Chapter 587 the Legislature also approved statutory provisions which will become effective only if voters ratify the campaign spending amendment. The statutory sections would permit existing statutory spending limits for state executive and legislative campaigns to rise or fall with the consumer price index, would increase to $2 from the present $1 the amount of taxes that an individual may designate to help finance the campaigns of candidates who comply with spending limits, would require space on the first page of tax forms for individuals to indicate whether or not they wish to designate taxes for campaigns and would mandate that some tax funds accumulated but not used in state campaigns be reallocated to other candidates instead of returned to the general fund in the state treasury as existing statute provides.

If voters do not ratify the constitutional amendment regarding campaign spending, existing statutory limits on campaign spending and an existing statutory prohibition against tax credits for contributions to state candidates who do not comply with spending limits will be automatically repealed effective December 31, 1981. Existing statutory campaign finance disclosure requirements will remain in effect.

If the amendment is adopted by voters, the following section will be added to Article VII of the Minnesota Constitution:

"Sec. 9. (CAMPAIGN SPENDING LIMITS.) The amount that may be spent by candidates for constitutional and legislative offices to campaign for nomination or election shall be limited by law. The legislature shall provide by law for disclosure of contributions and expenditures made to support or oppose candidates for state elective offices."

AMENDMENT NO. 3 — HIGHWAY BONDS: REMOVAL OF CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS

YES ☐
NO ☐

"Shall the Minnesota Constitution be amended to remove restrictions on the interest rate for and the amount of trunk highway bonds?"

The purpose and effect of the amendment proposed in Minnesota Laws 1980 Chapter 549 Section 1 is:

1. The amendment would remove the present $150 million par value limit on the amount of trunk highway bonds which are issued and unpaid at any time.

2. The amendment would remove the present 5 percent per annum ceiling on interest rates of trunk highway bonds.

Article XIV Section 11 of the Minnesota Constitution now reads:

"The legislature may provide by law for the sale of bonds to carry out the provisions of section 2. Bonds issued and unpaid shall not at any time exceed $150,000,000 par value. The proceeds shall be paid into the trunk highway fund. Any bonds shall mature serially over a term not exceeding 20 years, and shall not be sold for less than par and accrued interest and shall not bear interest at a greater rate than five percent per annum. If the trunk highway fund is not adequate to pay principal and interest of these bonds when due, the legislature may levy on all taxable property of the state in an amount sufficient to meet the deficiency or it may appropriate to the fund money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated."

If the amendment is adopted, Article XIV Section 11 will read (deletions indicated by ~~strikeouts~~ and additions by italics) as follows:

"The legislature may provide by law for the sale of bonds to carry out the provisions of section 2. ~~Bonds issued and unpaid shall not at any time exceed $150,000,000 par value.~~ The proceeds shall be paid into the trunk highway fund. Any bonds shall mature serially over a term not exceeding 20 years, and shall not be sold for less than par and accrued interest ~~and shall not bear interest at a greater rate than five percent per annum~~. If the trunk highway fund is not adequate to pay principal and interest of these bonds when due, the legislature may levy on all taxable property of the state in an amount sufficient to meet the deficiency or it may appropriate to the fund money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated."

AMENDMENT NO. 4 — INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM: ESTABLISHMENT

YES ☐
NO ☐

"Shall the Minnesota Constitution be amended to provide for initiative and referendum?"

The purpose and effect of the amendment proposed in Minnesota Laws 1980 Chapter 587 Section 1 is:

1. The amendment would permit eligible voters to petition to initiate a law or to refer a law for repeal. If in each congressional district a number of eligible voters which is not less than 5 percent of the number of persons who voted at the last general election in the congressional district signed petitions for an initiative or referendum measure, the measure would be placed on the ballot at the next general election. A majority of those voting on an initiative or referendum measure could approve it at an election. Voters could not initiate or refer a constitutional amendment, an appropriation or a special law. The Governor could not approve or veto an initiative or referendum measure. An initiative or referendum adopted by the voters could not be overturned by the Legislature until another general election occurred.

2. The sponsors of an initiative or referendum measure could choose to withdraw the measure from the ballot if the Minnesota Legislature enacted a law with similar scope and purpose. If the initiative or referendum measure was not abandoned, the Legislature could submit its proposal to the voters at the same election and in the same manner as the measure submitted by petition.

3. The Legislature would be required to implement the amendment by law.

4. The initiative and referendum amendment to the Minnesota Constitution would expire January 1, 1985.

In Chapter 587 the Legislature also approved the 1980 Initiative and Referendum Act. It will become effective only if voters approve the initiative and referendum amendment to the Minnesota Constitution.

The Act would set deadlines for the initiative and referendum process. At least 50 eligible voters would be required as sponsors of an initiative or referendum measure. The sponsors would be required to file a declaration of the intent or purpose of the measure not later than March 1 of the odd-numbered year before the general election at which the measure was to be on the ballot. The initiative or referendum measure itself and a copy of the petition to be circulated for signatures would be required to be filed within 63 days after the filing of the declaration. Petitions could be circulated from eight days after the form of the petition was approved by the Secretary of State until October 1 of the year before the election.

The Act would require the Minnesota Revisor of Statutes to provide drafting assistance and legal advice to the sponsors of an initiative or referendum measure if they desired it and would mandate the Revisor to prepare a summary of the measure for placement on the petitions. The Act would provide the form of petitions, would require the Secretary of State to determine whether a sufficient number of valid signatures had been obtained, would permit the Secretary of State to use a 5 percent random sample for signature verification if the Secretary wished to do so, would require the Secretary of State to write the initiative or referendum question for placement on the general election ballot with the advice of the Minnesota Executive Council, would permit four-fifths of the sponsors of an initiative or referendum measure to withdraw it from the ballot if the Minnesota Legislature enacted a law with similar scope and purpose, would provide that the initiative or referendum measure receiving the most votes at the general election would go into effect if voters adopted two or more measures which substantially conflicted with each other, would extend the campaign finance and disclosure requirements of the 1974 Minnesota Ethics in Government Act to initiative and referendum campaigns, would prohibit tax deductions or credits for contributions by corporations to initiative and referendum campaigns and would make initiative and referendum measures adopted by voters effective on December 31 of the year of adoption.

The Act also would provide other details of the initiative and referendum process.

If the amendment is adopted, the following section will be added to Article IV of the Minnesota Constitution:

"Sec. 27. (INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM.) A law may be initiated or referred for repeal upon petition by eligible voters. An initiative or referendum measure shall be placed on the ballot at a general election if petitions for the measure are signed by eligible voters in each congressional district of the state in a number not less than five percent of the number of persons who voted at the last general election in that congressional district. An initiative or referendum measure shall be adopted upon the affirmative vote of a majority of those voting on the question. The voters may not initiate or refer for repeal a constitutional amendment, an appropriation or a special law.

The governor shall have no power to approve or veto an initiative or referendum measure adopted by the voters.

No law adopted by initiative shall be amended or repealed and no law repealed by referendum shall be reenacted by the legislature until another general election has intervened.

The sponsors of an initiative or referendum measure, if the legislature enacts a law with a similar scope and purpose, may elect to place the measure on the ballot or to abandon the measure. If the measure is not abandoned, the legislature may submit the law which it has enacted to a vote of the people in the same manner as an initiative or referendum measure at the election at which the initiative or referendum measure is submitted. If a law enacted by the legislature is submitted to the people at the same election as an initiative or referendum measure, it shall not be subject to veto by the governor and it shall not be effective unless approved by a majority of those voting on the question.

The legislature shall implement the provisions of this section by law.

This section expires January 1, 1985."

AMENDMENT NO. 5 — NOTARIES PUBLIC: REMOVAL OF SENATE APPROVAL

YES ☐
NO ☐

"Shall the Minnesota Constitution be amended to remove the requirement that notaries public be approved by the senate?"

The purpose and effect of the amendment proposed in Minnesota Laws 1980 Chapter 592 Section 1 is:

The amendment would eliminate the present constitutional requirement that appointments of notaries public by the Governor must be approved by the Minnesota Senate before they become effective.

Article V Section 3 of the Minnesota Constitution now reads:

"The governor shall communicate by message to each session of the legislature information touching the state and country. He is commander-in-chief of the military and naval forces and may call them out to execute the laws, suppress insurrection and repel invasion. He may require the opinion in writing of the principal officer in each of the executive departments upon any subject relating to his duties. With the advice and consent of the senate he may appoint notaries public and other officers provided by law. He may appoint commissioners to take the acknowledgment of deeds or other instruments in writing to be used in the state. He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed. He shall fill any vacancy that may occur in the offices of secretary of state, treasurer, auditor, attorney general and the other state and district offices hereafter created by law until the end of the term for which the person who had vacated the office was elected or the first Monday in January following the next general election, whichever is sooner, and until a successor is chosen and qualified."

If the amendment is adopted, Article V Section 3 will read (deletions indicated by ~~strikeouts~~) as follows:

"The governor shall communicate by message to each session of the legislature information touching the state and country. He is commander-in-chief of the military and naval forces and may call them out to execute the laws, suppress insurrection and repel invasion. He may require the opinion in writing of the principal officer in each of the executive departments upon any subject relating to his duties. With the advice and consent of the senate he may appoint ~~notaries public and other~~ officers provided by law. He may appoint commissioners to take the acknowledgement of deeds or other instruments in writing to be used in the state. He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed. He shall fill any vacancy that may occur in the offices of secretary of state, treasurer, auditor, attorney general and the other state and district offices hereafter created by law until the end of the term for which the person who had vacated the office was elected or the first Monday in January following the next general election, whichever is sooner, and until a successor is chosen and qualified."

In Memoriam

In memory of our beloved husband and father, Walter Rux, who passed away 10 years ago, Oct. 14, 1970.

I lost a life companion
A life linked with my own
Year by year I miss you more
As I walk thru life alone.
How sad this day is for me
The day on which you died.
Your memory will cling to my heart,
Till I rest by your side.
A loving father, true and kind,
What a beautiful memory he left behind.
Upright and just in all his ways,
Wonderful father, to the end of his days.

History Of TRF School Bond Votes Reviewed

With Tuesday's turnout in the School District 564 bond election smashing all previous records, a review of previous bond elections seemed in order. A search of bound volumes of the Times revealed results of bond elections back to the construction of the existing Lincoln high school which was approved in 1938.

Prior to yesterday's record 4,807 voter turnout, the record for a school district bond election was the 3,202 voters who approved a $1,495,000 issue on March 5, 1963. Two separate questions were on the ballot in that election, one asking $1,195,000 for a junior high school and another asking $300,000 for a 10-room elementary school.

The junior high school question carried 1,676 to 1,508 while the elementary school question was passed 1,641 to 1,473. Those buildings are now Franklin middle school and Mark Twain elementary school.

Passage of that issue with a record vote followed two defeats of the similar project. On April 23, 1962, a $1,595,000 bond issue was defeated 1,750 to 1,354 as 3,104 voters went to the polls. Proponents of the issue petitioned the board of Education to hold another election, and this was done on May 21, 1962. The number of voters was smaller in the second election but the rejection was greater — 1,789 opposed and only 1,003 in favor.

On Oct. 18, 1966, the school board held a bond election for construction of the new area vocational-technical institute northeast of the city and a swimming pool addition to the Franklin school building. There were 1,737 voters going to the polls that day, and they approved the AVTI issue of $330,000 by a vote of 1,490 to 247 and the $200,000 swimming pool addition by a vote of 1,130 to 597.

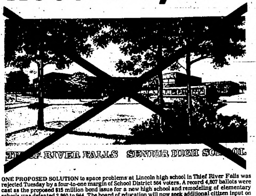
Most recent bond election for School District 564 was on Oct. 19, 1976, when 1,319 votes were cast on a $2,367,717 bond issue for two additions to the new AVTI building. That issue passed 958 to 361.

It should be noted that the $330,000 bond issue for AVTI con*struction was only the local* district's contribution to the total cost in the 1966 project, and that the 1976 AVTI issue of $2,367,717 was ". . .to finance all or such portion of such cost as cannot be paid from government grant funds." Greant funds were expected to cover more than half of that project with much of the remainder to be paid by state reimbursements in vocational aids to the district.

In 1955 there was a near blizzard on November 28 when voters went to the polls to vote on a $1,190,000 school bond issue. By a vote of 1,080 to 211 approval was given to bond the district for $450,000 to build industrial arts shops and food service (cafeteria) additions to Lincoln high school, $200,000 to build the AVTI addition to the Lincoln building, and $540,000 to build Washington elementary school. A separate issue of $10,000 to purchase an east side lot for future construction of an elementary school was approved 850 to 409.

Back in 1938 on September 28, school district voters gave resounding approval to a bond issue of $185,000 to build Lincoln high school. No, the building wasn't that cheap. It was estimated to cost $340,000 to build the structure but an estimated $153,818 was to be paid by the Public Works administration (PWA). Vote on that bond issue was 674 in favor and only 39 opposed.

Voters Reject Bond Issue With Record 4,807 Vote



THIEF RIVER FALLS SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL

ONE PROPOSED SOLUTION to space problems at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls was rejected Tuesday by a four-to-one margin of School District 564 voters. A record 4,807 ballots were cast as the proposed $15 million bond issue for a new high school and remodeling of elementary schools was defeated 3,860 to 944. The board of education will now seek additional citizen input on how to go about solving the school space problem.

That tremor which rocked the Thief River Falls school district service center board room Tuesday evening was after-shock from the resounding "No" vote cast by more than four out of five voters in the bond election earlier in the day.

In a record turnout of 4,807 voters, the proposal to bond School District 564 for $15 million to construct a new high school and remodel existing elementary schools was squashed by a vote of 3,860 opposed and only 944 in favor.

The new record vote total wiped out the previous record of 3,202 votes cast in a school bond election here. That record had been set on March 5, 1963, when voters approved construction of Franklin and Mark Twain schools. (See accompanying story for history of local bond election votes.)

The Times had mistakenly reported in the Monday edition that the previous record vote was 2,170, set in a school board election in 1971. While that mark is the highest turnout in a board election, further research revealed the 1963 bond election total had been larger.

Four polling places had been established in the district this year with polls open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Only three ballots were spoiled among the 4,807 cast — one each at Franklin, Lincoln and AVTI school buildings. None were spoiled at St. Hilaire where the margin of defeat for the issue was more than eight-to-one. With 480 votes cast in St. Hilaire, only 50 were in favor of the issue, while 430 were opposed.

At Franklin school where 1,945 votes were cast, 419 were in favor and 1,525 opposed — slightly less than the common four-to-one margin. At Lincoln 1,797 ballots were cast with 363 in favor and 1,433 opposed — a shade over the four-to-one ratio. AVTI voters also surpassed the four-to-one margin as 585 voters cast 112 "Yes" votes and 472 "No" votes.

"The board is naturally pleased with the number of people who went to the polls to express their opinion on the bond issue proposal," stated vice chairman Larry McDowell of the board of education. Chairman Ken Wiebolt is in Kansas City on business concerning Northland community college.

"But we are disappointed that more people didn't totally understand the circumstances involved in the proposal and the need for new high school facilities," added McDowell, previously three-term board chairman.

"Costs of construction in either case — building a new school or adding new classrooms to existing facilities — are very substantial. The conditions leading up to the bond issue proposal will not go away because the issue was defeated. The board feels we may probably never be in a position to receive more favorable construction bids than we would have been able to receive early next spring," he added.

McDowell said it is likely the board will meet next Monday to discuss what direction to take in light of the resounding rejection of the new school proposal.

"We will certainly be looking to the opponents of this proposal for their suggestions and assistance to help determine how to best resolve the problem," he said. "Although we have been

District 353 Bond Issue Passes Tues.

Karlstad Tri County School District 353 school bond issue passed Tuesday evening with 497 voting in favor of the issue and 411 opposed to it.

A building project was defeated in the district four years ago. Total vote at that time was 987 and the issue this year brought out fewer voters — 909. Largest difference in the totals in voting came at the Lake Bronson precinct where 310 voted four years ago and 248 voted this year.

As a result of Tuesday evening's vote, the school district will issue general obligation bonds on the district in an amount not to exceed $1,900,000 to finance the acquisition and remodeling of school facilities, including the construction of an addition to and the remodeling of the existing school building in Karlstad.

After 47 Years . . .

"IF YOU LIVE long enough you can get your fingers into a little bit of everything," are the words of Harry E. Simons, who recently retired following 47 years of service with L.B. Hartz Wholesale Inc. of Thief River Falls.

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

Harry E. Simons retired September 30 following 47 years as an accountant with L.B. Hartz Wholesale Inc. in Thief River Falls.

And, reflecting upon those working years which have now come to an end — at least in the accounting field — he stated in a recent interview, "I haven't quite figured it out yet."

But it appears that Harry will have little difficulty in partaking in those duties which he has had to neglect in the past. One could call him a musician, a collector, a historian and an inventor, but most of all, an ambitious man who should quite prominently be commended for his dedication to his work and for his eagerness to help people.

"I don't think anyone could spend a more interesting life than I yet still have good friends," he professed during the interview.

Born January 20, 1900 in Lakota, ND, Harry's career began at an early age. When he was in grade school he was interested in numbers, he said. His older brother, who was interested in accounting and who went into banking, also influenced Harry, he said. And, "You could get out of a lot of hard work by doing bookwork!" he joked.

Harry attended high school for one year in Lakota and from there began his studies of accounting at Aakers Business college in Grand Forks where he earned his accounting degree.

He particularly enjoyed working at the college, he recalled, because courses involved "more than just bookkeeping."

His first job involved working at a bank in Doyon, ND where he remained for two and one-half years and then bought Doyon Mercantile, a general store, which he operated for three years.

In 1931, he recalled, he had the opportunity to come to Thief River Falls to work with the Bridgeman-Russell creamery. He accepted the opportunity and remained there until he became involved with the Hartz stores in 1933.

Changes cannot be omitted from a business which has continued and progressed for so many years. Harry was there to witness those changes. Among many other advances, he witnessed an increase in board members from six to 12, he saw refrigeration methods develop and larger departments arrive, as the old-fashioned general store expanded to a modern supermarket.

Working hours, however, have probably remained the same, at least for Harry. There was a lot of night work involved in the original Hartz stores, he said.

"We'd go out and open the stores at night and do all of the inventory work, so they could be ready by morning. That's the only time we had time to do it."

During those 47 years with the Hartz corporation, Harry also served as mayor of Thief River Falls for six years from 1948 to 1953. During that time he had a hand in proposing commercial air service in the northwest area of Minnesota, was appointed a member of the National Guard citizen's committee of Thief River Falls, and was instrumental in setting up the national guard building in this city.

Before presiding over the city as mayor, Harry was a member of the city council for

City Acts On CETA Project, Fire Ass'n. Plan

Requests from Roger Wittenberg regarding a Comprehensive Employment Training Center (CETA) youth project and from Clayton Mathson representing Rocksbury township concerning the rural fire association contract, were two of several agenda items brought before city council members at their regular Thief River Falls city council meeting last evening.

In matters concerning the youth project, Wittenberg discussed the project previously proposed to CETA and which has been approved for funding. Following discussion, it was resolved that Jerry Wigness, city clerk, would meet with the various department heads in the city to determine what programs should be included in the project, what materials would be needed, and who would work with the project.

It was mentioned that the majority of work would be provided in the spring and summer months; although some work could possibly begin now.

Rural fire association request brought a delegation of township representatives to the meeting. Reference was made by Mathson to the minutes of an August 25 meeting conducted to negotiate the rural fire association contract.

At the August meeting, the public safety committee had proposed to have a 15-month contract from November 14, 1980 to March 1, 1982. Contract amount would be $17,500 with fire rates to remain at $40 for the first hour and $20 for every hour thereafter with the city to pay normal maintenance up to $500 on the Rural Fire Association vehicles.

Following the introduction of a resolution by alderman Bill Penning and a second from alderman Ole Engelstad, the safety committee's recommendation was excepted for a year based on the 15-month period. Unanimous roll call vote accepted the resolution.

Change order (involving $4,700.17) was accepted following the introduction of a resolution by alderman Clayton Restad, to add work on the alley between Main and LaBree avenue (between Northwestern Bell telephone and Valley Dairy) to work done by Northern Paving of Crookston on arena parking lot improvements.

In planning commission recommendations, a request from X-L Inc. for a zoning change from Agriculture to C-1 (Commercial-industrial) for lots 1, 2 and 3, Block 3, Noper's second addition was approved. Also, their request for a rezoning from Agriculture to

Events Set For City-County Governments

Open house at the new Thief River Falls fire hall and dedication of a new park by the county board of commissioners will mark local government day in this community Tuesday.

Fire hall open house is planned from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. with coffee and cookies to be served. Dedication of Oakland Park picnic grounds will take place at 4 p.m. at the 10-acre park located just east of Oakland Park nursing home.

Also on Tuesday, a supper is being planned to recognize men and women from the community who serve on local boards and commissions appointed through the Mayor's office and city council. At the dinner Tuesday evening in the city auditorium, D.H. Stewart will be recognized for his many years of service to the city as city engineer. Stewart is now retired from that position.

In proclaiming local government week, Gov. Quie noted that local government "provides a flexible and responsible method of providing a wide range of services to Minnesota citizens". He added that local residents, volunteers and government officials should be recognized for their contributions in meeting the needs of the people.

The governor also urged citizens to learn more about local government and to find ways for becoming actively involved.

"We would like to encourage as many people as possible to visit the fire hall on Tuesday," stated fire chief Duane Noel.

"May I have your clothes?"

The long-distance caller who received that greeting from a Northwestern Bell Telephone company operator at the Thief River Falls switchboard may have been too shocked or puzzled to reply. . . before he or she was suddenly disconnected!

But it actually happened. The operator who recalls the incident says she was thinking about an article she had read on nude group therapy when the light blinked in front of her and she greeted the caller with the enticing question. . . and instantly pulled the plug!

This was only one of many incidents which local operators recalled when interviewed for an article on the first annual Operator Services Appreciation Week October 12-18. At the local Bell office it will be the first and last annual observance. Next June the Thief River Falls switchboard is scheduled to be eliminated as the company moves to increased consolidation and automation.

There was a time when the local office employed up to 50 operators and had 20 of them working at the board at a time. They handled up to 7,000 long distance calls a day. Now the number has dwindled to about 20 and the operator-assisted call volume to about 1,800.

The reason for the change is the dial system. The Thief River Falls exchange went dial in September of 1957 and direct dialing for long distance calls became operable here in December of 1973.

We talked to five of the local operators about their experiences and opinions. Interviewed were Mae Hjelle

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Mary Jo Liden Weds Brian E. Williamson

Mr. and Mrs. Brian E. Williamson are at home in this city following an exchange of marriage vows at St. Bernard's Catholic church, and a wedding trip through the Southern states to California.

The bride, the former Mary Jo Liden, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane L. Liden of this city. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Kermit N. Williamson of Greenbush.

Rev. John Kleinwachter officiated at the double ring ceremony attended by approximately 350 relatives and friends. Christie LaCoursiere, a cousin of the bride, played "Evergreen," as the bridesmaids approached the altar, and "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," as the bride was ushered to the altar by her father. Jeff Liden, a cousin of the bride, sang "Colour My World," "Wedding Song," and "Always and Forever," which was rendered during the lighting of the Unity candle.

Baskets of white gladioli and yellow daisies graced the chancel.

The bride was attired in a white organza gown styled with a fitted bodice featuring a pin-tucked, yoke, edged with a lace ruffle. Matching lace formed the stand-up collar, trimmed the cuffs of her long, full sleeves and edged the deep flounce on the floor-length skirt that swept back into a double tiered, ruffled train. Her profile headpiece with puffed lace flowers and pearls, held her triple-tiered veil, edged with the same lace that trimmed her gown. Her diamond earrings were a gift from the groom. She carried a hand bouquet of white and yellow roses lined with dusty peach, and interspersed with white carnations, star flowers and stephanotis. For sentiment, she also carried her great-grandmother's embroidered handkerchief.

Kim Liden attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmatron was Mrs. Gerald (Gloria) Schulte, Fergus Falls, a friend of the bride. Their gowns in maize and celery, respectively, were of a hand-pointed floral print on a sheer ployester chiffon lined with tricot. The gowns were styled with elasticized empire waistlines, stand-up ruffled collars and an attached ruffled caplet.

In their hair, they wore a cluster of babies' breath. They carried woven palm fans with white star flowers and yellow roses, dusted in shades to match their gowns and ribbon streamers.

Serving as flower girl was Becky Fischer, a cousin of the bride. Her empire styled gown of pale yellow print was fashioned with puffed sleeves, accented with yellow ribbon. She carried a miniature plam fan decorated like the bridesmaids. The rings were carried by Nathan Anderson, a nephew of the bride. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a gray tuxedo with a white ruffled shirt and a yellow rose boutonniere. He carried the rings on a square satin pillow, covered with lace and accented with a yellow rosebud and satin ribbon streamers. The pillow was made by Mrs. Lyle Liden, aunt of the bride.

Kevin Williamson, Greenbush, attended his brother as best man. Don Burkel, Greenbush, a friend, was groomsman. Ushers were Rob LaCoursiere, a cousin of the bride, and Steve Walker, Warroad, a cousin of the groom. Their ruffled shirts and carnation boutonnieres corresponded with the gowns worn by the bride's attendants.

The mother of the bride wore a sleeveless baby blue polyester-knit floor-length gown slit to the knee. An accordion pleated over-lay complemented the gown. She wore a corsage of yellow roses, tipped in green, and white star flowers. The groom's mother was attired in a blue chiffon empire fashioned gown with a tiered skirt enged with white lace. Her corsage of yellow roses was dusted in peach and accented with white star flowers.

Honor guest was Mrs. Virginia Huole, grandmother of the bride. Rhonda Williamson, sister of the groom, was the bride's personal attendant.

A wedding dinner and dance for 250 relatives and friends, followed at the Thief River Falls Country club. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Liden, uncle and aunt of the bride. Ginny Liden, a sister of the bride, registered the guests as Vickie Bjorgaard and Russ Holmaas, friends of the couple, served the punch.

The pillared three-tiered fountain wedding cake, decorated with yellow roses and cherubs, was topped by a heart ornament featuring two white satin bells centered with daisies. On either side of the cake was a heart-shaped cake inscribed with the names of the bride and groom. The cake was baked and decorated by Eunice Severts, Middle River. It was cut and served by Mrs. Ardell Liden, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Ted Walker, aunt of the groom. Pouring coffee were Mrs. Frank Hovald and Mrs. Riley Walker, aunts of the couple.

Waitresses were Kathy Bjerken, Cindy Liden, cousins of the bride; RoseAnn Strandlund, cousin of the groom; Paula Lendobeja and Michelle Wiener, friends of the couple. At the gift table were Linda Timm, cousin of the bride, and Deb Wassink a friend.

For her traveling attire, the bride wore a beige terry jumpsuit made by Paula Lendobeja, a friend of the couple.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and the Thief River Falls AVTI. She is employed at Arctic Enterprises as a keypunch operator. The groom is a graduate of Greenbush high school and is employed by American Crystal Sugar company, Drayton, N.D., as centrifugal operator.

Gertie Hunt Honored On Her 99th Birthday

South lounge on first floor CNC unit at Northwestern hospital was the scene of a birthday party on Friday afternoon, October 10, honoring Mrs. S.E. (Gertie) Hunt on her 99th birthday.

The party hosted by Mrs. Hunt's daughter and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Clarence Williams and Mrs. Gordon Hunt, was attended by a number of relatives and friends as well as residents of the unit.

Pauline Johnson And John Balta Vows Spoken Here

Miss Pauline Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lavern Johnson of Thief River Falls, and John Balta, son of Mr. and Mrs. Yacoub Balta of Los Angeles, Calif., exchanged marriage vows recently in this city at the Seventh-day adventist church.

Rev. Vernon Bergeson officiated at the ceremony. Connie Lund, a friend of the bride, was the organist. She played Lohengrin's "Bridal Chorus," for the processional and "Ode To Joy," as the recessional. Vocalists, Jon and LeAnn Merth, friends of the bride, sang "The Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer," "We'll Walk With God," was sung as the couple knelt at the altar.

Candelabra with ferns and ivory bows graced the chancel. Matching bows marked the pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown which she had sewn of ivory Fantasia with an overlay of ivory Fantasy. The fitted bodice, designed with button and loop closing, featured Victorian lace at the V-neckline and around the raised waistline that dipped in back. Matching lace edged the gathered skirt and chapel-length train. Her lace-edged, chapel-length veil of bridal illusion was held by a headpiece of Victorian lace, hand-embroidered with seed pearls by the bride. She carried a bouquet of ivory chrysanthemums, peach roses, blue sweet peas and babies breath.

Maid of honor was Bonnie Burgeson, Lincoln, Neb., a friend of the bride. Bridesmaids were Candy Farbo, a cousin of the bride, and Miss Brigitte Thackham, Berrien Springs, Mich., future sister-in-law of the bride. They wore peach and ivory floral knit waistdresses with blouson tops with elbow-length sleeves. In their hair, they wore a peach carnation and sprigs of babies' breath. They carried a single ivory rose with greenery and babies' breath.

Albert Balta, Los Angeles, Calif., attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Keith Johnson, Minneapolis, and Dean Johnson, Berrien Springs, Mich., brothers of the bride. The ushers were Gordon Johnson, Lancaster, uncle of the bride; Gary Johnson, brother of the bride, and Craig Farbo, a cousin of the bride. Acolytes were Gary Johnson and Craig Farbo. All wore medium gray tuxedos with black velvet trim, and white carnation boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a light-blue floor-length gown with a deep blue carnation corsage accented with white daisies. Similar attire and corsage was worn by the groom's mother.

A reception in the church parlors—followed with Maynard and Leonette Molskness, friends of the bride, as host and hostess. Assisting at the reception were relatives and friends of the bride. Della Dobkins and Vivian Farbo were wedding coordinators and Orlene Kiesz served as reception coordinator. Carole Cloutier, a cousin, registered the guests as Connie Englund, Karlstad, and Farb Farbo, also cousins, served the punch.

Centering the serving table was a four-tiered spice cake, iced in white in lace effect, and decorated with peach roses and green leaves. On each side was a heart cake inscribed with the names of the couple. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Rudy Martinson. It was cut and served by Helen Schwenzfeier, Hallock, an aunt, and Alice Brummer, Eau Claire, Wis., a cousin. Gift attendants were Linda, Wendy and Kirstin Thorbus, Karlstad, cousins, Nellie Fargo, an aunt.

and Leona Kellerman, who have 30 and 38 years of service as operators, respectively; Peggy Loberg and Harriet Philipp, who served as the local operator services appreciation week committee; and Clarice Collins, manager of operator services. Mrs. Philipp was selected by vote of the local operators as the "Voice With A Smile" — a special recognition during the observance.

"I don't like to see it happen," Leona Kellerman said about the closing of the Thief River Falls switchboard. "I used to work in the local exchange at Roseau when the operator was the center of community activity."

Most people called her 'Central' if they didn't know her first name, and she was expected to know what was going on as well as to place the calls. It was personal service that will probably never be seen again.

"We even took calls for the local veterinarian," Leona recalls, "so he could have a list of where he was needed next. When someone would go to a neighbor's place or to another business, we would transfer the calls."

"I remember a lady in Williams calling the operator to tell us she was home," Mae Hjelle added. "I don't think she knew the operator was in Thief River Falls, but she wanted us to know it was all right for us to put her calls through.

"And we still get any number of calls from youngsters who tell us 'I wanna call Grandma' or 'Where's my mommy?' If it sounds like a problem we will try to help out. There are an awfully lot of young kids left at home alone."

It is not only the young who seek assistance from the operators. Twice a year when the time changes from standard to daylight saving time and back again, operators receive calls from primarily elderly people who have been sitting up until the official change at 2 a.m. and want to know "is it time yet?"

"It's the obscene calls that I don't like," one of the operators said. "We probably average two or more of those a night, and they're not just from kids. We cut them off as soon as we can, but you wouldn't believe the things people will say when they can be anonymous and not have to see you face to face."

But the annoyance calls are made up for by the "Merry Christmas" and "Happy New Year" greetings that operators receive from caring and sharing telephone customers. And by the information from excited new fathers about their offspring as they place long-distance calls to share the news.

"We get asked for answers to crossword puzzles," Peggy Loberg said, "and to settle arguments or give advice on places to eat or stay or get a gas tank filled. Lots of times we can help because we know our own communities. When we're gone, who is a stranger going to call? What about emergencies when we can call ambulances or law enforcement people?"

Operators say they have to use good judgment in responding to requests, and to maintain their composure and try to be pleasant. It isn't always easy.

"Like when you're really busy at the board and someone who has had to wait for a few seconds greets you with, 'Were you out for coffee?' " Harriet Philipp noted. The others agreed.

"They don't realize it," Mae Hjelle added, "but comments like that just hold up their call that much longer."

The company tries to anticipate peak calling periods and staff accordingly. Opening of the hunting and fishing seasons usually generate a number of operator-assisted calls in this area, as do conventions, celebrations and some holidays. The night shift is sometimes a lonely one with only a few calls from 11 p.m. to 6:30 a.m.

"The hardest part of the job is working the holidays," Peggy Loberg added. "You realize that there are other jobs where people have to be away from their families on holidays, but you never really like it yourself."

The operator is there to provide assistance, however, Leona Kellerman remembers receiving a call for assistance from a young housewife who had company coming for the holiday and didn't know how to bake a turkey. Operator services to the rescue. . . Leona drew on her experience to help the young lady save the day.

And there are always the unexpected events that trigger a flurry of switchboard activity. Leona and Mae remember the John F. Kennedy assassination and how their boards "lit up like a Christmas tree". It was probably their busiest time ever as operators.

"Things have surely changed," Clarice Collins admits. "I can remember when the phone company office was located above the Union State bank (now First Northwestern). It used to be unbearably hot up there in the summer. We would have big tubs of ice with fans blowing over them to try and keep it a little cooler."

Gone now are the tubs of ice, the electrical shocks which operators received during rain storms, the dress code which determined how operators looked when they entered and left the office.

Gone soon will be the local operators who, being human, will connect the caller looking for a VW dealer with the VFW club or ask if she may have your clothes instead of the number you want to call.

But they have provided us with an abundance of services over the years and this week — especially this week — we want them to know we appreciate it.

City Acts On CETA Project And Fire Plan

C-2 (Highway commercial) for a parcel of ground located between the Country Inn and the future Production Credit Association (PCA) building on Highway 59 southeast was approved.

Third planning commission appeal was returned to the board of zoning appeals for further consideration. This proposal concerned a variance request by Marvin Johnson to the Capital Improvements section of the city subdivision regulations, according to Jack Quinlivan, city planner.

Variance request was called for following Johnson's inability to become annexed to the city, Quinlivan said.

Following the introduction of a resolution by alderman Clayton Restad, it was resolved that the suggested rate of $25 per year and $2.50 per dump be accepted within the ordinance providing for the licensing of parties depositing septic tank wastes in the city sewage system.

The matter of the paratransit bus service in Thief River Falls was discussed by Morris Owen, although no action was taken on the proposal last evening. Preliminary figures for the service presented by Owen included $5,191.80 designated as the city's share of the costs, and $3,461.20 as Pennington county's share. Total Pennington county share is $8,653 which is one-third of the total $25,960 operating deficit, he stated. It was noted that figures and services pertain only to Pennington county.

Parking assessment district project hearing on the final assessment role was set for November 18 at 7:30 p.m.

Council members reminded those present of local Government Day activities scheduled for October 21. Thief River Falls fire hall open house has been set for that day from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Next regular city council meeting was set for October 28 at 7:30 p.m.

Pennington Co. DHIA Lists Top Producers

Jerry Hamre, supervisor of the Pennington County Dairy Herd Improvement association, lists the following herds as top in the association for the months of June and July:

In first place in June was Darrow Lundeen and sons, whose herd produced an average of 52.2 pounds of milk and 1.90 pounds of butterfat; followed by Warren and Lowell Hamrick, 50.4 and 1.89; Duane Krohn, 50.0 and 1.82; Knute Nesland, 49.5 and 1.82; Pearson Brothers Farm, 47.9 and 1.87; Duane Vatsaas, 46.7 and 1.77; Mylo Carlson, 46.4 and 1.79; Merle Lundeen, 46.2 and 1.60; Robert Rausch, 45.2 and 1.65; and Hanson Heritage, 45.2 and 1.52.

In first place in July was Knute Nesland, whose herd produced an average of 58.2 pounds of milk and 2.02 pounds of butterfat, followed by Darrow Lundeen & Sons, 52.6 and 1.78; Gene Nelson, 51.0 and 1.90; Leland Nelson, 48.1 and 1.72; Hanson Heritage, 47.9 and 1.49; Duane Krohn, 47.6 and 1.68; Gordon Wetterlund & Son, 47.4 and 1.73; W & L Hamrick, 47.3 and 1.80; Mylo Carlson, 45.5 and 1.73; and Pearson Brothers Farm, 43.9 and 1.70;

Herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. Amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all the cows, giving the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month. If many dry cows are included in the herd, the average for the month may be low, even though the cows which are milking are high producers.

There are 29 DHIA herds and five owner-sampler herds on test during both months for a total of 34 herds on test. In June there were 21 cows that completed records with over 625 pounds of fat in 305 days or less. In July there were 13 cows that completed records with over 625 pounds of fat in 305 days or less.

Reading Council Hosts Workshop Here Oct. 23

A reading workshop hosted by the North Star Reading council will be conducted October 23 at the Franklin middle school in Thief River Falls. Teachers and interested parents are invited to attend.

Reading is the priority subject, but some of the mini-sessions will concern several other reading-related subjects. There will be some particularly suited for parents who want to help their children learn to read.

Eighteen speakers have been scheduled to give mini-sessions of one-half hour each between the hours of 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. Among them are professors from the University of North Dakota's center for teaching and learning; Dr. Ruth Gallant, Dr. Sherry Digby and Dr. Sheldon Schmidt; and from the University of Minnesota in Crookston, Gretchen Starks, reading director.

Of interest to parents is a mini-session entitled "Parent and Child Together." Teachers and parents of northwest Minnesota are encouraged to attend this workshop. A light supper will be served in the school dining room.

Crookston Man Cited For Not Filing Taxes

A Crookston man was indicted October 10 by a U.S. grand jury in St. Paul on charges of failing to file federal income tax returns.

Edwin A. Beiswenger Jr., 30, Crookston, was charged with failing to file federal tax returns for 1974 and 1975.

U.S. attorney Tom Berg said, according to the indictment, that Beiswenger had gross income of more than $2,050 in 1974 and more than $3,400 in 1975. Those dollar amounts were the minimum filing requirements for the two respective years.

If Beiswenger is found guilty of the charges, he faces a maximum sentence of not more than two years in jail and a $20,000 fine, Berg said.

Former Thief River Falls resident Lloyd H. Johnson, now manager of turbine control systems engineering for General Electric corporation, was pictured recently in the company's Schenectady, N.Y., "GE News".

Johnson, a graduate of Lincoln high school and the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, was shown explaining the details of testing equipment to vice premier Bo Yibo of China.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. E.L. Johnson of Thief River Falls, Lloyd is married to the former Jane Hunt, daughter of the Ralph Hunts of this city. They live at Scotia, N.Y. He has been with GE for about 30 years.

Marshall Co. Temperance Unit To Meet

Board of directors of the Marshall county temperance organization will sponsor an open meeting for discussion of issues Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Evangelical Free church in Newfolden, according to LeRoy Knutson, chairman.

"Temperance has been defined as moderation in what is good and abstinence in what which is bad," he said. "Alcoholic beverages can only be classified as bad, therefore we take our stand on total abstinence. We invite all concerned citizens to the Tuesday meeting for an informed discussion and to learn some of what we plan to do."

Members of the Women's Christian Temperance union will serve lunch.

In 1791, Philadelphia carpenters struck unsuccessfully in May for a 10-hour day and additional pay for overtime. This was the first recorded strike of workers in the building trades, according to a U.S. Department of Labor publication, "Important Events in American Labor History."

Governor Will Speak To Good Roads Ass'n.

Governor Al Quie will be the featured luncheon speaker at Minnesota Good Roads' annual meeting to be held Wednesday, October 22, at the Thunderbird motel, Bloomington.

The annual meeting program will begin with a panel discussion at 10 a.m. with guest panelists from roads associations in Texas, Kentucky, Wisconsin and Iowa, moderated by Herbert O. Kloesner, MGRI board member and director of the Hennepin county department of transportation.

Panelists will describe several road funding alternatives which have been tried in their states with varying degrees of success. Many of those alternatives — such as the index gasoline tax, sales tax on fuel, and reallocation of the sales tax on transportation-related purchases — have been suggested as solutions to Minnesota's road funding problems.

Governor Quie will speak on highway transportation needs in Minnesota and funding sources under consideration to fill those needs. For additional information, contact Minnesota Good Roads, (612) 379-7227.

Minnesota Good Roads, Inc., is an association of 2,400 concerned citizens working together to ensure adequate funding to maintain the quality of Minnesota's road system. The group actively supported the successful measure to increase the state fuel tax during the 1980 legislative session and is currently supporting acceptance of the constitutional amendment to lift restrictions on highway-bonding.

TETRACYCLINE STAINED TEETH

Tetracyclines — a group of infection-fighting antibiotics — can produce staining of children's teeth if they are given during the time when the primary teeth are forming. According to the National Institute of Health, if tetracycline is given to a woman during her last trimester of pregnancy, or to an infant during the first three months of life, discoloration of dentin of baby's teeth could occur. The resulting stains are then visible as soon as the baby teeth erupt. The sensitive period of tetracycline-induced staining of the permanent teeth occurs between the ages of 3 months and 8 years. These stains may not become visible for several years.

Although the stains are permanent, the enamel of the teeth is seldom weakened, and, therefore, the teeth function well. It is not a health hazard and if properly cared for, teeth — stained or not — can last a lifetime.

There are some cosmetic treatments for tetracycline-stained teeth, however, the best treatment is prevention. Parents should discuss with their doctors the use of alternative drugs during late pregnancy or early childhood.

four years, and a member of the park board. He recently received his 50-year Jewel pin for his work with the Masons; he has been a member of the Elks for 48 years and is a member of the Lion's club.

It seems inevitable that he will have more than enough to do in the years that lie ahead of him. Yet, when one is suddenly faced with the realization that retirement has arrived, it perhaps would be difficult to "figure out."

"I'm going to be lost not being able to get up and go to work each morning," he smiled.

Harry has "always been satisfied" with his job, he claimed.

"I have always dealt with the public and I enjoy meeting people," he said.

In the beginning, retail stores were owned by Hartz, but later were sold to retailers as the Hartz stores went straight to wholesaling.

In 1945 L.B. Hartz became incorporated under the name of United Industries Inc., as the business held controlling interest in other businesses, some successful and others not, Harry stated. Its first board of directors included L.B. Hartz, Harriet Hartz, Jim Winjum Sr., Archie Hensrud and Simons.

Later the name was changed to L.B. Hartz Wholesale Inc. (1954 to be exact, Harry added).

Harry was secretary and part-time secretary-treasurer of the corporation since it first organized, he said.

Harry feels that the most satisfying time in his life was when he sparked the idea of forming a Hartz foundation to make gifts available to religious, educational and other charitable organizations. He was impressed with Jim Hill at the time — the American financier and railway promoter. He had heard about Hill and his foundations, had obtained literature on them, and had mentioned the idea casually to L.B., who, after consideration, came to believe the idea made sense. In 1953, the foundation was formed.

Harry doesn't think he would change a thing if he had his life to live over again, he stated contentedly.

"The only thing that might be different would be if I could have gotten into the grocery business sooner," he said.

It was in 1931 when Harry moved to Thief River Falls. Since that time he has become involved in a "little bit of nearly everything."

His comfortable home displays his past through the many certificates and awards lining his walls, and his numerous collections and projects — all bearing some significance to his past.

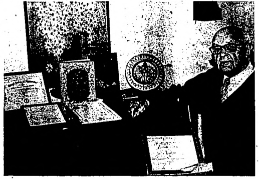
Simons has two children, Marshall and Harry Jr.



HARRY E. SIMONS is still trying to "figure out" what he will do following his retirement from L.B. Hartz Wholesale Inc. of Thief River Falls after 47 years. But the many organizations which he has belonged to throughout the year, along with his many collections and projects left unfinished due to his dedication to his job, seem to provide him with an assortment of activities in his future. "Maybe I can catch up on some of the things I never had time for before," he said.

Marshall has taken over his father's position as head accountant at L.B. Hartz Wholesale. He and his wife, Lois, have three children. Harry Jr. is a music instructor in Boise, Idaho. He and his wife, Sue, have a son, David.

Many unforgettable memories are behind Harry, yet many more reach ahead of him. Hunting and fishing which he "used to do a lot of" have tapered off, as have some of his other hobbies. "You get to a point where things start to taper off," he said.

But Harry is content with his "good life".

"Everything I've done has been interesting," he said. "I would have had more work than I wanted if I didn't enjoy it. The nice thing about it is I've had a lot of good friends over the years. If you live long enough you can get your fingers into everything."

And Harry Simons has.

47 years of service

Voters Reject Bond Issue Four-To-One

engaged in this type of citizen input activity for about the past year and one-half, we will have to reach agreement on what level of educational facilities are acceptable to the residents of this district."

Cecil Anderson, who worked actively with a citizens' group to oppose passage of the $15 million issue, agreed that a high school space problem exists and that something must be done.

"I can only speak for myself," he told the Times this morning, "but I think everyone on our committee agrees there is a problem. What it will take now is for everyone to sit down together and work out a solution. I'm sure there are members of our group who would be willing to help arrive at an acceptable project that could meet the need."

WILD ROAST GOOSE

Dress the fowl 24 hours before using, and soak in salt-water 2 hours before cooking; make a mashed-potato dressing, seasoned with onion, vegetable oil, pepper and salt; fill the body of the goose, grease it all over well with vegetable oil and dredge with flour; place in a pan, with 1 pint of water. Baste well, and cook 2 hours. Serve with onion gravy and apple sauce.

POTATO DRESSING

Beat lightly 2 cupfuls of mashed potatoes; add ¼ cup of cream, 1 tablespoonful of vegetable oil. Workshop Here To Help Train Puppeteers

Training is being offered in the use of puppets, some of which are handicapped, at a free three-day workshop October 23, 24 and 25 in room 120 at the area vocational technical institute on highway 1 east of Thief River Falls.

Training is being provided by the Parent Advocacy Coalition for Educational Rights (PACER, INC) a non-profit corporation funded by grants from the bureau of education for the handicapped. The project is being co-sponsored by the Northwest regional development commission's developmental disabilities advisory board, Northwest educational cooperative service unit and the Region 1 association for retarded citizens.

Puppets used for the training are the "Kids on the Block" designed by Barb Ajello and starred with Gary Burghoff (MASH's "Radar") on their own nationally televised CBS special, "The Invisible Children."

Volunteers interested in helping both handicapped and non-handicapped children are needed to learn the art of Bunraku (hand and rod) puppetry. Puppet training is based on the experience that people want to learn about handicapped people but there is a fear about asking the people themselves. Puppets provide the opportunity for youngsters to ask questions which they wouldn't ask adults or other handicapped children.

After training at the workshop, volunteers will be asked to be available to perform for schools in their geographic area. More information is available from Sari Clark, 425 Woodland Avenue, Crookston, MN, 281-1396.

You wait out the rains and fight the floods. You sweat out the drought. And you still manage to keep a step ahead of the bank.

That's why we need to keep a State Senator who understands farming and agriculture.

Marv Hanson is that kind of State Senator. He authored legislation that repealed Minnesota's gift tax and sponsored inheritance tax revisions to keep Minnesota farm families in business.

Concerned about rising farm real estate taxes, Marv has proposed that farmland valuations be based on what those lands can produce for a farmer and his family. He does not believe speculative sales prices are a fair basis for assessing ag lands. He wants a change.

Marv Hanson worked to inflation-proof the tax structure. Tax brackets now adjust with inflation. No more automatic tax increases. Agriculture is the basic industry in Minnesota. Re-elect a State Senator who understands that.

Load Control Devices Placed By Otter Tail

Otter Tail Power company's five-year plan to install FM radio-activited load-control devices on its customers' water-heating, dual-fuel and heat-storage systems has now begun, according to company president R.M. Bigwood.

"We've been testing various devices and operating methods since 1976," Bigwood said. "The Apparatus and methods that should result in the most economical, effective, and convenient load control for our customers and for our company were selected, and the hardware is now starting to arrive," he continued.

There is no charge for the conversion except when a customer chooses to modify his or her service entrance. Otter Tail's conversion plan has the necessary regulatory approvals.

Otter Tail is a leader in load control, Bigwood pointed out, having had time clocks on water heater meters since the 1930's. Most of the company's heat-storage and dual-fuel customers also have separate meters and time-temperature clocks for those loads, as do some industrial and commercial loads.

The more modern FM radio-activated controls will replace most time clocks now in use. Customers with electric water heating, heat storage and dual-fuel heating systems not on separate meters will be encouraged to meter these loads separately and accept FM radio control, Bigwood said.

The devices will be operated by Otter Tail's load dispatchers. Typically, the dispatchers will turn off controlled load during peaking periods on very cold or very hot days. However, the primary advantage of radio control by human operators over time-temperature controls is that human judgment can take other factors into account, such as the day of the week, wind conditions, and the extent of the cold or warm spell. Radio control might also assist the dispatchers in adjusting to storm damage, plant outages or other emergencies.

"Radio control should entail much less inconvenience to customers than the old time clocks did," Bigwood stressed, "and they did an acceptable job for most situations. We expect radio control to do even better, especially by permitting more hours of service."

The first 4,000 receivers will be installed this year in the company's Fergus Falls and Canby divisions in Minnesota and the Wahpeton and Oakes divisions in North Dakota and the Milbank division in South Dakota.

Each customer, as he or she is scheduled for conversion, will receive a letter containing specifics pertaining to his or her conversion, Bigwood said. The only customers excluded from the program are those who can't be reached by the FM radio signal or who don't have electric water heating, off-peak heat storage or dual-fuel heating systems.

"While the commitment to this radio-controlled load-management program is a major expense in hardware and installation costs," Bigwood said, "it is in the national interest to develop load-control systems wherever possible. Also, this program will enable our customers to qualify for the most advantageous rate, and controlling our peak loads helps us to keep everyone's rate down by deferring new plant construction," Bigwood concluded.

13th Sunflower Bowl Set At UMC Oct. 18

A bevy of Homecoming queens from area high schools will lend a touch of class and beauty to the 13th annual Sunflower Bowl at the University of Minnesota — Crookston (UMC). the college will be observing the traditional fall event Saturday (October 18).

Under the sponsorship of Dahlgren & Co., one of the nation's leading firms in the growth and processing of sunflowers, UMC's Sunflower Bowl is designed to honor the entire spectrum within the sunflower industry for contributing significantly to the agricultural economy of the Red River Valley. Joining in the celebration as a co-sponsor again this year will be Town & Country for Women, of Crookston and Grand Forks. The women's fashion store will be providing gift certificates for all young ladies entered in the competition for the title of 1980 Miss Sunflower Bowl.

Among those vying for the queen's crown this year are Carol Fanfulik, representing Fisher high school; Lea Glad, Lancaster; Corey Holt, Grand Forks Central; Renee Montreuil, Crookston Central; Gaylene Narlock, Alvarado; Tina Renfrew, Borup; and Diane Thompson, Erskine. More than 50 high schools throughout northwestern Minnesota and eastern North Dakota are invited each year to send a representative for the day.

Contestants are judged primarily on personality, charm, poise and responsiveness to extemporaneous questions. Each is interviewed individually by a panel of three judges, comprised this fall of Jill (Mrs. Mario) Schisano, Jeannine (Mrs. Harvey) Windels, and Glenn Houske, all of Crookston.

Name of the new queen is revealed during halftime ceremonies of the Sunflower Bowl game. Gridiron clash, which kicks off at 3 p.m. at Lincoln field in Crookston, will pit the UMC Trojans against the Ironmen of Vermilion community college. At halftime all of the queen candidates are escorted to the platform in front of the home team's grandstands where the judges' decision is then announced.

1979 Miss Sunflower Bowl, Diane Ekdahl of Kennedy, who is now a freshman at Moorhead state university, will crown this year's monarch. Following the coronation ceremony, UMC Provost S.D. Sahlstrom will present the 1980 queen with a floral bouquet.

Dr. and Mrs. Sahlstrom will also host a post-game reception for the new titlist and her court at their home. All entrants in the queen competition are considered to be attendants to the ultimate winner.

Sunflower Bowl is coordinated each year by the UMC office of university relations.

BEGINNER DIVISION winner at the dog obedience class graduation Wednesday evening in the Thief River Falls sports arena was "Trixy", a poodle crossbred owned and trained by Lesley Vrudny.

Area Sessions To Deal With Sexual Abuse

Prevention of sexual abuse of children will be the topic of informational sessions for parents and for professionals who deal with children in Detroit Lakes this fall, plus four other Minnesota locations. Sessions are sponsored by the Minnesota department of public welfare (DPW).

In recent years, awareness of sexual abuse of children has increased. DPW estimates that it constitutes between 24 and 40 per cent of all incidents of child abuse. Hennepin county attorney's office reported that in 1977, 47 per cent of the sexual assault cases it prosecuted were committed against children under the age of 14.

While scattered findings point uniformly to the importance of teaching awareness and prevention even to very young children, DPW officials say many parents, teachers and human service professionals avoid doing so because it is a difficult subject for them to discuss, and because they are afraid of frightening children "unnecessarily." Likewise, they say, children will not discuss sexual abuse in order to avoid frightening or upsetting adults, or out of a sense of guilt and fear.

Child abuse and neglect prevention project at DPW has contracted with the Illusion theater in order to offer programs in rural Minnesota to help ease these communication problems.

Program for parents and the general public will be on Monday, November 17, at 7 p.m., at the Detroit Lakes Jr. high school auditorium.

Day-long conference for human service professionals and teachers, "Child Abuse: Communicating with Children," will be held on Tuesday, November 18, at 8:30 a.m., at the Detroit Lakes Holiday Inn. Conference is designed to acquaint participants with concepts for talking with children about the issues of sexual abuse.

Topics for the conference include facts and myths about child sexual abuse; methods of teaching prevention; how to assist children in distinguishing positive, nurturing touch from negative, exploitive touch, and how to work with child victims. TOUCH will also be presented during this conference.

Moderator for the conference will be Cordelia A. Kent, director of Applied theater for Illusion theater. Kent and Illusion have presented lectures and training sessions on local, state and national levels throughout the past three years. Audiences and participants have included children, parents, community organizations, and law enforcement, legal, educational, social service and medical personnel.

Services of Illusion theater are an outgrowth of a collaborative prevention project with the office of the Hennepin county attorney, Sexual Assault services, entitled the 'Child Sexual Abuse Prevention Project'. This project has been piloted in the Minneapolis public schools, and used as a basis for training programs across the nation.

This one and one-half-day residency by Illusion theater will be sponsored by the Minnesota department of public welfare at five sites this fall: Winona, Detroit Lakes, St. Cloud, Worthington and Grand Rapids.

Swimmers Having Strong Season

There is still over a month of regular season competition remaining, but it already appears that the 1980 Section 3 girls high school swimming meet will have three or four very evenly matched teams battling for championship honors November 25-26 at Bemidji State University.

A year ago Moorhead ended Thief River Falls' domination by winning the Section 3 title with 231 points, followed by Brainerd 216 and Thief River Falls 188. The Prowlers had won Section 3 meets in 1975, 1977 and 1978, while finishing third, a mere two points behind co-champions Brainerd and St. Cloud Tech, in 1976.

The defending champion Spuds were made early season favorites for Section 3 honors again this fall.

"Moorhead is still the favorite, but they better be careful," warned Thief River Falls coach John Hustad. "The section is really tightening up. Moorhead, Brainerd and Fergus Falls will all be close, and I wouldn't count us out, either."

Hustad was very pleased with the way the Prowlers swam in an invitational meet at Brainerd Saturday even though the host Warriors appeared to be easy winners with 274 points, followed by Bloomington Lincoln 255 and Thief River Falls 245 in the five-team affair.

"They really swam well, I was really pleased; in fact, I couldn't believe how well they swam," said Hustad, noting the fact that the Prowlers left Thief River Falls at 5 a.m. the morning after homecoming, and the finals of the Brainerd invitational weren't started until some 14 hours later. Hustad got back home at 4 a.m. Sunday.

And, he pointed out, if you take the Brainerd invitational times and compute them into a dual meet situation the Warriors beat the Prowlers by just 89-83.

Hustad says the 1980 season has been a pleasant surprise. "It's really been a good year — much better than expected," he confessed. "We don't have the powerful firsts and seconds — except for Brenda — but we're getting the depth."

Brenda is senior Brenda Lund, one of the finest divers in the state. She's unbeaten this year.

The Prowlers are also strong in the 200-yard freestyle where senior Kathy Dillon is complemented by senior Joan Giauque, sophomore Mary Geatz and eighth grader Shelley McGann; the 50-yard freestyle where senior Betsie Hallstrom's sure points are backed by sophomore Sarah Green; the 100-yard butterfly with McGann; and diving where juniors Lisa Desrocher and Lori Swanson join Lund.

But to close the gap on Moorhead, said Hustad, "we have to keep them from taking one and two in the I.M. (200-yard individual medley) and we have to get our breaststrokers in gear. I think we're capable of improving in both events."

Senior Andrea Lia and sophomore Shari McGann swim the I.M. for the Prowlers while senior Franki Kuyath and junior Robyn Dallmann compete in the breaststroke.

Thief River Falls swam poorly in losing a 96-73 dual meet at Moorhead Sept. 30. But the Prowlers have another shot at the Spuds. In fact, Thief River Falls will be facing all three Section 3 rivals — Moorhead, Brainerd and Fergus Falls — in dual meet situations over the final four weeks of the 1980 season. The Prowlers' next action will feature Fergus Falls Thursday, Oct. 23, in the Franklin middle school pool. Thief River Falls will be at Brainerd Friday, Oct. 31, and Moorhead will be here Thursday, Nov. 6.

"We'll get a good indication where we stand next Thursday," said Hustad, looking ahead to the 5 p.m. encounter with the Otters.

Miscellaneous

+ Should either Crookston or Thief River Falls be in contention for the 1980 Northwest Athletic Conference football title going into the final week of the season, the Friday, Oct. 24, game at Crookston will be moved up to give the NWAC champion extra preparation time heading into the Class A state playoffs. The Prowlers and Pirates will likely meet Thursday, Oct. 30.

Bemidji Wins NWAC Races

Bemidji continued its domination of the Northwest Atehltic Conference cross country meet Tuesday by winning its fourth straight boys title, and adding the girls crown in the first year of NWAC girls competition.

The Lumberjacks took the boys race with 32 points, followed by Thief River Falls 49, East Grand Forks 69, Fergus Falls 104 and Crookston 107.

Individually, Brian Kraft of Bemidji out-ran 41 other runners for a first-place 14:15 clocking. Thief River Falls' Bruce Johnson ran third in 14:53.

Meanwhile, the Lumberjills won the girls event with 33 points, followed by Thief River Falls 42 and East Grand Forks 69, with Fergus Falls and Crookston fielding incomplete teams.

Stacy Slapnicher of Bemidji led the girls with a 12:11 effort. Thief River Falls' Susie Hanna placed fourth with a 13:05.

The two runner-up finishers Prowlers made it a frustrating day for the Prowlers, who had championship visions going into the meet at East Grand Forks.

"All of our kids ran a beck of a race," noted Thief River Falls coach Lynn Dyer. "They knew exactly what they had to do in the meet in order to win it. We figured out on paper what places we needed in the boys and girls varsity meets, and those kids went out and placed almost exactly where I asked them to. The only problem was Bemidji just out-ran us."

"I really felt bad for our runners," said Dyer, "because they tried so hard but still came up short. But I

Fri., Oct. 17 — East Grand Forks at Thief River Falls; Crookston at Bemidji, Montevideo at Fergus Falls.

Athletic director Russ Smith is praying for a break in the weather to rebuild his gate receipts that have taken a beating this fall because of rain, wind and cold. But football coach John Schmitz, who had a smile frozen on his face after watching his Prowlers defeat Fergus Falls 21-6 in the bone-chilling wind last week, isn't as concerned about Mother Nature as the Lincoln high school football team prepares to host East Grand Forks in the Prowlers' final home appearnce of the 1980 season. Friday's Northwest Athletic Conference game will start at 7:30 p.m.

"I wouldn't mind another hurricane if we could get the same results," quipped Schmitz, whose Prowlers are 5-2 overall and 1-1 in the NWAC where they are in the thick of a three-way pennant chase with Crookston and Bemidji. Those two meet Friday at Bemidji, with the winner guaranteed at least a conference title tie. Thief River Falls needs a win over East Grand Forks and a victory at Crookston in the season finale to gain a share of the crown that last held in 1972. An added bonus is a Class A state playoff berth that will go to the NWAC champion.

"The desire to be in the playoffs is certainly there," said Schmitz, who indicated the conference race and the playoff picture have added incentive, not pressure, to the final weeks of the season.

Weather-wise, Thief River Falls might well benefit from another wintery episode Friday that could handcuff East Grand Forks' Jeff Strandell, who has the most impressive statistics for any quarterback in the Northwest Athletic Conference. The 5-10, 165-pound senior has racked up some 1,014 yards running or throwing the football this fall. He has carried the ball 79 times for 352 yards and has completed 33 of 83 passes for 662 yards and seven touchdowns. But in the rain and wind last week, Strandell was 0-for-7 passing and was held to 56 yards rushing as the Green Wave dropped a 27-14 decision to Bemidji.

"Strandell is a very good quarterback," warns Schmitz. "He's got a really nice touch when he throws the ball — a nice catchable pass. And he runs very well."

Robbie Sorenson, a 5-10, 177-pound senior, ranks second to Strandell on the East Grand Forks rushing charts with 276 yards, with Paul Bothun contributing 266 and Mike Williams 164. Bothun and Williams are both strong receivers, too, with 11 and 10 catches, respectively, for a combined 347 yards. Troy Laidley, a 5-9, 155-pound senior, has averaged 22.9 yards on his nine pass receptions and he returned a kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown against Bemidji.

"It should be a good football game," noted Schmitz. "We're pretty close as far as speed and size go. We're going to have to play well; if we don't we'll get blown right off the field."

Pleased with the Prowlers' defensive effort against Fergus Falls, Schmitz hopes the Thief River Falls offense gets back into gear against East Grand Forks. The once-feared Thief River Falls option offense has been limited a great deal to inside runs by fullback Scott Kezar, who has rushed for 115 of his 432 yards against NWAC foes Bemidji and Fergus Falls. Meanwhile, quarterback Scott Wiebolt, who rushed for an impressive 467 yards in five non-conference games, has been held to a minus-19 yards in two NWAC starts.

"They (opponents) have been stacking us outside — taking out outside game away from us," acknowledged Schmitz. "And last week we didn't want to pitch the ball too often because we didn't know how the wind would affect the ball. Hopefully we can get our outside game going again; it's an important part of our offense."

Thief River Falls will be without the services of Kevin Grochow Friday. The Prowlers' kickoff man, Grochow injured a toe in gym class this week.

NWAC Notes

+ Steve Johnson of Crookston and Pat Erhart of Bemidji share the NWAC scoring lead with 24 points apiece. John Herath and Troy Hendricks of Bemidji, along with Dan Snustad of Fergus Falls, each have 18 points. Johnson has a huge lead in the overall scoring race, though, with 104 points. Erhart and Wiebolt trail with 54 apiece.

+ Mark Beer of Bemidji is the NWAC rushing leader with 213 yards. Brent Weiss of Crookston has 205 and Pat Erhart of Bemidji 203. But again, Johnson is the runaway leader in all games with 952 yards. Weiss has 632 and Erhart has 529.

+ Wiebolt leads the NWAC in passing yardage, hitting 13 of 30 attempts for 179 yards. Strandell is 11-for-32 for 172 yards. In all games, Strandell is 33-for-83 for 662 yards and Snustad is 37-for-91 for 405 yards.

+ Scott Mesker of Fergus Falls leads the NWAC in pass receiving with nine catches, good for 110 yards. Hendricks has caught eight passes for 79 yards. Overall, they've both pulled in 14 passes, with Mesker totaling 194 yards and Hendricks 171.

+ Brian Bachmeier of Crookston leads the NWAC punting charts, averaging 39.3 yards on seven punts. Dean Dokkin of Thief River Falls is the overall leader, averaging 37.6 yards on 23 punts.

+ Tom Lundeen of Fergus Falls leads the NWAC in punt return yardage with three returns for 21 yards, while Laidley is the top kickoff returner based on his one return that went for 95 yards and a touchdown. Overall, Williams has returned seven punts for 103 yards while Snustad has returned nine kickoffs for 155 yards.

+ Crookston leads the NWAC offensive team charts, averaging 332.7 yards per game, followed by Thief River Falls 268.3; Bemidji 262.6; East Grand Forks 254.0; and Fergus Falls 174.9.

+ Crookston is also the defensive leader, giving up just 175.3 yards per game, followed by Bemidji 203.1; East Grand Forks 209.3; Fergus Falls 229.7; and Thief River Falls 253.7.

Spuds Handle Prowlers 2-0

Moorhead put down an early Thief River Falls threat and rolled to a 2-0 victory over the Prowlers Tuesday in a high school volleyball match played on the Spuds' courts.

Thief River Falls opened with 6-0 first game lead, but lost it 18-12. Moorhead then dominated play in an 18-4 second game victory.

"They were playing real good volleyball," said Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss of the Prowlers' strong start, "but then they let it get away from them."

Thief River Falls never even made it through its serving rotation in the second game. "They couldn't receive serves," reported Stauss, "and at this stage of the season you shouldn't have trouble like that anymore."

The defeat dropped Thief River Falls' season record to 6-7. The Prowlers visit Crookston Tuesday for a 7:30 p.m. match.

It was a clean sweep for Moorhead last night. The Spuds won the junior varsity match 18-7, 18-20, 18-5 and took the C squad event 18-2, 18-3. Thief River Falls is 5-6 in junior varsity play this fall, 0-10 in C squad matches.

Schedule

Sat., Oct. 18 — Northland vs. Itasca at Coleraine; Vermilion at Crookston, Hibbing at Golden Valley Lutheran; Mesabi at Brainerd.

Northland community college football team didn't put any points on the scoreboard in a 28-0 loss to Fergus Falls last week, but the offensvie unit of the Northmen showed signs of coming out of a prelonged dry spell, accroding to head coach John Helley, who is hoping Northland will finally get untracked offensively Saturday in a 1:30 p.m. MJCAA Northern Division football game against Itasca. The game will be played in Coleraine, a short drive from the Viking's Grand Rapids home base.

"I was impressed with our first half against Fergus Falls," noted Helley, whose Northmen trailed the unbeaten Northern Division-leading Spartans 14-0 at intermission. "I thought our offense was starting to put it together."

The defeat dropped Northland to 1-3-1 for the year, but Helley said, "I'm not as disappointed this week as I was before. I think we're still solid on defense, and offensively it's just a matter of trying to execute the plays properly. We've got to eliminate the mistakes and get some momentum going."

The fact remains, though, that Northland's offense hasn't scored a touchdown in three weeks, and has only three touchdowns for the year. An Itasca, according to sources, fields a strong defense.

However, Brainerd outscored Itasca 30-22 last week, while Golden Valley Lutheran knocked off Vermilion 13-3 and Mesabi surprised previously unbeaten Crookston 19-7.

This week Mesabi will be at Brainerd, Hibbing at Golden Valley Lutheran and Vermilion at Crookston.

Northland's injury list includes sophomore offensive guard Brian Hourigan, who has reinjured a knee; freshman fullback John Dillon, who is nursing an ankel injury; and freshman linebacker Todd Tangen, slowed by a groin pull. In addition, assistant coach John Anderson, a student teacher in the Thief River Falls school system, was struck in the eye with a ball in a freakish playground accident that has him sidelined.

Pheasant Outlook

Pheasant population in Minnesota has shown a large increase this year. East-central Minnesota has shown the biggest gain — 129 per cent over the past four years.

Chisago County has the largest roadside count — 383 in 75 miles. Washington county had 332 in 50 miles.

Other roadside counts included Isanti county — 237 in 75 miles; Kanabec county — 216 in 50 miles; Anoka county — 160 birds in 50 miles.

In the southeastern section of the state, Dodge county had a 50 mile roadside count of 248. Dakota county's count over the same distance was 130 pheasants while Mower county had a count of 132.

West-central section of Minnesota shows an impressive increase. In Big Stone county 384 birds were counted in 25 miles. Chippewa County has 236 birds in 50 miles while Lac Qui Parle was in third place with 144 birds in 75 miles. Caver county in central Minnesota registered 238 pheasants in 50 miles.

Pheasant season opens October 25.

There are many good pheasant areas near the Twin Cities. In addition to Washington and Chisago Counties you'll find birds along the Minnesota river bottoms near Savage and Shakopee. This area has been productive in recent years. Paul Fahlin of Paul's Landing on Lake Minetonka has had reports of good pheasant populations in the Maple Plaine and Delano areas. The birds are to be found along the railroad tracks.

Statewide count of ruffed grouse showed an increase of ten per cent. Northeast and northern Minnesota were stable. Northwest Minnesota showed an increase of 12 per cent.

Central hardwood area had an increase of 46 per cent. This area includes Becker, Ottertail, Wadena, Todd, Morrison, Benton, Sherburne, Isanti, Chisago and Anoka counties.

Registration Underway For 1980 I-500

Bruce Olson, 22, Mondovi, Wis., winner of the 1980 International 500 snowmobile race (I-500) registered Oct. 10 as the first entrant for the 1981 race, report race officials.

Olson's entry marks the kick-off for I-500 registrations. Race Director George Rettner says he looks forward to a large field of entries based upon attractive cash awards. The 1981 international pro-class will offer $7,000 in cash to the first place winner, plus lap awards of $200 each day provided by Hamm's-Olympia, a major I-500 promotional sponsor.

The sport class is open for recreational snowmobilers who are interested in competing without the pressure of seasoned veterans stealing all the thunder. The 1981 first place sport class finisher will receive $1,000 in cash awards. Yamaha Motor Corporation, a major financial sponsor, is participating in the sport class cash awards offering.

Reputed to be the toughest cross country snowmobile race in the world, the I-500 celebrates its 16th year in the cross country snowmobile circuit starting in Winnipeg on January 26. Stopping at Thief River Falls, Bemidji and Brainerd, the race will conclude on January 29 in Saint Paul.

In recognition of his 1980 I-500 first place victory, Olson was presented with a 1981 Polaris TXL "Indy" snowmobile.

A veteran snowmobile racer, Olson drives his own tractor-trailor truck for a living most of the year. He won the I-500 in his fourth try just four minutes short of race record, finishing at 11-hours, 24-minutes and 20-seconds.

"I-500" race entries are available by phoning or writing the St. Paul Winter Carnival, Bremer Bldg., 98 E. 7th St., St. Paul, MN 55101; (612) 222-4416.

Detroit Lakes Wins 8AA Tennis Event

Team honors went to Detroit Lakes, while individual titles went to Brainerd in the 1980 Region 8AA girls high school tennis tournament played in the Grand Forks Tennis Center.

The Lakers successfully defended their Region 8AA team title Monday with a 3-2 victory over Brainerd in a match featuring the Region 8AA North and South Half champions.

Tuesday's individual play saw Brainerd's Sue Pettit win the singles title with a 6-1, 6-0 victory over Pam Gilchrist of St. Cloud Apollo, while the Warriors' Jenny Alverez and Carol Laimer took the doubles crown with a 6-1, 6-1 decision over Chris Andreotti and Sue Feddema of St. Cloud Tech.

Thief River Falls' Michelle Olson and Nancy Swanson lost to Alvarez and Laimer 6-0, 6-3 in a first round doubles match yesterday.

"It was an excellent tournament," reported Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. "Our kids played very well; they were playing against the best doubles team there."

The Region 8AA team champion, plus the top two singles and top two doubles finishers will move into the 1980 Class AA state tennis tournament Oct. 22-25 at the Rein Tennis Clubs in St. Paul.

Freshmen Win, Sophomores Lose Games

Three second half touchdowns snapped a 6-6 halftime tie and gave Thief River Falls a 26-6 win over Crookston Tuesday in freshman high school football action.

A 23-yard Doug Odegaard touchdown run was matched by Crookston in the final seconds of the first half for the tie at intermission. But the visitors broke it open in the third quarter when Scott Jorstad scored on runs of 20 and 50 yards.

Rick Spong added a 25-yard touchdown run early in the fourth quarter, with Mitch Semanko passing to Odegaard for the conversion points.

Thief River Falls, 4-2 for the year, will close out its 1980 freshman football schedule Tuesday by hosting Bemidji at 4:30 p.m.

In a sophomore game played Monday, Grand Forks Central defeated Thief River Falls 27-6. Lone touchdown scored by the 0-4 Thief River Falls sophomores was a second half run by Darren Wiskow.

Thief River Falls sophomores will close out their 1980 season Monday by hosting Bemidji in a 4:30 p.m. game.

Schedule

Wed., Oct. 15 — Argyle at Greenbush. Fri., Oct. 17 — Tri-County at Hallock. Tues., Oct. 21 — Tri-County vs. Marshall County Central at Newfolden, Hallock at Argyle, Greenbush at Kennedy

McIntosh-Winger defeated Oklee 18-12 Tuesday in a match-up of unbeaten North Tri County Conference teams to clinch a Minnesota state nine-man high school football playoff berth.

The Scots, who close out their 1980 regular season schedule next Tuesday at Clearbrook, will face Northern Lights Conference champion Kennedy in first round post-season playoff action. That game is tentatively set for Friday, Oct. 24, at 7:30 p.m. at Kennedy.

Elsewhere in the North Tri County Conference Tuesday, Goodridge handled Plummer 41-6, Clearbrook defeated Mentor 34-12, Gonvick ripped Erskine 54-12 and Middle River turned back Grygla 43-14.

Meanwhile, things are tightening in the Top of the State Conference where Marshall County Central gained a slight edge yesterday with a 40-16 triumph over Stephen.

The Nordics, 6-1 in conference play, will close out their regular season schedule next Tuesday at home against winless Tri-County. A Marshall County Central win over the Rabbits would assure the Nordics of at least a share of the Top of the State Conference pennant.

But the post-season playoff picture for the Top of the State Conference champion is a little more complicated. Argyle and Hallock are involved in a virtual three-way first place tie with Marshall County Central, with the Eagles playing at Greenbush today (Wednesday) and the Bears hosting Tri-County Friday. Expected wins by Argyle and Hallock would set up a title confrontation Tuesday when the Eagles host the Bears.

The Top of the State Conference playoff berth would go to Argyle if the Eagles win their final two starts. Hallock can gain a playoff berth only with wins over Tri-County and Argyle, along with a Marshall County Central loss to Tri-County because the Nordics beat the Bears in conference play earlier. Likewise, Marshall County Central needs to combine a win over Tri-County with an Argyle loss because the Eagles beat the Nordics this fall.

Whatever, the Top of the State Conference representative will tackle the Agassiz Valley North champion in post-season nine-man playoff action Saturday, Oct. 25, at 2 p.m. at Crookston. Mount St. Benedict and Fisher meet today (Wednesday) for the Agassiz Valley North title.

Goodridge 41
Plummer 6

Rory Haugen scored two touchdowns and rushed for 130 yards Tuesday night to lead Goodridge to a 41-6 North Tri County Conference win over visiting Plummer.

Six different Goodridge players had a hand in the scoring, including Ken Machida, a foreign exchange student from Japan who was 5-for-6 kicking extra points. He's 7-for-8 for the year on his conversion kicks, with his only miss hitting the up-rights last night.

"We're pretty happy with the win," said Goodridge coach Rick Nelson, whose Huskies led 28-6 at halftime. "Haugen and Mark Grabowska both played a heck of a ball game both ways."

Goodridge, now 3-5, ran up 348 yards worth of offense, 224 on the ground and 124 passing. Carroll Bishop contributed 54 yards on 12 carries, scored once and passed for two touchdowns, while playing offense and came up with a fumble recovery and two interceptions on defense.

The Huskies close out the 1980 season Tuesday at home against Erskine. Plummer, 0-8, will be at Grygla that afternoon.

DNR Asking For Help From Bird Watchers

Those who put out bird feeders during the winter months have been asked by the Department of Natural Resources to participate in a survey to keep track of the changes in the numbers and kinds of winter birds present in Minnesota.

Carrol Henderson, DNR non-game supervisor, said the survey is being coordinated by Doug and Julie Keran, Rt. 7, Box 14, Brainerd, MN 56401.

He said thousands of Minnesotans feed birds during the winter but very few have sent in winter bird observation reports.

Based on the observations of 27 persons who took part in the survey last year, the blue jay was the species most often found at feeders, but the evening grosbeak was the most abundant.

Those who would like to take part in the survey are asked to contact the Kerans at the above address.

Two real distinctions belong to the old-time Brooklyn Excelsiors. Under the management of Captain Joseph B. Leggett, they were the world's first team to tour. On June 30, 1860, they left Brooklyn to play in Albany, Troy, Buffalo and points south and west of New York City.

The first pitcher to throw a curve, some say, was William Arthur ("Candy") Cummings, who played with the Excelsior Junior Nine and introduced this refinement in 1866. The same claim has been made, however, for Fred Goldsmith of the Chicago White Stockings.

Home Firearms Safety Check Is Suggested

About this time of year, most sportsmen are busy hunting or fishing, steaming a few tattered flies or perhaps putting a new coat of paint on some favorite decoys. But with hunting seasons now underway, it's also a good time to spend an evening on a home firearms safety check.

While some gunners may think of safety as largely a matter of proper gun handling in the field, safety in the home is equally important. National Safety council figures show that about twice as many firearms accidents occur in the home as in the outdoors.

There's nothing complicated about gun safety in the home. The rules are few in number and easy to follow. Beyond the basic precautions, however, is the equally important attitude of respect and seriousness which should always be encouraged and maintained when dealing with guns, reports the national shooting sports foundation.

Double-checking to make absolutely sure that all your guns are unloaded is an obvious and most important first step. More than one veteran shooter has experienced the disturbing sensation of discovering a shell in the chamber of a gun he thought was unloaded.

Even if you are sure that a gun is unloaded, it should not be handled or shown to a friend without first opening the action and checking again. Among experienced gunners, this is a kind of ritual that is repeated whenever a firearm is examined. It's a good habit to get into.

Your next step should be to review your firearms storage facilities. Rifles and shotguns should be stowed securely in racks or cabinets, preferably locked. Handguns should be stored in a locked cabinet or drawer. Locked storage is particularly important if there are children in the home.

Standing a shotgun in the corner behind the kitchen door or keeping a handgun in the desk drawer is not suitable. If secure storage is not available, trigger locks should be used. Breech locks for rifles are also available. Again, if there are children in the home, such locking devices are highly recommended.

Your last safety check should involve your ammunition storage. For complete safety, all ammunition should be kept under lock and key and in a location separate from your firearms. An extra safety measure, particularly with children present, can be had by storing ammunition in another room or on a different floor level. The objective is to create a situation in which a conscious effort is required to bring firearms and ammunition together.

Two excellent reference pamphlets on safety, "Firearms Safety in the Home" and "The Handgun Guide," are available from NSSF. Proper gun handling in the home and suggestions for the proper home storage of firearms and ammunition are covered in "Firearms Safety in the Home" as well as a section on safety considerations for the storing of reloading components and black powder. In addition, there are chapters on safety education, construction of home ranges and firearms etiquette. "The Handgun Guide" covers both basic handgun safety and handgun safety in the home as well as sections on marksmanship, competitive shooting, handgun hunting and handgun law and legislation. Both booklets can be ordered for 25 cents each from: NSSF, 1075 Post Rd., Riverside, CT 06878.

WORST FIRE OF YEAR OCCURS IN DOWNTOWN TRF

Sept. 29th fire devastated the offices and shops of the Falls Mall in downtown Thief River Falls. The fire door between Larson Music and the Mall was effective in protecting all merchandise and fixtures in Larson Music from fire, heat and water damage. Before the fire could be extinguished huge amounts of smoke escaped into Larson Music's store. A professional cleaning service spent hundreds of man hours to return our store and merchandise to the best possible condition. We have assessed the situation and decided to liquidate all display merchandise and take our loss immediately.

PRICES SLASHED TO CLEAR ALL DISPLAY PRODUCTS

This means that you have a one time opportunity to buy brand name goods at fire clearance prices. All goods are covered by our regular warranties and financing will be arranged for you upon credit approval. Buy your Christmas gifts now - these are one of a kind savings.

PEOPLE ON THE MOVE

On affluent avenues like this one . . . and on the more modest streets and lanes as well . . . people leave and people come. For all of them, moving is a traumatic experience that touches deep chords of family life.

Psalm 121 was originally written as a "pilgrim song" for those journeying to Jerusalem to celebrate religious festivals. Perhaps its message is just as appropriate in our moving experiences . . .

The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth and even for evermore.

Part of getting one's bearings in a new neighborhood is finding a place of worship where the family will continue or renew its spiritual life. There will be new friends there eager to welcome you . . . and to share with you their faith.

Amendment Support

Among the many supporters of the Minnesota constitutional amendment which would create a bipartisan reapportionment commission is the Brainerd Dispatch. Here is what that paper had to say editorially about the amendment vote:

It is still a month until the general election, but it is a good time for area and state residents to give some thought to a very important constitutional question that will be on the ballot.

This particular amendment would give authority for reapportioning the state to a bipartisan commission. This commission would have the responsibility of redrawing district lines following every national census.

There is no question but what this important job should go to a bipartisan commission to prevent the bending of lines and rules to benefit one party or the other or to protect an incumbent.

One of the problems in obtaining passage of a constitutional amendment is that a yes vote is needed from a majority of all persons voting in the general election in order to be approved.

This means that anyone who leaves the voting booth without voting on the amendment automatically casts a no vote. Because amendments are often overlooked by voters who are more interested in key national and local races, it makes it difficult to pass one, even though it might have broad-based support as does the reapportionment amendment.

Some of the amendment's supporters are Common Cause of Minnesota, the DFL, the IR party, the League of Women Voters of Minnesota, Citizens League, the Joint Religious Legislative Coalition, the Minnesota Project, the AFL-CIO, the Minnesota Division of the American Association of University Women and the Minnesota Public Interest Research Group.

Reapportionment has never been an easy job for the Minnesota Legislature. After 1913, for example, the Legislature did not reapportion the state for 40 years despite a constitutional mandate that it be done every 10 years. In addition, reapportionment plans drawn by various Legislatures have been vetoed three times.

The crowning argument in favor of the bipartisan commission is the fact that the current district lines eventually had to be drawn by the district court.

It is highly important that a bipartisan commission be established. It behooves all of us to give it our support and a yes vote on Nov. 4.

Strange Circumstances

Writing in "The Spotlight", Martin A. Larson points out a set of unusual circumstances which indicate how the law can sometimes seem unjust:

This column does not specialize in personal tragedy; but a case recently came to our attention which occurred in Phoenix, Arizona, and which we believe merits notice because parallels have often occurred without sympathy in the U.S.

The admitted facts are as follows:

Charles Cadwell, a carpenter who earned about $15,000 in take-home pay when fully employed, had a wife and mother-in-law who embezzled $80,000 from their employer over a two-year period. He knew nothing whatever of this theft.

As a condition of probation for the two women, they agreed to make restitution. To keep them out of jail, the husband signed an additional mortgage on their home, which was then foreclosed and seized as partial payment. Thereupon, the wife and her mother moved out of the residence, taking with them everything moveable.

At the ensuing divorce, the judge declared that since the husband "might in some way have benefited" from the wife's theft, he was liable to one-half of the stipulated repayments — $40,000. This opinion seems rather strange, in view of the fact that instead of receiving any benefit, the husband lost his entire investment in his own house.

But this was only the beginning of his woes. The IRS declared that since he had signed a joint income-tax return with his wife, he owned income taxes on the stolen money, of which he had never received a penney. The assessment against him was $26,634, plus $13,317 for "fraud"; and even this does not include interest, which may increase the total substantially.

This also is the more strange, since IRS Code Sec. 6013(d)(3) provides explicitly that the innocent spouse is not liable for unknown income exceeding 25 per cent of the total received by the other: "In such case, the innocent spouse will be relieved of the liability attributable to the omission" (1979 "Master Tax Guide," Sec. 141).

Cadwell has appealed to the Circuit Court of Appeals. We assume that his lawyer may charge him at least $10,000 and perhaps $20,000. Meanwhile, the two criminals go virtually scot free.

Worth A Try

Columnist Robert J. O'Keefe writes the following about the proposed initiative and referendum amendment in the St. Paul Disptach:

It is aggravating to have representatives of two such influential organizations as the state AFL-CIO and the Minnesota Association of Commerce and Industry (MACI) oppose an effort to bring grass-roots democracy to Minnesota.

One of the big issues on the ballot in the Nov. 4 general election will be a proposed constitutional amendment to give the state a trial run at initiative and referendum. Approval by voters will put it in effect until 1985. Rejection by voters would deprive Minnesotans of an opportunity to have a much bigger voice in enactment of state laws.

Spokesmen for MACI and the AFL-CIO are among those urging defeat.

The reason their opposition is aggravating stems from the fact that they don't need initiative and referendum nearly as much as run-of-the-mill Minnesotans.

David Roe, president of the state AFL-CIO, is seen regularly at state legislative sessions. A pleasant man, he is often chomping on a cigar, and as head of the large labor organization obviously has influence with legislators.

He and his organization help some legislators get elected.

Once a legislative session starts, Roe has easier access to lawmakers than the ordinary Minnesotan has.

Winston Borden, one of the top figures in MACI; obviously knows his way around the inner circle of the Legislature, even though the circle does get new members from time to time. A former state senator, he used to be part of the circle.

My point is that people like Borden and Roe can talk to legislators, can influence them, much more than some guy named Joe walking down the sidewalk.

Why not let everybody have a shot at influence over state legislation, which is what initiative and referendum would do? Especially with an automatic expiration in 1985? If it were to continue past the expiration date, another constitutional amendment would be needed.

Initiative and referendum really are grass-roots ideas. They give everybody in the state a chance to get involved in laws, with some exceptions.

One of the principal exceptions involves spending of state funds. Initiative and referendum couldn't be used to interfere with appropriation of money. Nor could they be used for a special law, one which applies solely to one community.

Otherwise, citizens unhappy with the Legislature could get into the act themselves through use of petitions.

Under initiative, laws could be proposed. Under referendum, laws passed by the Legislature could be put to public vote. However, petitions signed by five per cent of the voters from the last gubernatorial election in each congressional district would be needed.

The system, if given the chance, could settle some longstanding issues in the state. Should we have a presidential primary? Why not let the voters decide.

Critics contend that we don't need initiative and referendum because we have representative government: We elect legislators to pass laws for us.

Judging by polls, it seems that quite a few Minnesotans like the idea of the added safeguard initiative and referendum would give them.

There is also the criticism that oddball laws could wind up on the statute books in the state. These critics have the wrong idea of Minnesota voters, who are smarter than they receive credit for being.

In any event, it is surely worth a try, and the proposed amendment is nothing more than a try because of its automatic expiration date.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Sunday School Teacher: "Can anyone tell me why Noah took two of each creature into the ark?"

Pupil: "Because he didn't buy that story about the stork."

Businessman: "At least I can't complain about my advertising getting results. Last week we advertised for a night watchman and the next night we were robbed."

Gather 'Round . . : Brer Bear, Brer Rabbit and Brer Fox gather round Johnny (Bobby Driscoll) and Ginny (Luana Patten) in this scene from Walt Disney's classic live-action animation fantasy, "Song of the South," based on the Uncle Remus stories by Joel Chandler Harris. In color by Technicolor, the film is released by Burena Vista. Starts Wed., Oct. 15 at the Galaxy Twin theatre.
